Prayer Offered by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Cecil B. Lawter, Area Chaplain
Sacramento Air Technical Service Command at Opening of Senate, Monday, June 11, 1945

Eternal God, we give Thee humble praise for all Thy blessings. We thank Thee for all military victories that have come to our allied armies. We pause today to pray for those who occupy positions of power and authority. Give strength, wisdom and courage to the President of the United States, our allied military leaders and fighters, and all assemblies that make laws and govern our people.

Enable us, O God, to be tolerant, open-minded and sincere. Keep before us the lofty ideals that lead to peace and contentment. May we never lose sight of the principles of true greatness that have established our American way of life.

We pray for the members of our armed forces who are scattered throughout the world. Give Thy peace and comfort to those who are wounded, suffering and dying. Peace to those who sleep beneath the white crosses and the stars of David. Love to those who return to the shores of our land. If it be Thy will, O God, may the war soon cease, and may Thy peace be established among the Nations of the world.

Help us as individuals to do all within our power to labor, sacrifice, and support the all-out war effort until final victory is complete.

In the name of our Eternal God we make our prayer.—AMEN

PRINTING OF REPORT IN JOURNAL

Pursuant to the motion made by Senator Biggar on June 7, 1945, the following report of the Senate Interim Committee on the Study of Public Education in the State of California was ordered printed in the Journal of this date.

Report of Senate Interim Committee on the Study of Public Education in the State of California, Created by Senate Resolution No. 52, Fifty-fifth Regular Session

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Senate:

Your Committee appointed by authority of Senate Resolution No. 52, session of 1943, begs to submit the following report of its activities.

Owing to the restrictions on travel and hotel accommodations, coupled with the unusual burdens placed upon the individual members of the committee caused by the war, the committee was not able to carry out the full intent and purpose for which it was created.

It was difficult to approach the inquiry as would have been possible in peace times. This did not interfere, however, with an investigation of matters which had attracted no little concern among educators and the parents of children attending the public schools which had led up to many proposed changes in the way of legislation which resulted in the decision to ask an interim committee to hold hearings and invite discussion.

It was also felt that the upset conditions incident to the war, and the heavy volume of extra-curricular duties placed upon the schools in the heroic work they were doing in the war effort, was not an opportune time to make a fair evaluation of the school system of California.

A survey of the Public School System of California presents a big undertaking in view of the scope and outstanding opportunities California offers in the education of its youth. There is no function of Government in which the people have taken as much interest as they have in the public schools. They have made certain that the State's educational efforts shall be financially secure by writing into the Constitution a provision which gives the public schools first claim on all of the State's revenue. They have endeavored to equalize the allocation of school funds so that all children in the State, wherever they may reside, shall have an equal opportunity for an education. In addition to this, attendance at school is made compulsory up to the age of eighteen.

The structure of the California School System is unsurpassed anywhere. It is well designed, well equipped, well financed and well staffed with excellent teachers. It starts with the kindergarten, follows through the elementary school, high school, junior college, college and university. California school buildings and equipment rank among the best in the world. Textbooks, supplies, health supervision and transportation of pupils to and from school are provided free by the State. Thus, boys and girls are given a wide range of latitude upon which to build useful lives, if advantage is taken of the generosity of the State in furnishing well equipped public schools.

Adult classes and extension courses are offered for older people and this form of education has been broadened materially during the past few years. The adult classes and extension courses are highly commendable and fill a need in our education program. Caution should be exercised to prevent these classes from drifting into fields away from real educational value. Evidence was given your committee of instances where these classes were used more as a means of securing extra funds for the schools conducting them rather than for their educational benefit. In some cases, the open forum classes had apparently been used as propaganda agencies rather than disseminating useful information. Attention of school administrators is called to this situation.

Your committee was asked to give consideration of the contention on the part of many parents, teachers, students, and the press that the fundamentals of child training, from an educational standpoint, popularly referred to as "The Three R's", were being neglected. It was claimed these subjects were put aside for other methods in the schools of the State, particularly in the primary grades. The committee soon ascertained there was a strong divergence of opinion as between the so-called fundamentalists and the progressives as to the method of instruction, the former insisting there should be a return and retention of the old-time system of teaching the alphabet, reading, writing and arithmetic rather than having this method superseded by the so-called progressive plan of project building, learning by pictures in books, fashioning objects from clay or putty, stringing beads and so on.

Your committee heard witnesses on both sides of the contention just mentioned, a comprehensive and quite interesting story, related by school supervisors and teachers, parents and friends of the public schools. Those interested can read the evidence given the committee on this stirring topic from the transcript of the records. Publicity given the story of the hearing and the opinions on both sides has resulted, committee members have been informed, in a substantial readoption in many schools of the so-called fundamentals or at least the establishing of a happy medium.

Your committee believes this important matter requires a more thorough scrutiny. This scrutiny should begin with a study of what is being taught our teachers in colleges and universities. This should be followed by examining the actual teaching methods used in the schools. Test examinations in essential subjects should be given the pupils in the elementary and high schools in different parts of the State. The test questions should be given by the teachers of the schools visited and in the presence of a legislative committee. The questions should be prepared by competent teachers and should be on a level with what the pupils should have achieved in those subjects at the time in the school year the tests are given. Your chairman has discussed with many teachers this method of appraising the sufficiency of modern teaching methods, and they have approved it as being fair and effective. During its hearings, your committee was invited by teachers to visit their classrooms. Similar invitations came from educators in many sections of the State. For the reasons heretofore mentioned, your committee regretted it was unable to acquiesce in the request.

Before leaving the discussion of the subject matter to which reference has just been made, it is the unanimous belief of the members of your committee that more attention should be given instruction in reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, history, geography and discipline. Need for giving greater attention to the teaching of these subjects was pointedly presented to the Legislature by the introduction of a measure compelling the teaching of American History in elementary and high schools throughout the State.

As the result of proper fundamental training, a child will have a solid foundation upon which to erect his future education. With such a bulwark, he may acquire knowledge of how to live with his fellowman, meet the demands of our complex civilization and attain understanding of the deeper meaning of life.

Your committee is strongly of the opinion there should be a revision of the curriculum, from the kindergarten to the college. Many educators believe that the division of the classes on the basis of a 6-4-4 or a 6-3-3-4 plan should replace the existing arrangement of an 8-4-4 plan. For the benefit of those not acquainted with the reference figures, they mean—the 6-4-4 relates to six years in the elementary grades, four comprising the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth; and four, the eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth grades. The 6-3-3-4 plan means six years in the elementary grades; three comprising the seventh, eighth and ninth; three, the tenth, eleventh and twelfth; and four, the thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth grades. Arrangements of classes should be given careful consideration because of the importance in integrating the courses of study leading from early elementary grades to college years.

The committee believes that there should be a standard list of subjects taught in every grade, to be adopted after consultation with leading educational authorities and that such an approved curriculum should be offered in every school district in California as a means of reaching a uniform high standard of education. In our opinion, there is no question but that there should be such revision of the curriculum.

Concurrently with the appointment of your committee, came the employment by the Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission of Dr. George Strayer of Columbia University to conduct an investigation of the State's educational system, its departmental reorganization and its financial structure. In consequence, your committee did not pursue their field of investigation. Prior to his departure, your committee, at the suggestion of the Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission, met with Dr. Strayer and were told by him the results of his inquiry, the nature of his recommendations and the drafting of legislation to carry them into effect. Your committee approved the principle of Dr. Strayer's recommendation concerning the equalizing of funds for the elementary schools.

Members of the committee received letters from teachers complaining of the over enthusiasm exercised by some supervisors in judging their work more by the methods followed rather than by the achievements of the pupils. Your committee believes that a properly educated and trained teacher should know how to teach her classes because of her close knowledge of her students. Teachers should be allowed to develop their own methods of teaching and they should be judged by what the pupils learn and not by whether they are following a cut and dried plan handed down to them, was one of the thoughts projected to us.

The committee commends highly the work that both the Parent-Teacher's Association and the State School Trustees' Association are doing. Both of these organizations keep a close tie between the schools and the people. The more intimate the relationship between the parents and the teachers, the better understanding of the child's need can be had. Likewise the activities of the State Trustees' Association is stimulating keener interest in the minds of trustees as to their responsibilities and opportunities for assisting in the great work our schools are doing.

The war has developed many new problems for our schools. The rapid growth of the population of the State has brought new need for school buildings. It has aggravated the already acute shortage of teachers. The new population of the State has been drawn from people with different backgrounds, and these must be fitted into California conditions. Juvenile delinquency and the let-down in behavior that come with war, put an extreme burden on schools. Fitting courses of study to meet the needs of the returning soldiers is a new and difficult problem. Also the Adult Educational Program must be reevaluated and brought within proper bounds and made more effective.

The many changes in international relationship, and the shift of populations make it necessary that American citizens be more acquainted with foreign languages than heretofore was necessary. Your committee therefore recommends that courses in foreign languages be augmented, especially in Spanish, Russian, and the Oriental languages. The war has forced us into close relationship with the Orient and with Russia. It is imperative that the American people understand the language of these peoples. The future peace of the world is wrapped up in peoples understanding each other. No two peoples can understand each other when neither can speak the language of the other.

Operation of Child Care Centers for children of parents working in war industries was a new function placed upon our schools. They have met the problem admirably and through these centers, they have made a valuable contribution to the war effort.

Experience gained in conducting the Child Care Centers has given impetus to a demand for expanded nursery schools. While the committee does not claim to be competent to judge the need for nursery schools, it does wish to offer a word of caution that such schools do not grow into a system of State care and rearing of children. Any tendency in this direction would lead to undermining home ties and would weaken the love of parent and child, one of the most sacred things in life. There is need, however, for courses in child care and motherhood. Such courses should be given in high schools where both mothers and teen-age girls can be taught proper care of children and other facts of motherhood which all girls and mothers should know.

Your committee was impressed at its hearing in Sacramento with strides made in Vocational Training, particularly during the war time to which California schools contributed so wonderfully.

On this point, Dr. Walter Dexter, State Superintendent of Public Instruction stated: "In the past three years, the State Department of Education has trained about 729,000 workers. In the postwar days, vocational training will become more important than ever. A movement is already under way in California to teach canning of fruit and vegetables."

In view of a long drawn out controversy concerning the compilation and purchase of textbooks, your committee devoted two public hearings to this matter. At these hearings, many salient facts were brought out. The following excerpts from the transcript of testimony given at these hearings will show how textbooks are now provided.

"By Senator Biggar:

Q. Dr. Waterman, what is your official position?

A. I am Chief of the Division of Textbooks and Publications of the State Department of Education.

Q. In the scope of your duties, what part do you take in determining what school books shall be purchased?

A. In the course of my duties, I assist the State Curriculum Commission in their determination of the books to be adopted.

Q. Is it necessary that your approval be had before a book is purchased?

A. No.

Q. Your position, then is just advisory?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who has the final decision as to the selection of a book?

A. The State Board of Education.

Q. The State Board?

A. Yes.

Q. They act upon their own, or do they wait until the Curriculum Commission or Dr. Dexter should give their approval?

A. The law requires that before a book may be adopted, the State Board of Education must give the State Curriculum Commission a public hearing on its recommendation for adoption, and that, in general, has been the procedure followed by the Board.

Q. Can a book be adopted without the approval of the Curriculum Commission?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Does the Board have to follow the recommendation of the Curriculum Commission?

A. No, sir.

Q. Then the Curriculum Commission, as I understand it, is just purely advisory; they have no authority, but are purely advisory to the Board?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are books ever purchased for elementary schools without having first been submitted to either the Board or the Curriculum Commission?

A. That has been done.

Q. Is that legal?

A. Not without having been submitted to the Board. The Board is the one that has to adopt.

Q. They must adopt a book before it can be purchased legally?

A. Before it may be purchased by the State as a State textbook, yes.

Q. Doctor, what was the object, then, of the Curriculum Commission?

A. To provide the State Board of Education with professional advice in connection with the adoption of textbooks. The Commission was established by the Legislature, as I recall, in 1927, I think it was, with that object in view.

Q. The Curriculum Commission then suggests a course of study that is followed?

A. That is one of the duties of the Commission, and, as the law states it, to formulate standards for courses of study throughout the public school system. Now, the Commission has never actually formulated a course of study, but it has issued what its Chairman suggests as a course of study of a teacher's guide. A course of study, to be effective, a State course of study would have to be adopted by the State Board of Education.

SENATOR BIGGAR: One other question on the matter of purchase of books without the approval of the Board or the Curriculum Commission:

Q. Must the schools use those books that may be purchased without the usual approval of all parties?

A. A book cannot be a State series textbook unless it is adopted by the State Board. In other words, that circumstance could not occur. You could not have a State textbook which was not adopted by the Board. Do you mean supplementary books?

Q. Any book that the State pays for and is distributed among our schools.

Q. They must be used?

The law requires that.

A. They must be used, yes.

Q. Whether they have the approval of the Curriculum Commission or not?

A. That is right. The Curriculum Commission merely advises. The board may or may not take its recommendation. The schools must use whatever books are adopted as State textbooks."

Senator Biggar: Just a question, Doctor, that your earlier testimony brought to my mind, about revision of textbooks.

Q. Do I understand you to say that the contexts of the books have been revised after the books have been contracted for?

A. Yes, that is right.

Q. And the cost of revising has been a State expense, did I understand?

A. If I do any work on it, that is naturally a State expense. The work that the publisher does on it is the publisher's expense.

Q. I would like to pursue that just a little further to find out how that would go. If a publishing house submits a book at the request of the proper authorities and that book is considered for the schools of California, the material in that book, its text, its physical materials and all, are taken and examined by your board, by you and your board, as I understand it.

A. And by the State Curriculum Commission and by the State Board of Education.

Q. They are supposed to go over it very carefully and decide whether that is a proper book to purchase?

A. That is right.

Q. And then, after they contract for it, it frequently happens, from what I have heard you say, that the text is not right; it has got to be revised.

A. I did not mean to convey that impression. It would frequently happen certain revisions would be required; the implication would not be that the text was not right in general. Usually revisions are not extensive in character.

Q. The point I am trying to get at is, why should it happen that after the board, the Curriculum Commission and you examine into the text and make-up of a book, that it should require revision after the contract has been let to buy it?

A. Even the best that is submitted may contain factual errors.

Q. Shouldn't you determine that before you buy the book and not afterward?

A. Regardless of whether it is determined before or after, if the book has errors in it, the errors need to be corrected.

Q. How does it come that the Curriculum Commission and the board may accept a book that has errors? Why do they not determine there are no errors in it before they buy it? That is the point I am trying to get at.

A. I might explain that in this way: If even the best of all the materials that are submitted may have certain errors, those that are not the best may have lots of errors; so if the very best have certain errors in them, it would be necessary to make certain revisions.

Q. Don't you think those errors should be cleared up before you contract to buy the book?

A. That is not the procedure we follow. The procedure we follow is that the material is adopted with such revisions as the board may specify. The other may be a better procedure, but it is not the one that is followed.

Q. Don't you think, as a matter of justice to the State of California, that any revision and all the cost of any revision in any book that has been purchased at a given price and contracted for should be paid by the publishing house that sells the book, and not any of that cost fall upon the State?

Senator Slater: You mean after they have been adopted.

Senator Biggar: After they have been adopted.

A. In general, I would think so. However, in making that statement, I would not want to exclude certain work by the State Department of Education, especially that work in examining the books, in indicating certain revisions that publishers should make; in other words, whatever the State Department of Education needs to do to make it clear to the publisher the changes he must make is naturally a State cost.

Q. To what extent have revisions been made in books that have been purchased at a given price? Has there been at any time any material amount of change as to the subject matter?

A. Generally speaking, not as to subject matter, merely clarification of statements, improving of the wording, and correction of errors. In the case of a recent music book, the Japanese National Anthem was replaced with some other song.

Senator Swan: Q. Do you ever move material from one book to another?

A. Yes, that has been done. That is not so much a change in the substance of what was adopted as a regrading of what was adopted.

Q. It involves a change materially for the grade, doesn't it?

A. For a particular grade, yes.

Q. It amounts to a rather extensive revision for that grade?

A. Yes, that would be true.

Senator Biggar: Q. Has it ever occurred that the results of revision would cheapen the cost of the book finally printed?

A. Would cheapen it?

Q. Yes, cost less to produce it?

Senator Swan: Q. In other words, would material be taken out or certain illustrations eliminated that would reduce the printing cost, the paper cost, and so on?

A. So far as I know, that has never been a consideration.

Senator Biggar: Q. I am just looking at the thing from a purely business viewpoint as to what could happen. Could it be possible that enough material could be removed from a book through revision that it would cost less to produce that book?

A. It would be possible, but there you would use word the "abridge," rather than "revise."

Q. It is not a question of words, it is a question of fact that I am trying to bring out.

A. Well, it would be possible to abridge a book so that it would come under the general heading of revision. But that has never been the policy; it has never been done.

Q. That is the point I am trying to get: It has never been done?

A. Never.

Senator Biggar:

Q. Miss Dougherty, you have served on the State Board of Education?

A. Yes.

Q. How many years?

A. Ten and a half.

Q. What period?

A. Well, from, I think, 1932 or 1933 until, well, just before Governor Olson went out, the July before his term expired.

Q. During your term of office you have acted upon book contracts submitted to you, have you not?

A. I have, Yes.

Q. Will you tell the Committee just what procedure is followed by the Board from your experience in the purchase of books?

A. When the State Department informs the Board that the book contract is to expire, then they request that a notice of a letter be sent out to various publishers for a new book, and when the books are submitted they come to the Department of Education and from there they are sent to the Curriculum Commission and to the members of the State Board for review.

After the time for opening the bides has expired, the Board meets on a specified date and the Curriculum Commission's report is opened and read and gone over. They have a system of evaluating, and the credits of evaluation are given to the books. As a rule, they select three or five of the books, if there are quite a number presented, and the Board then decides which book it wants. It has no obligation to the Curriculum Commission to adopt anything that they recommend. They are advisory, and if the Board members have gone over the book thoroughly, as most of them do, they decide which book they think is set to be adopted for the children of the State of California.

Senator Biggar: I would like to go back to the procedure followed in determining when a book is to be needed and who decides upon the material that the book shall contain.

Q. I understood you to say, Miss Dougherty, that the State Department of Education determines when a new book or books are to be purchased.

A. The State Department notifies the State Board of the time the adoption will expire, and prior to that time, so that the books will be published before the time of expiration. They notify the State Board and the State Board requests the Secretary to send out an invitation for publishers to present books covering the subject.

Q. That applies only to books that are being used in the schools. Now, what do you mean by expiration of the adoption? I do not quite get that clearly in mind.

A. A book formerly was adopted for four years with the privilege of two more. I think books are now adopted for six years with a privilege of two more, or something to that effect—or four years with the privilege of four more—I would not be just positive about that.

When the first expiration comes, they are notified, and they may either re-adopt for the extra years permitted, or call for a new adoption.

Q. That new adoption means new material?

A. Yes.

Q. As I understand it, then, the State Department of Education determines ahead of time whether or not new material is to be added to the book that is now being used. Take, for instance, a history book or a mathematics book—any book that has been used.

A. I do not know that they determine that. They notify the State Board when the contract expires and it is up to the State Board then either to ask for a renewal of the old contract or to give them the additional time, or to request a new adoption, and then they notify their Secretary to publish this.

Q. I can get that point. What I am trying to get at is, how much predetermination is made as to what a book should contain before publishers are asked to submit their books, just in general terms. "Arithmetic for the eighth grade"—is that all that is sent out?

A. I think that is about the substance of it.

Q. These companies submit books that they think, in their judgment are good books for the eighth grade, and then those are submitted to you—I mean not to you, but to the Board of Education and to the Curriculum Commission?

A. Yes.

Q. And they are supposed to analyze those books carefully?

A. Yes.

Q. And report to the Board of Education?

A. The State Board.

Q. The State Board of Education?

A. Yes.

Q. The State Board of Education does not have to pay any attention to the Curriculum Commission's report?

A. Not if they do not wish to. The Curriculum Commission is simply an advisory board, and the State Board has no obligation to follow its recommendation.

TESTIMONY OF DR. CURTIS WARREN

Senator Biggar:

Q. From your experience, do you consider a curriculum board a real necessity in our system of selecting books for schools?

A. It has been my contention the Curriculum Commission never did carry out the function for which they were established; they were established by a former superintendent, William John Cooper, and the very name implies that they were to make a study of the curriculum practices in California and to offer aid and suggestion in that particular field, which we used to call a course of study, and to my knowledge—unless it be within the last half year, and I can say I was out of the State for some nine months—I am not aware that they ever made a very great effort in that field to fulfill the primary function for which, I think, they were selected. That is my own reaction to it.

And not only that, but I have talked with members who were on the original Curriculum Commission, and they had understood that that was to be perhaps their primary function, as the name implies, "Curriculum Commission." But their chief function has been over the years to select textbooks.

Q. To recommend, rather than select?

A. It amounts to selection. I know it is just a legal technicality, Outside of one recommendation there, it has always amounted to selection. Senator Swan:

Q. You have had wide experience in the public schools of California, haven't you, Dr. Warren? You have been Superintendent of Santa Barbara, Alhambra and elsewhere.

A. Burbank and Santa Barbara.

Q. Your opinion is not newly formed?

A. Oh, no.

Q. You have had opportunity to observe it over the years?

A. That is right.

Senator Biggar: Q. From your experience on the Board, who actually determines the subject matter that makes up what you termed a moment ago a course of study?

A. I think the various school districts do that largely themselves. I think the State Department of Education has a great deal of influence. In our California school system we have local autonomy largely, even if the State Department does not like it.

Q. Do I understand from your statement that local boards may make up their course of study and choose whatever books they want to use, irrespective of the State Department?

A. No, that is not totally true. The State Department places on the approved list the books which may be used, if you are thinking in terms of textbooks.

Senator Slater: Q. Dr. Warren, do you have any well grounded opinion of thought as to any improvement that might be made in the way of selecting the textbooks for the public schools, aside from the present situation, which, of course, has been omitted this afternoon, possibly lacking a little bit of determination?

A. I think the important point to be considered there is the composition of the Commission which selects textbooks, and analyzing or expanding that a bit, my thinking is something like this: Textbooks should be selected by competent persons. By that I mean people who have first-hand information of the needs of the children, plus textbooks which are available, and also, in some instances, considering the specialized nature of the textbook to be selected, one competent in that field.

Q. Did you say a journalist?

A. A generalist. What I am thinking about is this: when I say it depends on the Commission, it does not depend on my thinking what kind of commission you have, it is the personnel of the commission that is important. As I think over the years of the Curriculum Commission, there have been periods when there have been highly competent persons, and at other times there have been fine educators, but not competent in that area. They were appointed to the Curriculum Commission and then used their staff to do the work for them in that instance. I do not know whether that is defensible or not.

In my own thinking, I do not think it is. I think a person who serves on the Curriculum Commission ought to be selected for his professional and educational competency and not for any influence that he might bring from any particular area as a member of that Commission.

Q. Now, how is it, Dr. Warren, that more California educators do not write more textbooks than they do? Don't you think there are plenty of competent educators in this state who could write more textbooks than they do? Don't you think there are plenty of competent educators in this state who could write textbooks, as Ellwood Coverly and others did years ago?

A. Yes, I think there are probably lots of competent people in California, but on the other hand, I have this feeling: that our children ought to have the advantages of the best textbooks that are written by individuals, no matter what their residence may be, and I would not want to see us restrict the textbooks we choose to just California educators.

Q. I do not mean that, not exactly that. If we followed out that suggestion further, you would have the children taken out and taught without textbooks at all. I imagine they could learn far more in nature—botany—by being taken out and shown the various things, than through the use of a textbook.

A. I wouldn't totally agree with you, Senator Slater. I would say that there could be great improvement if we had competent people who could do that sort of thing. We do not have enough of them, so, consequently, we not only have to rely on textbooks, but then we should have that as a reference book—some, but not the sole means of experience which a child should have by textbook only.

The Witness: What I think is the solution to all this textbook mess would be to allow the elementary schools to select their own textbooks in every district in the State.

Senator Slater: Q. You think that would sum up, after all, the condition and be the remedy therefor?

A. Of course, there is a fallacy in selecting textbooks on a state-wide basis, for the simple reason you assume the children are alike all over the state, and that is not true.

If you assumed the theory that the children ought to be dealt with according to their needs, you would let each district select its own textbooks. Then you would do away with a lot of politics, charges and counter-charges, all the time.

Q. I agree with you, because it may be that children in one county may have more ability than in another county.

A. I have known that for a number of years, ever since I knew you, Senator. * * *

DR. DEXTER TESTIFYING

Q. We are discussing the matter of the selection and purchase of books for schools. What part do you take in the selection of textbooks?

A. As Director of Education and Superintendent of Public Instruction, by virtue of law, I am the Chairman of the Curriculum Commission, as you know, a body of ten persons chosen from the educators of the State to recommend the selection of textbooks to the Board of Education.

Q. Who chooses the members of that commission?

A. The Superintendent appoints the members of the Curriculum Commission with the consent and approval of the Board of Education.

Q. Do they serve at your pleasure?

A. Four years.

Q. They are appointed for a term?

A. When you appoint one, you cannot remove him until the term is over, and I would like to emphasize the fact that the Commission is appointed with the approval of the Board of Education.

Senator Biggar: Q. Doctor, you mentioned that new books are more or less required after a six or eight year period.

A. Yes.

Q. That applies, of course, to books that are in use. Now, how often does it happen that a complete new book that is not in use is suggested that should be used?

A. Once in a long time, Senator Biggar. I am glad that you raised that question, and I should like to go on record as favoring a movement in education which seems to be significant. The California elementary school curriculum has included such subjects as reading, writing, arithmetic, history, geography, and so forth. Those of us who have studied education both from the scientific and professional point of view have a feeling that perhaps we did not deal with the problems of life as early in the school course as we should deal with them. Accordingly we discovered that texts on science for elementary schools were being written and thought there was a possibility of introducing that subject into the elementary curriculum.

Now, may I call attention to the fact that about 351 years ago the scientific attitude came into being. At that particular moment Galileo had been teaching the philosophy of Aristotle, who at some times taught some science, and for 1,900 years Aristotle's philosophy had been pretty well believed to be the truth. Aristotle had said that if you take two balls, one weighing five pounds and another weighing one, same distance above the earth and dropped them at the same time, the one weighing five pounds would travel five times as fast as the one weighing one and would reach the earth at a sooner time.

For 1,700 years people believed the science of Aristotle. Galileo, a young teacher, said he did not believe it and together with his students and faculty he went to a spot designated. He dropped two balls, one weighing five pounds and one weighing one, and to the surprise of all, they dropped at exactly the same rate of speed and reached the ground at the same time, thus disproving the thesis of Aristotle 1,900 years before. When those balls hit the ground modern civilization started and modern education started, which means that here was a man who reached out into life, gathered facts, built those facts into principles, and tested the principles by experience.

Now, for 351 years we have had the scientific attitude here and there spotted in civilization.

All right. A number of years ago we introduced science into the college curriculum and there we studied the how and the why of life. Finally then it was reduced into the high schools, so we can study general science perhaps in the first year, perhaps biology in the second year, chemistry in the third, and physics in the fourth. But here we have a group of children at the age of, shall we say thirteen or fourteen or fifteen years old who have never faced the real problems of the how and why of life.

Now, if, we then should introduce this subject to students sometime in their career, why not introduce it to them in the very first years of the elementary grades. And so there is a series of books, the how and why of life, a scientific series by L. W. Singer of Syracuse, New York. They start with pictures, a word under the picture, and then another word under a picture, finally coming into sentences, more sentences, then paragraphs, and the first thing you know you are having a group of children dealing with the environment in which they live. They study the why of life, which is to live it abundantly—and that is not political when I say that. The end of life is to live abundantly. The how of life is to understand relationships. And in the understanding of relationships you must understand your environment.

So we came to the conclusion—all of us—that it would be a tremendous advantage to education in California to introduce this series into the elementary grades. And, so far as I know, the introduction was of the highest order, the study was of the very best. It was presented to the last Board over a year ago, and I would have to look into the details of the adoption to answer all the questions, but to my way of thinking, we have for the first time in California adopted the finest series of textbooks that have ever gone into the elementary schools in this commonwealth, and it is the greatest advance in education in the last fifty years. I am glad you let me say that because I am just that enthusiastic about it. * * *

First being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Senator Biggar: Q. Dr. Waterman, I am trying to find out what the total cost of this book <sup>(1)</sup> is to the people of California of California under the contract you are going to sign with Singer people?

A. It is impossible to say what the total cost will be because we do not know how many we will distribute, what the minimum distribution will be.

Q. I mean per copy.

A. Per copy?

Q. Per copy.

A. Twelve cents.

Q. That included all the State charges and everything?

A. Everything. That is for the first 50,000. After that will run .01-2/3 less.

Senator Swan: Q. What is the royalty on that?

A. There is no royalty.

Q. No royalty whatever.

A. No, there is no royalty on any of the books.

Q. Explain that situation. How is it possible to get the book without paying any royalty?

A. The same way you would go down and buy a book at the bookstore. We are purchasing printed sheets.

Q. Well, how much profit is being made by the company on the separate sheets?

A. I have no idea.

Q. The Board never made any effort to determine that?

A. So far as I know, the manufacturers and publishers do not indicate exactly what their profits are on a transaction. I have no way of knowing.

Q. Did you present to the Board any figures that would show whether or not they were paying too much or too little for the printed sheets?

A. No, I did not say that. I said I am not familiar with any basis of determining whether the publisher is making too much or too little profit.

Q. How did you determine whether or not this cost was a satisfactory cost?

A. Well, it is a reasonable cost in terms of the cost of other books.

Q. What factors did you consider? Just how did you reach your decision that it was reasonable?

A. On the basis of the market price of books and on the basis of what we paid for books in past years.

Q. You never took into account the problem of royalty at all?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. How did you become familiar with that?

A. The publishers submitted a bid on the basis of royalty.

Q. What was it on that bid?

A. That is 6.22 for the first 50,000 copies and 3.40 cents for additional copies.

Q. In that instance six cents of the cost is royalty out of the twelve cents.

A. It is not royalty, but it might be compared with royalty if you wished to do it.

Q. It can be compared with royalty?

A. Yes, if you want to.

Q. In other words, what would be royalty, if we had royalty in this adoption, would be 50 per cent of the total cost of the book?

A. You mean for the—

Q. The first 50,000.

A. If the State were printing the books and we were paying a royalty instead of paying for the sheets?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, the figure of six cents for the first 50,000 and three cents for additional copies would be comparable to royalty on other books.

Q. In other words, for the first 50,000 the Board is now paying what amounts to the 50 per cent royalty?

A. 50 per cent of what?

Q. Well, of the total outlay of the first 50,000?

A. It depends. You can say it is 50 per cent of what the total cost of the book to the State might be. That does not mean very much.

Q. It means this, that 50 per cent of the total cost is a royalty cost.

A. That is true, it means that, yes.

Q. In other words, 50 per cent of the cost of this book goes to royalty.

A. That seems to be right, if you want to consider that as a royalty.

Q. You just testified under oath that in your judgment it would be fair to call this a 50 per cent royalty charge. The book cost the State 12 cents and about six cents of it goes for what would be royalty. Take an arithmetic book and figure it the same way. What did the last arithmetic book cost in percentages? We will forget the list price.

A. We paid a lump sum royalty for the arithmetic books, as I recall it, of a $1,000,100,000.

Q. How much would that work out a copy? Let us take an adoption that is comparable where there is not a lump sum, but where there is a cost per copy. Do you have any adoption like that there.

A. Oh, yes, most of our books are on the basis of royalty per copy.

Q. Take one of those, then.

A. The lowest royalty on our list is 3.6 cents.

Q. What is the cost of the book to the State?

A. The cost of manufacturing that book was 6.4 cents.

Q. So that is about 50 per cent, is it?

A. No, that is the cost of manufacture. It would amount to about 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  per cent.

Q. 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  per cent?

A. Roughly, yes. Another book on the list—

Q. Will you identify these books as you go? What was that one you just gave?

A. That is one of the pre-primers. Another pre-primer, royalty 4¢, cost of manufacture about 9¢.

Q. That would be 4¢ out of 13?

A. That is right. The next is 10 out of 30¢; the next is 10 out of 35¢; 10 out of 38¢, and so on.

Q. Do you have any that run 50 per cent?

A. No, we do not, but I would like to disabuse your mind of that 50 per cent figure. Remember that is only for the first 50,000 copies.

Q. Yes, I understand.

A. For additional copies, it is 3.4¢, and that 3.4¢ compares very favorably with what we are paying on the pre-primers right now.

From the testimony given, your Committee is of the opinion the matter should be completely reviewed. We are convinced some better method can be devised to meet what we consider is a most important factor in our educational program. We feel that California talent should be given more encouragement and opportunity to write text books. It is difficult for us to understand why, with our excellent school system and so many competent educators connected therewith, there are not more text books produced by California authors, and used in our schools.

In view of the fact that your Committee was unable to make a complete analysis of our school system, we strongly recommend that another Committee be appointed to continue and complete the work.

Respectfully submitted.

Statement by Committee Chairman

In submitting the committee report, we offer also an individual report by former Senator J. Harold Swan, who was a member of the committee prior to his retirement from the Legislature, in which he presents his views on the entire educational program in the State.

The former Senator, having served many years in school work, felt that he should be given an opportunity to express his personal observations.

The report follows:

May 18, 1945

To the Members of the Senate of the State of California:

Report and Recommendations of Senator John Harold Swan, Member of Senate Interim Committee on Public Education, Fifty-fifth Session

INTRODUCTION

The report which follows is submitted at this time because my term as a member of the California State Senate expired on January 8, 1945. The other members of the Interim Committee on Public Education, Senators Biggar, Chairman, Slater, Quinn, and Jespersen, have not completed their present terms or have been reelected to new terms.

The committee has not been able to devote as much time to its investigations and deliberations as they had hoped or as is necessary in order to make the sort of comprehensive survey which should be made at this time. All of the Members of the Interim Committee have demonstrated friendship for public education, and every member served in the sincere desire to aid public education and to improve the schools by making constructive suggestions wherever needed. The committee as a whole is genuinely interested in avoiding any criticism of individuals or institutions that is unfair or unkind. Speaking as a teacher and legislator I can personally testify that my four associates on the committee have a deep understanding of the fundamental problems of public education and have always manifested the sincerest interest in and good will toward the California schools.

The committee held several formal hearings where testimony was taken down under oath, and individual members have themselves conducted investigations and have made a real effort to secure the facts about public education in California. This report is based upon a considerable amount of research into curriculum trends and related matters, in which I have had the valuable assistance of Mr. Bert B. Meek, Jr., a third year graduate student in the School of Jurisprudence at the University of California. He has gone through thousands of items in order to afford background and perspective for the recommendations here made. The conclusions reached and the recommendations made are not, however, matters for which any responsibility can be shifted to him. I desire to acknowledge also the assistance of the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of California in locating educational publications and material.

The report is the report of only one member of the Interim Committee; it is not a minority report; it is an individual report, made at this time for the reason given, and other members of the committee are not in any way, directly or indirectly, responsible for the views expressed. The report is made in the form of recommendations with supporting data and opinion.

RECOMMENDATIONS ON PURPOSE AND GENERAL OBJECTIVES OF PUBLIC EDUCATION

- (1) A Redefining of the General Purpose of Public Education in California is Essential at This Time, if the Schools are Going to Render the Service to the People of the State for Which the People are Now Paying Hundreds of Millions of Dollars Every Biennium.

Tremendous confusion exists in California as to the purpose of public education. The tendency is for professional educators and educational psychologists to speak in generalities or in the peculiar semi-literate dialect they have developed in order to confuse or at least to mystify the uninitiated and to persuade them that public education is one of the learned professions like the law or medicine. No nonsense is so dangerous as the seemingly learned nonsense of the typical schoolman who has majored in education and who believes that teaching consists in method rather than in knowledge of subject-matter. I earnestly warn the members of the legislature to avoid being ensnared or misled by these individuals, who are unfortunately the usual type of unprofessional lobbyist on educational matters.

It appears axiomatic that the schools are not the only educational agency in modern society. The family, the church, the radio, the newspaper, the public library, the lecture forum, the motion picture, and many other institutions and agencies are instrumentalities whereby knowledge and information of a vital nature are effectively disseminated. The schools should not try to do what all these other agencies do or fail to do. Yet there are professional educational advisers who insist that the schools must assume the burden of carrying on what is actually a non-school function whenever another agency of society fails in its task of performing it. The result of such a philosophy is that the schools become swamped with duties and can not perform any of them satisfactorily. The schools have enough to do if they perform the functions that are peculiar to them which no other social agency seeks to perform.

Specifically, no other agency in society has as a major objective the teaching of arithmetic or of reading. If a child does not learn to read well in school, it is almost certain that he will never learn to read well. If a child does not learn to drive a car in school, it is by no means as certain that he will never learn to drive a car. I do not seek to minimize the desirability of instruction in the operation of motor vehicles, but if the schools have to choose between teaching reading and teaching the proper operation of an automobile, obviously they should teach reading. This illustration I give to indicate the nature of the problem of curriculum in the elementary and secondary schools today. A restatement of the purpose of public education is necessary in order to prevent further over-crowding of the curriculum and essential if some pruning of the present curriculum is to be made.

(2) Definite Standards of Attainment Must be set in Fundamental Subjects and Ways of Measuring Performance Established.

One of the distressing facts about public education in California is that measured by many criteria it appears that our schools are among the best in the Nation, but measured by the most significant standard which can be applied, namely, the nature of the product, the attainment of our schools is tragically inadequate. If we listen to the reports of professional propagandists for the schools, tremendous progress has made in education; but if we ask a child to read a passage of literature aloud or to write an effective business letter in correct English, we are amazed usually at the illiteracy of the school's product.

I do not propose to enter into any extended discussion of the failure of the schools to train satisfactorily in the fundamental subjects. The evidence is overwhelming that the schools do not train any sizable percentage of students in the tool subjects competently. I do not place the blame on the teachers, nor on the administrators as a group. These persons are in the vast majority of cases sincere, intelligent, overworked, and underpaid individuals. The blame belongs on those who have infected public education with the pernicious doctrines of so-called "progressive education."

I challenge any unprejudiced citizen to make an investigation of the results of modern educational practices and to defend them as achieving desirable levels of attainment in the mastery of the fundamental subjects.

California is paying out hundreds of millions of dollars a biennium for public education, and for this stupendous expenditure is obtaining not a literate democracy, but on the contrary a group of young people who can not read, can not write, can not figure, who have no knowledge of history, of science, of literature, or of government.

I have talked with thousands of college students. They invariably express the view that the years spent in high school and in the elementary grades are practically wasted. I have talked with hundreds of parents, with thousands of teachers. Invariably they feel that something basically is wrong with modern education. This basic and cancerous malady must be excised if the people of the State of California are to get fair return for their investment in public education.

The number of unsolicited letters to members of the Interim Committee from citizens, from teachers, and from students condemning modern educational practices became so large that professional educational organizations inaugurated a campaign of letter writing to the committee to offset the unsolicited letters. I do not want to condemn public education indiscriminately. But I have based my conclusions on many, many specific instances. It would be unfair and misleading to single out any particular school district for censure. It should be unnecessary to hold an individual up to public scorn when the offenders are so numerous. Doubters should check for themselves. My report covers the schools of the State as a whole, not those of any locality.

In simple justice to the Sacramento City Schools, of whose staff I am a member, I must say that in so far as I can judge, the infection of "progressive" educational fallacies has made, comparatively speaking, little headway in Sacramento.

I desire to enter one letter in the record. It may be assumed safely, I believe, that the ablest students continue their training beyond the high school. Not all bright pupils go on to college, and not all the students who go to college are brilliant, but in the main, it is, I trust, undisputed that those who go to college are the superior ones. Any contrary assumption would result in the most untenable of conclusions. It may be assumed further that if the ablest students do not master the fundamentals, the students who have less ability and less intellectual power will fall below even the meager attainment of the superior students. In short, if the best students are illiterate, can one contend that the poorer students are literate?

With these remarks I now direct the attention of the Legislature to the following communication from Mr. Phil S. Grant, of the University of California Subject A department, which is in charge of training students deficient in the power of written expression. This letter was submitted at my request, and Mr. Grant was told that whatever he said would be included in my report. His remarks are, therefore, the expression of a considered judgment growing out of wide experience.

EXHIBIT A

Committee on Subject A
Berkeley, Calif.

January 11, 1945

Mr. J. H. Swan
Boalt Hall, University of California
Berkeley 4, California

DEAR MR. SWAN: The Committee on Subject A at Berkeley and Los Angeles gives an examination in English composition to about seven thousand students each year. Approximately half of these students fail in the examination and are then required to take a special course in English composition.

We believe that students fail in our examination because they have almost no knowledge of English grammar and therefore have no way of judging whether or not the sentences are correct. They have almost no knowledge of punctuation and frequently do not know whether they have written half a sentence, one sentence, or two sentences. The examinations also reveal the fact that at least half of the students have inadequately developed vocabularies and therefore can not read efficiently even moderately difficult prose.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) PHIL S. GRANT, Supervisor

In connection with the deficiencies revealed in the foregoing letter, I may state, that Senator Herbert Slater, a newspaperman of deep learning and wide experience, during the testimony taken by the committee frequently emphasized the inadequate training in spelling he had observed in the product of modern California schools.

One must exclaim: If the good students do not learn, how colossal must be the ignorance of the poor students!

The irony and the bitterness of these revelations is that there is no evidence to show that even the poorest student can not master the fundamentals passably well. One witness told the committee of his success in training the natives of the Philippine Islands in the use of English, where he was handicapped by most primitive facilities. I for one am positive that, if the Filipino can master English, the average California student can likewise learn to read, speak, and write English passably well!

The reaction of professional educational apologists to such facts as Mr. Grant's letter reveals is either to deny them, to admit them but to deny their significance, or to exaggerate the problems which increased school attendance has brought. No one seeks to deny the tremendous problems which confront public education, but they will not be solved by claiming that they have been solved or that what mankind has traditionally considered basic in any education is just a stupid superstitious belief that should be ignored.

(3) Professional Educators, School Administrators, School Supervisors, and Others That Talk About Training in the Fundamentals Must Be Required to DO Something About Such Training and to Demonstrate the Results of Their Efforts.

In the past when criticism of lack of training in the fundamentals has been made, an immediate outburst of protestations that fundamentals are stressed has occurred, but these protestations have unfortunately not been accompanied by changes which will insure such an emphasis on the fundamentals that improvement will necessarily result. I once introduced a bill requiring that school administrators be tested in the fundamentals in order to secure a renewal of their certificates. The storm of protest which such a suggestion raised convinced me that there is lacking a genuine interest in insisting upon the fundamentals. Surely no administrator should object to possessing the competency in the fundamentals which it is hoped the graduate of a California high school will attain!

A practical means of obtaining adequate drill in the fundamentals and a marked raising of standards would be to institute State administered examinations in several basic subjects: arithmetic and mathematics, history, English composition, general science, principles of American government. The standings of the various elementary and high schools in such examinations should be made public. If with such examinations is joined the granting of a financial bonus in the way of increased State support to such schools as place a reasonable percentage of their students in the higher passing groups, there will be a strong incentive for stressing the fundamentals, and the actual learning of students would show an amazing improvement. I recommend to the Legislature that such a plan be inaugurated. I predict that professional educational apologists will term such a plan reactionary and unworkable.

(4) The Most Essential Change Which Must Be Made in California Public Education Is the Immediate Rejection of Unworkable Educational Philosophies, and the Most Pernicious of These Is the So-Called "Progressive Education" Theory That the Experience Curriculum in Which the Pupil Does What He Thinks He Wants to Do Is the Proper Type of Curriculum, That the Pupil Knows What Is Best and That the Learning of the Ages Is Nonsense.

I do not care to write an essay on the evils of the philosophy of so-called "progressive education" in California. But the evidence is irrefutable that the leadership in elementary education in California is poisoned by the fallacies of this school of thought. It is the evil in this pernicious doctrine that I attack, and not the proponent of the destructive ideas. It is to be regretted that some may mistake an appraisal of the writings and activities of an individual as an attack upon the individual personally. I disaffirm any intention to censure the individual. The individual is in many quarters recognized as an able, intelligent educational leader. In my judgment this particular individual is leading in the wrong direction, and until such leadership is changed, elementary education will be in an increasingly desperate plight. I, therefore, recommend an immediate change in the chief of the Division of Elementary Education in the State Department of Education.

What is wrong with elementary education in California? The answer to this question can be given by asking and answering a further question: What is being taught and what is commended as fine teaching in the elementary schools?

I urge all serious friends of public education in California to read the writings of the Chief of the Division of Elementary Education, State Department of Education. A person of common sense will, I predict, stagger away from such an experience bewildered, amazed, and perplexed. I will cite two brief extracts from recent articles by this individual which are typical. The first selection is from an article entitled "What Practices Are Defensible in Education in Time of Crisis?" published in The National Elementary Principal for April, 1941. Bear in mind that in the first selection the writer is talking about second grade pupils.

"A second grade group engaged in a study of wholesale markets became deeply concerned with the lives of the drivers of produce trucks. In their class discussions, they showed insight into the hazards of the health of drivers and the safety of the public, when excessively long hours of monotonous driving are necessary in order to deliver perishable produce to the wholesale market. Another primary group showed similar concern in the conditions surrounding the workers in a neighboring celery field. Such illustrations are legion. Important social and economic aspects of major areas of experience can be understood by even young children, and the elementary school falls far short of its responsibility in time of crisis if it neglects guiding children into sound economic and social orientation." (Italics supplied.)

The individual who wrote the foregoing testified under oath before our Senate Interim Committee that simple arithmetic processes should be postponed beyond the second grade because of their difficulty!

I want to know how second-graders can understand "important social and economic aspects of major areas of experience" when they haven't learned to read, to write, or to add and subtract because such processes are too difficult. I am a liberal; my voting record will demonstrate that I customarily vote with liberals. But I want a child of mine to learn to read and to write before his second grade teacher tries to guide him "into sound economic and social orientation." By the way, just what is "sound economic and social orientation"?

The second excerpt from the writings of this Division Chief I choose because it illustrates the typical educational jargon and mumbo-jumbo which professional educators far too frequently employ. Notice that the writer is discussing good procedure in the elementary schools and cites as an example the case of a second-grade teacher. Observe, too, that these second-grade phenomenals had made a "broad community life study during the previous year". The article, which should be read in its entirety, appeared in the Thirteenth Yearbook, published by the California Elementary School Principals' Association.

"The elementary teacher performs one of her major functions when she creates an environment of objects in such dynamic relationship that they extend and enrich meanings and stimulate the formation of purposes. We may take, for example, the case of a second-grade teacher who decided that her groups of seven-year-olds would be interested in a somewhat intensive study of trains, following a broad community life study during the previous year. She chose this area of experience because she believed (1) it was sufficiently broad and comprehensive to provide for a wide variety of individual and group enterprises, (2) it would involve a considerable exploration of the community during which understanding of social relationships would be increased, (3) it would provide for a sequential development and extension of interests and needs."

I want to say this to the author of the foregoing: If you will teach my son how to write his name and to read simple passages in the old McGuffey primer, I will buy him a wonderful electric train with extra track, switch towers, tunnels, and bridges and will explore the social relationships of the community with him in the rumpus room after dinner each evening while we operate the train. Since I am paying taxes for the schools, it does not seem quite fair for you to have the sport of playing with the train and for me to teach my son to read and to write in the evening when I could be having fun with the train and helping him with social relationships.

The educational philosophy which is illustrated in the foregoing selections is wrecking California schools. Obviously, those who advocate such nonsense must be promptly eliminated from positions of power and influence.

- (5) The number of professional courses in education required for teaching and administrative credentials should be drastically reduced, and requirements of competency in subject-matter and general cultural attainments or special skills or trade experience substituted.

The domination which schools of education and education departments in teachers' colleges now possess over public education comes as a consequence of the statutory requirements that must be met by those seeking credentials. Far too many units in pedagogy are now required. I have yet to meet an excellent teacher, and I have talked with thousands, who did not sincerely feel that many of the required courses in education are a sheer waste of time. The advice which I give to those who dispute this statement is to take the courses themselves and find out just how terrible they can be! The most cruel and diabolical punishment that could be devised for the personnel of a school of education would be to require its members to take and to pass each other's courses!

A complete revision of credential requirements should not be postponed, but should be worked out during the present session. I am convinced that the whole matter of credentials can be solved by two simple amendments to the Education Code:

- (1) Give authority to the Commission of Credentials to set a requirement for any credential of not more than ten units of professional courses in education, and authority to specify the courses.
- (2) Require the major teaching subject department of the candidate for a credential to approve the candidate's competency in the teaching subject. Administrators should be required to establish competency in some teaching subject other than education.

The proper function of schools of education or of departments of education is research in teaching problems under the direction of the subject departments of universities and colleges.

RECOMMENDATIONS ON ORGANIZATION

- (1) The Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction should continue to be elective.

Professional educators with little sense of political reality frequently have advocated that the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction should be made appointive. The argument is advanced that by making the office appointive abler superintendents will be secured and political influences eliminated from the office. Recently this suggestion has been revived, coupled with a fake, farcical device that is labelled an elective Board of Education. The problem is simple: If the schools and their direction in California are to be under the control of the people at all, either the Superintendent or the Board of Education must go to the people in a real, democratic election. Manifestly it is ridiculous to expect ten members of a Board of Education, who do not receive a per diem apart from actual travelling expenses, to carry the expense of a state-wide election or even the expense of a campaign in two or three congressional districts. If the State Board of Education were elective, its personnel might quickly become the "stooges" of the book trust or of some special interest group. Making the office elective in name but not in fact, as has been proposed, would be a fraud upon the voters.

Since the impracticality of making the State Board of Education elective appears obvious, the only alternative, if the people of California are to have anything to say about the direction of the schools, is to continue the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction as an elective one.

It is no dispraise of the superintendents of our large city school systems to state that through the years the Superintendents of Public Instruction have been the equal of or superior to these appointive officials. It is extremely doubtful whether making the office appointive will bring abler men to it. Those who advocate taking the schools from the people by making the Superintendency appointive and the Board also appointive with a fake election subsequent to appointment are no friends of democracy and do a grave disservice to the schools.

- (2) The salary of the Superintendent of Public Instruction should be fixed at $10,000.

The present salary of the Superintendent of Public Instruction is $5,000. Most city superintendents receive larger salaries. One is reputed to receive $14,000 per year. A careful survey made by my research assistant, Mr. Meek, discloses that States of comparable population to California pay from $9,000 to $15,000. New Jersey and New York pay $15,000. Pennsylvania pays $12,000. Illinois and Massachusetts pay $9,000. Paying a larger salary will not secure a better superintendent, any more than paying members of the Legislature $10,000 per year will secure better legislators than California now has, but at least providing an adequate salary will more fairly remunerate the incumbent for his services. $10,000 seems to be the minimum which California should pay for the position. The salary obviously should be determined by considerations of the nature of the position, wholly apart from any personalities.

- (3) The State Board of Education should consist of ten members appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate for ten year terms, three members of which should be actual class room teachers, or actual public school administrators. Professors of education should be ineligible to membership.

The present State Board of Education consists of ten members appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate for four year terms. The terms should be lengthened so that members may have the opportunity to learn their responsibilities and to exercise them with some time perspective. Under the present arrangement, unless special meetings are called, a board member meets only twelve times during his entire term of office.

Since the administration of Gov. James Rolph the membership of the State Board of Education has comprised some teachers or school administrators. Every governor since Governor Rolph has continued this splendid practice, but unfortunately Governor Warren has yielded to the practically unanimous demand of "educators" and educational advisers that the State Board of Education be composed entirely of lay members. This abandonment of a most desirable precedent is regrettable and dangerous.

I readily admit that the literature and pronouncements of educational oracles on the subject agree that it is inadvisable for the State Board of Education to contain members who know by reason of training and daily experience anything about the problems they have to decide. This theory of necessity makes all the lay members dependent entirely upon professional advice rendered by the subordinates they are by law obligated to direct.

Teacher members on the State Board of Education have uncovered racketeering in credentials, improper transactions in the awarding of textbook contracts, unethical practices of members of the State Department of Education with regard to extra employment, and other conditions which would never have come to light under an entirely lay State Board of Education. Interested individuals should, for instance, consult former teacher members concerning the astounding case of the truck-driver's wife, a saga of sex and intrigue. In this instance an attractive brunette, though not even a high school graduate, secured many credentials, apparently through the intervention of a high state official, who always desired her working near him.

Teacher members are able to give advice of a professional nature that is based on actual classroom experience and that is free from much of the fantastic, unrealistic mumbo-jumbo fed the State Board of Education by professors of education and educational psychologists who lack the knowledge of children which the average parent of ordinary common sense soon acquires. I strongly urge, therefore, that provision be made for the presence of teachers and school administrators on the State Board of Education.

It is regrettably true that among educated people and among teachers generally professors of education and educational psychologists have been unable to earn respect or even tolerance. As a group they are undoubtedly the most illiterate and impractical and stupid individuals to be found in or connected with the whole field of public education. Only rarely does one discover a man of culture like Dean Frank Freeman, Prof. Frank W. Hart, or Prof. Fletcher H. Swift. For the sake of California schools, therefore, no professor of education should sit on the State Board of Education. My remarks may appear somewhat blunt and direct, but the Senate is entitled to know what anyone who cares to investigate can discover for himself.

No criticism can be made of the caliber of the appointees to the State Board of Education. Governors have uniformly selected men and women of ability and character who have sacrificed time and energy for the public good. The appointees of Governor Warren maintain the high standard set by previous governors.

- (4) The salaries of heads of divisions and other administrative officers in the State Department of Education should be adjusted upward in keeping with the $10,000 salary paid the superintendent of public instruction. Deputy superintendents should be able to anticipate a salary of $8,000 and heads of divisions a salary of $7,200 or $7,500.

Through the years several able public servants have been lost to the people of the State because private business or other political agencies or school districts could offer a more adequate salary. It is desirable that such able servants be encouraged to remain in public service by a just remuneration.

- (5) The Office of Administrative Adviser should be abolished and in its place another deputy superintendency created, to be compensated at the suggested rate of $8,000. This deputyship should be protected by civil service. In addition to the present duties, which are complex and manifold, this deputyship should be given the responsibility with adequate powers of obtaining general compliance with state law by School districts and by the State Department of Education.

A grave defect in the present statutory situation as it affects public education is that no method of securing compliance with law is provided that is used or that is effective.

The late Assemblyman Lee Bashore told me of astounding and deliberate evasions of the law which he had discovered. Assemblyman Charles Stream has conducted a gallant one-man fight through the years to obtain compliance of the State Department of Education with legislation on the teaching of civics and fundamentals. His lack of success in this fight is amazing in the light of the professed eagerness of the State Department of Education to work for the objectives he seeks.

I could mention many instances of flouting of the school law, but the purpose of this report is not to make enemies or to expose particular individuals or deficiencies. I am interested in preventing abuses in the future. Manifestly an able and trained attorney with a unique background of experience in school legislation would be ideally equipped to secure compliance with the provisions of the Education Code. Such an individual is the present Administrative Adviser. He should be given such a responsibility with full power commensurate with his responsibility.

- (6) The Division of Textbooks and Publications in the State Department of Education should be abolished and the few of its functions which it is desirable to retain transferred to the Division of Research and Statistics.

Among the members of the State Board of Education who professed any knowledge of the working of this division the opinion was unanimous that it has functioned in an improper and pernicious manner in influencing the selection of State textbooks. One instance of gross and almost unbelievable misfeasance was revealed in the sworn testimony presented to the Interim Committee: a text submitted for consideration for adoption was withheld from the State Board of Education, who knew nothing of the submission until after the adoption had been made. This particular incident did not occur under the present Board. At the time the members of the present Board were questioned their appointment had been so recent that they knew nothing of the functioning in detail of the State Department of Education.

- (7) The Division of Schoolhouse Planning should be provided with a budget that is at least five or six times as large as the present one and its functions expanded in preparation for the post-war schoolhouse building that will be imperative.

I have not been able to make an extensive survey of the problems of schoolhouse construction needs, but enough information has been secured to convince me that the splendid work done by this division should be tremendously enlarged. The legislature should call before it the Division Chief in charge and follow his recommendations as to his needs. Substantial saving of public funds in post-war building will surely follow if this division is given a budget that will enable it to function efficiently.

- (8) The chiefs of the Divisions of Elementary Education and of Secondary Education and the chiefs of any other divisions of the State Department of Education which are charged with enunciating policies and influencing educational practices in California should be removed from the protection of Civil Service and should serve at the pleasure of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The opportunity to control or to influence the course of development of public education in California in either the elementary or the secondary field should not be permanently in the hands of an individual who, no matter how sincere her conviction, espouses a philosophy of education that experience shows is fantastically unworkable. Yet under the protection of civil service such a condition now exists in California. Manifestly, the necessary constitutional amendments or statutes must be adopted to prevent a zealot from wrecking the California schools. It is possible that certain provisions of the State civil service amendment have worked to the harm of the State in other fields of State action; and interested groups should combine their efforts in order jointly to eliminate these defects without in any way undermining State civil service, for which I have consistently fought.

- (9) A more precise definition of the relationship between the State Board of Education and the State Department of Education should be made, so that the authority and responsibility of each will be clear.

The vigilance of the Senate Education Committee at the 1943 session of the legislature prevented an attempt by the State Department of Education to amend the Education Code in a way to deprive the incoming State Board of Education of much of its power. The attempt was made by the State Department without any notice to the State Board of Education whatever, and the hearing on the measures emphasized the necessity for clarification in this field. The present Board of Education indicated by their testimony when before the Senate Interim Committee that they are aware of this problem and are working on it. It is anticipated that a satisfactory solution should be adopted at the 1945 session.

III

RECOMMENDATIONS ON THE SELECTION OF ELEMENTARY TEXTBOOKS AND ON OTHER TOPICS

- (1) The present system of selecting and adopting textbooks should be radically changed in order to effect a saving of money for the State and in order to eliminate the domination of educational faddists.

Article IX, Section 7 of the California State Constitution gives to the State Board of Education full authority over the adoption and printing of elementary textbooks. As a matter of actual practice, however, the State Board of Education now is a mere rubber-stamp for the Curriculum Commission, a hand-picked group of "educators" nominated by the Superintendent of Public Instruction and approved as a matter of form by the State Board of Education, since the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and he alone, determines which names shall be submitted to the Board for approval. The State Board of Education when it permits such a delegation of power to the Curriculum Commission would appear to be sanctioning an unconstitutional shifting of power.

Under the Education Code the theory is that the Curriculum Commission shall act as a group of educational experts in the evaluation of textbooks and that its advice is not binding upon the State Board of Education. The board is supposed to hear the report of the Curriculum Commission, and after this report is given to open the bids submitted and ascertain the cost of the proposed adoption. A supplemental report is then secured from the Curriculum Commission, which is invariably to the effect that notwithstanding greater cost the text given first recommendation or the only recommendation by the Commission is the text that is educationally obligatory. In one instance a text that was practically identical with the text in use was rated only 20 points out of 1,000 points under the first selection; so that, according to former members of the Board of Education testifying before the Interim Committee under oath, retention of the text in use could well have been accomplished without any educational harm and at a saving of over $100,000. It would appear obvious to the layman that the margin of error normally would be more than 20 points out of 1,000, which is, on the scale of 100, only 2 points. Yet this difference was considered so vital by the Curriculum Commission in the adoption of an arithmetic that the expensive process of a radically new adoption was demanded and achieved.

The criticism of the present procedure in textbook selection and formal adoption centers around the following three points:

- (1) Grave doubts as to its constitutionality,
- (2) The "stooge" position of the State Board of Education in okaying the recommendations of the Curriculum Commission,
- (3) The ineffective control even over price which the Board as a matter of actual fact possesses.

The most recent adoption of importance was that of the so-called "Science" series. It was somewhat farcical to hear board member after board member testify under oath before the Interim Committee that the adoption was made at the first meeting of the new Warren Board with no real knowledge on the part of the members as to what they were doing, except as they invariably stated, relying on the recommendation of the Curriculum Commission. It is still unexplained why an expensive science adoption, the first of such a kind in the history of the state in the words of the State Superintendent, was made, when the subject is not a statutory one and when the pupils for years have been without readers.

In the past the Curriculum Commission used to indulge in the fiction that all their recommendations to the State Board of Education were unanimous. They had a rule that majority votes on textbook preferences were to be reported to the State Board as the unanimous recommendation of the Curriculum Commission. Of course, the result of such duplicity and trickery was to increase public pressure on the State Board to follow the recommendation of the Curriculum Commission.

It should be remembered that the members of the Curriculum Commission are all selected by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. When the Superintendent of Public Instruction also intervenes with the Governor to advise or consult with the Governor concerning appointments to the State Board of Education whose members confirm the Superintendent's nominees to the Curriculum Commission, it is at once apparent that the Superintendent, who serves with the Curriculum Commission at its meetings and deliberations, has practically unlimited power to dictate what textbooks shall be adopted in California. The possibility of such power being in the hands of one man should not be tolerated. I do not here charge that the incumbent Superintendent of Public Instruction is controlled in any fashion by the "book trust." I am trying to indicate that the present system is unsatisfactory from many points of view.

I strongly urge that the present session of the State Legislature remedy the abuses in the present method of selection and adoption of elementary textbooks.

- (2) The up-grading of material in California textbooks should be stopped immediately.

One of the amazing impudences of the "progressive educationalists" who have strongly influenced textbook adoption in California is the fad of "up-grading" material, by which is meant postponing material which textbook authors and publishers have found that students all over the United States can master at a certain grade level to a higher grade level for California students. To illustrate: What the pupils in Kentucky can learn in the fourth grade, the pupils in California must wait until the fifth or sixth grade to have the opportunity to learn. In short, grade placement of material in a textbook series has been tampered with in California adoptions to an astounding degree on the theory that students must not start too early to learn anything! I can not take the time of members of the Senate to show the ramifying viciousness of this attitude, but I warn them that under the present system of textbook adoption it is the means whereby a cruel hoax is perpetrated on the children of California. What the school children of other States learn much earlier must because of some unfounded fantastic dogma of the educational faddists be postponed in California schools to a later grade. Such is the sworn testimony of former members of the State Board of Education, themselves educators.

I must commend the parochial schools of the State of California for their splendid work in the fundamental subjects and for their freedom from the demoralizing experimental fads of the "progressive educationalists." I have, of course, not had the opportunity to investigate in detail the curriculum of the parochial schools, and it is obvious that officially the committee was not entrusted with that task. But incidentally in the course of my investigation comparisons were possible and inescapable, and I was pleased to discover that the so-called infirmities of California school children are not the infirmities of the children at all, for they learn when properly taught, as shown by the experience of the parochial schools, but are the defects of the methods of teaching forced upon competent teachers, but teachers helpless to protest.

- (3) The State Legislature should insist that all textbooks required to be furnished under State laws to elementary school pupils be furnished and should make appropriations therefor. It may be necessary and desirable to impeach certain school officials if the present neglect of this constitutional obligation continues.

As evidence of the outrageous condition now existing in California elementary schools, I offer in evidence the following communication from one of my constituents, an outstanding schoolman, Dan H. Reese of Elk Grove, Sacramento County. His letter was published in the Sacramento Bee of March 22, 1945.

"Editor of The Bee:

Sir: Since my recent letter to The Bee regarding the failure of the State Department of Education to furnish needed textbooks for the elementary schools in California, I have received many letters, cards and telephone calls asking that I state more clearly the situation regarding this basic dereliction of so vital a duty in the education of our youth. Here are the facts in simple language:

English: No text furnished for grades 4, 5, 6 or 8.

History: No text furnished for any of the grades.

Civics and United States Constitution: No text furnished for any of the grades. (Yet, State laws requires pupil to pass examination in civics before diploma of graduation may be granted.)

Geography: No text furnished for any of the grades.

Arithmetic: No text furnished for the eighth grade.

Literature: Text furnished for one half of pupils enrolled in Grade 7 and Grade 8.

Reading: One text furnished for one half of pupils in each grade and a different text furnished for the other half of the same grade.

Science: Text furnished for one half of pupils enrolled in each grade, except in grades 1 to 3, where 20 copies are allotted to each school district.

Health: Text furnished for one half pupils enrolled in grades 4 to 8, inclusive; in grades 1 to 3, no text furnished.

The above information presents a picture of a most deplorable condition existing in the California school system. It is resented by all elementary teachers, principals and superintendents. The children of our State are the losers, and the whole situation cries to high heaven for direct and definite action. The Legislature is in session, and now is the time.

DAN H. REESE, Elk Grove."

The tragic irony of the present failure to supply elementary textbooks is only properly understood when one realizes that in 1941 and again in 1943 huge textbook appropriations were made. In 1941 Assemblyman Cain and I personally arranged a hearing before Governor Olson and members of the Finance Department on the subject of textbook appropriations. I instructed the representatives of the State Department of Education to prepare a complete list of all needs. After the conference these particular individuals were enthusiastic in their expressions that for the first time a full program of textbook adoptions had been provided for. Where are the books today? In view of the magnitude of the recent unprecedented adoption of a so-called "science series" in a non-statutory subject, it would not appear correct to contend that the war has made it impossible to secure good texts!

(4) The Petty Tyranny and Dictatorship of State College Presidents Must Be Completely and Permanently Ended.

The faculties of the State colleges have no real tenure protection and have been at the mercy of tyrannical administrators. Several most distressing incidents of unprofessional conduct on the part of college administrators have been brought to my attention, and I therefore recommend most strongly that the power of the State college presidents over the tenure of members of State college faculties should be taken entirely away. Properly established faculty committees should administer all tenure problems.

In the sound administration of the State colleges more discretion in budgetary controls must be given to the State Department of Education and by it delegated to the proper college officials. At the present time all purchases and other budgetary matters clear through the Department of Finance. The consequence is that delay and inefficiency inevitably result with no compensating advantages.

- (5) Arbitrary requirements established by local boards of education with reference to salary increases or promotion should not be permitted to undermine tenure protection given competent teachers.

Certain language in the recent case of Rible v. Hughes lends support to the view that legislation is needed to protect the salaries of tenure teachers from arbitrary local regulations.

- (6) The committee should be continued with ample funds to engage the services of at least two full-time investigators to gather facts and to check on the claims of professional propagandists for educational faddists.

- (7) The last years of high school and the years of junior college instruction should be carefully appraised and evaluated in order to eliminate just student criticism of methods and of teacher effectiveness.

In the higher grades of the public school system a most effective means of improving instruction is the development of a sound and dependable means of obtaining and benefiting by sound student criticism. I recommend that every secondary education public school man investigate the techniques being perfected by Dr. Franz Schneider, University of California, Berkeley, California. This eminent educator has conducted experiments with student reaction sheets and has in spite of misunderstanding and much unjust and hostile attack held high the finest traditions of culture in the emphasis which he gives to the social responsibilities of education. Every high school principal, every junior college president, and every school superintendent should familiarize himself with the pioneering and brilliant contributions of Dr. Schneider in this important field of secondary and higher education.

I would close on a note of real optimism. The present superintendent of the elementary schools in the City of Roseville, California, is sincerely carrying out a well planned educational program that honestly attempts to achieve what the Education Code establishes as the course of study for elementary schools. He has been hampered by the fact that the State Department of Education officials have not complied with the plain intent of the law in many regards, but in spite of this tremendous handicap, the result of his experiment in emphasizing the fundamentals is astoundingly successful. I urge that all California take heart from this courageous example of a sincere and outstanding educator. If other school districts will emulate Roseville's achievements, California schools will easily lead the Nation!

Respectfully submitted.

JOHN HAROLD SWAN, Member Interim Committee, 55th Session

This act is hereby declared to be an emergency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of Section 1, Article IV, of the Constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such necessity:

"Since 1942 when the Commanding General of the Western Defense Command by proclamation prohibited the use of fireworks within the area of the Western Defense Command, there has been a very great reduction in the number of fires and injuries to persons on and around July 4th of each year. This record is directly attributable to the prohibition against fireworks. The proclamation of the Commanding General of the Western Defense Command, being no longer required as a matter of military necessity, has been rescinded. Unless this act shall take immediate effect the prohibition against the unregulated sale and use of firecrackers, salutes, and other explosive articles of similar nature which this act imposes in the interests of the public peace, health and safety, will not be effective on July 4, 1945, thereby continuing to permit the unregulated sale and use of such firecrackers with attendant fires and injuries to persons."

Senate Bill No. 301—An act relating to the marketing of farm products and to provide for the regulation of the unloading and handling thereof when delivered to markets.

The question being: Shall the Senate concur in the following Assembly amendments to Senate Bill No. 301?

Amendment No. 1

In line 1 of the title of the printed bill, as amended, strike out "acceptance of delivery of farm products", and insert "the marketing of farm products and to provide for the regulation of the unloading and handling thereof when delivered to markets".

Amendment No. 2

On page 1 of said bill, strike out lines 1 to 14, inclusive, and insert

"SECTION 1. As used in this act:

"Farm products" means fruits, nuts, vegetables and berries.

"Produce dealer" includes "commission merchant" and "dealer" as defined in Section 1261 of the Agricultural Code, but does not include a "broker" as defined in said section nor a "processor" as defined in Section 1299.18 of said code.

"City" includes city and county.

"Director" means the Director of Industrial Relations of the State of California.

"Market" means the places of business, collectively, of produce dealers operating in a city or the vicinity thereof and dealing in farm products intended, in whole or in part, for ultimate sale for consumption in a fresh state within the city and the vicinity thereof, but this act shall apply only to markets in which five or more produce dealers operate.

"Commissioner" means the agricultural commissioner of the county in which a market is situated.

"Registered unloader" means a person who unloads farm products in a market, but does not include a producer of farm products, or his son, father, or regularly employed employee, nor does it include the operator of any vehicle engaged in transporting farm products to market when the operation of such vehicle is subject to the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission of the State of California and when the rate charged for such transportation includes the charge for unloading the farm products so transported.

"Association" means an association of produce dealers organized to carry out the responsibilities of produce dealers imposed by this act.

"Union" means the labor union which has been recognized by the National Labor Relations Board, or other governmental agency having jurisdiction, as the bargaining agency for employees employed in a market.

SEC. 2. On and after 30 days after this act takes effect, each produce dealer operating within a market is responsible for the establishment of a scale of charges for unloading farm products transported to his place of business and for the posting and maintaining of a legible copy of such scale in a conspicuous place at his place of business where it is readily visible at all times during which farm produce is delivered to such place of business.

SEC. 3. The scale of charges shall be established as follows:

(a) If the produce dealers in a market, or a majority of such produce dealers, either individually or through group representation, have an agreement with a union the scale of charges shall be that prescribed in such agreement and approved as provided in this act. If an agreement covering any employees of produce dealers in a market does not cover persons unloading farm products the agreement shall be modified to cover such persons.

(b) If there is no such union, the scale of charges shall be fixed by the produce dealers operating within the market.

In either event, the scale of charges shall be subject to the approval of the director.

SEC. 4. Upon the determination of a scale of charges for a market, the scale of charges shall be transmitted to the director. The director shall examine such scale and shall compare it with any available information relative to the charges for similar work performed under similar conditions in the city in or for which the market is operated. The director may take into consideration any and all factors relevant to the determination of the reasonableness of such charges, including any rates of the Railroad Commission for the performance of work of a similar nature.

SEC. 5. If the director determines that the scale of charges is not unreasonable he shall approve the scale and thereafter the scale of charges shall be the standard charge for unloading farm products in the market.

SEC. 6. If the director finds that the scale of charges is unreasonable he shall fix a time and place for a hearing on the matter. Notice of such hearing shall be mailed to each producer dealer operating in the market and to the officials of the union if a union is involved. The director may also notify any or all producers of farm products delivered to the market. At the hearing the director shall consider any relevant matters that may be presented and at or after the conclusion of such hearing he shall so adjust the scale or any item thereof so that the scale is not unreasonably higher than the prevailing rate for similar work performed under similar conditions in the city or its vicinity. The scale of charges so established shall be the standard charge for unloading farm products in the market. Any scale of charges established pursuant to this act may be modified from time to time in accordance with the method and procedure prescribed for establishing such scale. No person shall charge or receive any payment for unloading farm products in excess of the standard charge established for the market.

SEC. 7. Every person who unloads farm products in a market and who is within the definition of a "registered unloader" as defined in this act shall register his name and address and union affiliation, if any, with the commissioner. The commissioner shall supply each registered unloader with a card of registration. Each registered unloader shall carry such card at all times while employed or seeking employment in unloading farm products in a market. No person within the definition "registered unloader" shall unload any farm products in a market unless registered as provided in this act.

SEC. 8. Every producer who transports farm products to a market may register himself, his father, and any or all of his sons, and regular full-time employees with the commissioner. Such registration shall show the name of the producer, the registration number and other means of identification of his own personally owned vehicles, and the relationship of the registrant to the producer. Nothing in this act prohibits a person so registered from unloading his own farm products from a vehicle as to which he is so registered, and no such person shall be required to employ any other person to unload or assist in unloading such farm products. The commissioner shall supply each such registrant with an appropriate card, which the registrant must carry at all times while engaged in unloading farm products at a market.

SEC. 9. Every produce dealer operating in a market has the responsibility of providing that registered unloaders sufficient in number to do the work required shall be available at all times when farm products are being delivered to his place of business. He shall also be responsible for having on hand at his place of business at all such times a responsible person to receipt for farm products unloaded at his place of business.

SEC. 10. In order to facilitate the carrying out of their responsibilities under this act the produce dealers operating in a market may organize an association. No shareholders shall be permitted to withdraw whose shares are pledged to the association as security for a loan until such loan is fully paid. Whenever the demands of withdrawing shareholders exceed the money applicable to their payment, the notices of intention to withdraw must be registered in the order of filing and while such association is on notice payments thereon must be made in succession in the order that such notices were filed and registered. The remaining one-half of net receipts of such association may be used, in the discretion of the board of directors, for payment of withdrawals with respect to which notice has not been filed, subject to such limitations as the board of directors may fix, and for the operating expenses of the business and for making loans to members, or applied, in the discretion of the board of directors, to payment of withdrawals on notice. [Such association shall at no time be on a pro rata basis, except as hereinafter provided.]

All new investments by shareholders after such association is on notice, whether made upon shares already issued or upon new shares issued, shall have priority and shall have a prior right of withdrawal as against all other shareholders.

Whenever an application for withdrawal of free shares shall have been on file, or the payment of matured shares demanded, and either shall have remained unpaid for a period of one year, all the receipts of such association from dues, interest, premium, loans repaid, and the proceeds of all other investments, shall, after the payment of expenses and general indebtedness, be applied toward the payment of withdrawals and maturities [; and the board of directors or the commissioner may direct that such payments be made upon a ratable and proportionate basis]. Whenever such application or demands, whether heretofore or hereafter made, have been on file and remain unpaid in whole or in part for more than two years the commissioner may in his discretion forthwith take possession of the property and business of such association, and retain such possession until its affairs be finally liquidated in the manner provided by law for the liquidation of associations by him, or until such association may be allowed to resume business upon such conditions as may be approved by the commissioner."

June 8, 1945

*Honorable Thomas McCormack, Chairman, Transportation Committee,
State Senate, Sacramento, California.*

DEAR SENATOR MCCORMACK: Your subcommittee appointed for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon the various bills introduced in this session providing for the inclusion of new or additional highways in the State Highway System, and to define a policy in regard to action on these bills in connection with present fiscal conditions in the Highway Department of the State, and to study the feasibility of freeways in the State of California, beg to submit our unanimous conclusion as follows:

According to information obtained by us from the Department of Public Works, Division of Highways, an analysis of the bills presented at this session suggested additions to the Highway System and the freeway bills given consideration are as follows:

Senate Bill No. 86—Senator Biggar
Senate Bill No. 184—Senator Donnelly
Senate Bill No. 185—Senator Donnelly

Assembly Bill No. 216—Mr. Evans
Assembly Bill No. 418—Mr. Beck
Assembly Bill No. 441—Messrs. Anderson et al.
Assembly Bill No. 472—Mr. Lowrey
Assembly Bill No. 493—Messrs. Burkhalter and Lyon
Assembly Bill No. 494—Mr. Burkhalter

Assembly Bill No. 1149—Messrs. O'Day et al.
Assembly Bill No. 1150—Messrs. O'Day et al.
Assembly Bill No. 1165—Messrs. O'Day et al.
Assembly Bill No. 1166—Messrs. O'Day et al.
Assembly Bill No. 1183—Messrs. O'Day et al.
Assembly Bill No. 1854—Mr. Dickey

Assembly Bill No. 1954—Mr. O'Day
Assembly Bill No. 1955—Mr. O'Day
Assembly Bill No. 2154—Mr. Crowley

Consideration was also given to the freeway bills:

Assembly Bill No. 1350—Mr. Stream et al. and Senate Bill No. 756—Senator Breed et al.

Even though under normal conditions the construction of some of these roads might tie in perfectly with the present plans of expansion by the Highway Department in the normal development of the Highway System, it is nevertheless the opinion of your committee that at no time in recent years would it be more inadvisable to recommend additions to the State Highway System than now.

The subcommittee further recommends a thorough and complete study of the needs in this State for street and highway improvements, including:

- 1st—Modernization of present State highways;
- 2d—Additions to State Highway System;
- 3d—Improvement of county roads and city streets for access purposes;
- 4th—Freeways or limited access highways;
- 5th—An overall, coordinated highway program for California.

To this end we recommend Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 27 or a similar resolution amended to include a study of State, county and city highway needs.

Respectfully submitted.

Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for this day which directs our attention to the Flag which has spoken so eloquently in many scenes of war and peace, for liberty, courage and patriotism.

As we serve in this Legislature may this Flag ever remind us of our individual opportunities for patriotic service. Grant guidance and blessing to all who serve in places of leadership and responsibility in State and Nation. Our special prayer is for those who serve with the armed forces that they, too, may be inspired by this Flag.

God bless our dear United States,
Preserve our land from evil fates,
Lift high her banner fair and free,
And guard her bounds from sea to sea.

Assailed by battle hosts of wrong,
God help our country to be strong,
Assailed by falsehood's crafty crew,
God help our country to be true.

God hold the Nation's aim sincere,
God save her heart from coward fear,
God prosper her in true success,
And crown her head with worthiness.—AMEN.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO 14, June 13, 1945

*To the Honorable Members of the Senate
State of California, Sacramento, California*

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith without my signature

Senate Bill No. 419, entitled: "An act to amend Section 2160 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, relating to aid to aged persons, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately.

My objections are as follows:

This bill was originally introduced to make it possible for a few individuals whose citizenship has been questioned to receive the benefits of aged aid. The author of the bill has written me requesting a veto because of the fact that revised estimates place the annual cost to the State at a figure much larger than originally anticipated. Accordingly I am returning the bill without my approval.

Respectfully submitted,

EARL WARREN, Governor

CONSIDERATION OF DAILY FILE (RESUMED)

THIRD READING OF ASSEMBLY BILLS (RESUMED)

Assembly Bill No. 1799—An act to add Section 19400 to the Government Code, relating to employees reinstated after military leave.

Bill read third time.

Motion to Amend

Senator Seawell moved the adoption of the following amendments:

Amendment No. 1

Strike out line 2 of the title of the printed bill, as amended, and insert "to public officers and employees and to their reinstatement after military service, declaring the urgency hereof, to take effect immediately."

Amendment No. 2

On page 2 of said bill, after line 23, insert

"SEC. 2. Whenever, heretofore or hereafter, by any law of this State a public officer or employee is entitled to return to, or to be reinstated in, his office or employment within a specified period after his separation from the military service of the United States, including any uniformed auxiliary of such service, and in connection with his separation he is required to furnish, and does furnish, evidence that he will engage in civilian work of a specified category and subsequent to his discharge he does engage in such work, such officer or employee shall be deemed to be separated from such military service for purposes of such return or reinstatement and all rights and privileges connected therewith as of the date upon which he terminated such civilian work."

SEC. 3. This act is hereby declared to be urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution and shall therefore go into immediate effect. A statement of facts constituting such necessity is as follows:

A doubt has been expressed as to the time of separation in certain cases from the military service of the United States for the purposes of return or reinstatement in public offices and employments, including those of the State, counties, cities, municipal corporations, political subdivisions, public districts, and other public agencies of the State. The Legislature hereby declares that Section 2 of this act is intended not as a change in, but as a statement and declaration of the law as the Legislature intended it to be prior to the enactment of this act. To resolve any doubt and to avoid any delay in the reinstatement and reemployment of public officers and employees who have served in the military service, it is necessary that this act take effect immediately, but no inference is to be drawn herefrom that the law prior to the enactment of Section 2 of this act differed in any manner from the provisions of that section."

Amendments read and adopted.

5. The committee has the following additional powers and duties:

(a) To select a chairman and a vice chairman from its membership.

(b) To cooperate with and secure the cooperation of county, city, city and county, and other local law enforcement agencies in investigating any matter within the scope of this resolution and to direct the sheriff of any county to serve subpoenas, orders and other process issued by the committee.

(c) To report its findings and recommendations to the Legislature and to the people from time to time and at any time, not later than herein provided.

(d) To do any and all other things necessary or convenient to enable it fully and adequately to exercise its powers, perform its duties, and accomplish the objects and purposes of this resolution.

6. The sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby made available from the Contingent Fund of the Senate for the expenses of the committee and its members and for any charges, expenses or claims it may incur under this resolution, to be paid from the said Contingent Fund of the Senate and disbursed, after certification by the chairman of the committee, upon warrants drawn by the State Controller upon the State Treasurer.

Resolution read, and referred to Committee on Rules.

PRINTING OF REPORT IN JOURNAL

Pursuant to the motion of Senator Tenney, made on June 13, 1945, the following report of the Joint Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American Activities in California, was ordered printed in the Journal of this date.

REPORT OF THE JOINT FACT-FINDING COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES IN CALIFORNIA

Introduction

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, and Members of the Legislature:

Your Joint Fact-Finding Committee Investigating Un-American Activities in California pursuant to Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 59, herewith submits its final report on investigations conducted throughout the State during 1943 and 1944:

AUTHORIZATION

The Joint Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American Activities in California was created pursuant to Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 59, filed with the Secretary of State, May 12, 1943. This committee was instructed to "investigate, ascertain, collate and appraise all facts causing or constituting interference with the National Defense Program in California or rendering the people of the State, as a part of the Nation, less fit physically, mentally, morally, economically or socially," and to "investigate the activity of groups and organizations whose membership includes persons who are members of the Communist Party, the Fascist Organizations, the German Nazi Bund, or any other organization known or suspected to be dominated or controlled by a Foreign power, which activities affect the conduct of this State for National defense, the functioning of any State agency, unemployment relief and other forms of public assistance, educational institutions of this State supported in whole or in part by State funds, or any political program." Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 59 authorized the committee to act during the 1943 Session of the Legislature, and until the convening of the Fifty-sixth Legislature in 1945 and "to meet either during sessions of this Legislature (1943) or during any recess hereof in any and all places in this State, in public or executive session," and "to file reports with the Legislature during the Fifty-fifth Session thereof or any special extraordinary session thereof, and to file its final report with the Fifty-sixth Legislature."

Pursuant to the provisions of the resolution, the Committee on Rules of the Senate appointed Senator Hugh M. Burns of Fresno County and Senator Jack B. Tenney of Los Angeles County, and the Speaker of the Assembly appointed Assemblyman Nelson S. Dilworth, Dr. Jesse Randolph Kellems of Bel-Air, and Randal F. Dickey of Alameda, as members of the committee. In compliance with the provisions of the resolution the members of the committee, at its organizational meeting, elected Senator Jack B. Tenney as chairman.

ACTIVITIES OF THE COMMITTEE

The accumulated testimony of witnesses since the Joint Fact-Finding Committee was first organized in 1941 now consists of 5,387 typewritten pages, contained in 24 transcript volumes. Exhibits, introduced in connection with the testimony of witnesses, are voluminous. Many pamphlets, circulars, newspapers and magazines have been added to committee records.

Mr. R. E. Combs of Visalia was unanimously selected by the committee members to continue as chief investigator. Additional investigators were hired from time to time. Thomas L. Cavett did special work for the committee and Mr. W. Bruce Pine of Los Angeles continued his voluntary services in special phases of the committee's investigations. The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Anti-Defamation League and many patriotic and fraternal organizations rendered the committee, its members and its investigators, invaluable services. Many individuals, who desire to be unnamed, and many patriotic organizations, cooperated and worked with the committee, its members and investigators.

The members of the committee, following the policy laid down by the committee in 1941, were continually mindful of the sensationalism of all alleged subversive activities and endeavored in every way to conduct public hearings with dignity and restraint.

The committee, as heretofore, cooperated closely with the intelligence units of the armed forces, with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and with State and Federal agencies.

The press of the State of California continued to be an important adjunct to the work of the committee and, for the greater part, reported the committee's public hearings and investigations with accuracy.

JAPANESE PROBLEMS IN CALIFORNIA

In both the first and second reports of the committee, the Japanese problem was reported on and discussed at some length. Since the filing of the second report, the "Final Report Japanese Evacuation from the West Coast 1942," by Lieutenant General J. L. DeWitt, has been released as a public document. It is a 618 page book, published by the United States Government Printing Office, Washington. Due to the reports' official and military status the committee feels it is its duty to quote at some length therefrom; and due to the wide public interest in the relocating of the Japanese aliens and Japanese Americans, the committee feels that it is its duty to give to the Legislature and the public a cross-section of public opinion as represented in the Daily Press, the same being news items and editorials from some of the principal dailies.

WAR RELOCATION AUTHORITY

In earlier reports we have criticized the War Relocation Authority for the manner in which they have handled their jurisdictional duties over the Japanese and Japanese Americans. During the month of May, 1945, a controversy arose between the ILWU and some of its Stockton members over the employment of what was in the beginning a "Japanese American," whose first name was given variously as "James," "Louis" and "Fukuso" Yamamoto. On June 6, 1945 it was disclosed to the press by the manager of the War Relocation Authority at Stockton that he had known at all times that Yamamoto was an alien, but that he withheld the information for the reason that he did not wish to put the union on the spot.

The following is WRA Manager Robertson's statement to the press:

“STOCKTON (San Joaquin Co.), June 6—(INS)—Disclosure that Fukuso Yamamoto, whose employment at a Stockton warehouse brought on a union dispute is an alien was not expected today to affect the suspension of the local unit of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Yamamoto's alien status was made known by John R. Robertson, War Relocation Authority manager. The Japanese at first was reported to be an American citizen.

Sixty members of the Stockton union remained suspended by the parent San Francisco local because of asserted racial discrimination toward Yamamoto. A union hearing on the discrimination charge is to be held June 17th.

Knew Man Was an Alien

Robertson said Yamamoto is presently living with a Japanese family at Acampo, Calif., and is employed in farm work.

He said he knew Yamamoto was an alien Japanese shortly after he was employed, but said nothing about it as he 'didn't want to put the union in a spot.'

The union suspension was ordered to remain effective until the Stockton warehousemen sign pledge cards, renewing their promise to uphold the union's constitution which prohibits 'racial discrimination.'

Born in Japan

Yamamoto, released May 1st from the Gila Relocation Center in Arizona, claimed he was born in 1904 in Hawaii, but his WRA record card showed he lived in Japan from 1904 to 1918.

The WRA records also show his mother was born in Japan in 1882 and remained there until 1916."

(Yamamoto's age was recorded as 41 years.) Parenthetic statement ours.

In view of the faithlessness of the WRA revealed in the INS news item just quoted, it seems that the committee has been justified in its criticism of the WRA. While this is a single incident, it is representative of the general conduct of the WRA in the administration of its jurisdictional duties. There are many shades of opinion in the public's opposition to the return of Japanese aliens and Japanese Americans to the West Coast. In the main these opinions center around the lack of public safety, and the safety of the Japanese aliens and the Japanese Americans.

PRESS EDITORIAL COMMENTS

An editorial from the Los Angeles Times, republished in the Sacramento Bee on June 7th, highlights the varied opinions:

"The grave and perplexing question of permitting the return of Japanese to the West Coast in wartime has entered a new disturbing phase, as had been anticipated.

Unpardonable violence against Japanese has occurred in a few instances. These are being magnified and distorted in Washington, D. C., and the East to give the impression that all Californians are bloodthirsty ruffians engaged in midnight raids on innocent persons.

Truth is that nearly all Californians are restraining not only themselves but any impetuous elements who threaten violence. It also is true, however, that this very air of tension was forecast by responsible elements anxious to avoid any trouble, when they urged that, as a military measure, persons of Japanese extraction be kept from the Coastal States until the war with Japan is over. The War Relocation Authority, nevertheless, insisted upon immediate return, although most of the Japanese themselves were willing, as a contribution to the war effort, to continue to absent themselves.

There has never been any question of the constitutional 'right' of American citizens of Japanese blood to return here after relaxing of military restrictions. But there was every evidence that the relaxation of army controls was forced by higher political circles.

Now that the very thing which most sober citizens here feared has begun to happen, there is no excuse for the rest of the country to slander Californians with a general condemnation of lawlessness. We deplore hoodlumism as much as anyone, but we foresaw its inevitability.

The fact is, as Ickes would learn if he took the trouble, that the great majority of the people of the Pacific Coast, while they do not welcome the return of any Japanese during wartime, are not hostile to them and deplore violence. They feel the action of the War Relocation Authority and Ickes, who heads it, in returning them is a mistake and would be a mistake even if the loyalty of every such single individual to the United States could be guaranteed. First, because it is impossible to safeguard them against the actions of hotheads, of which every community contains some; and second, because the presence of Japanese moving about freely here obviously facilitates the introduction of spies."

MORE FROM THE PRESS

A more detailed editorial from the San Bernardino, California, Sun, April 18th, 1945, reads as follows:

A Big Problem

"California has a profound interest in the loyalty of those Japanese-American citizens who are being returned to our State from concentration camps.

Their fidelity has been attested by the War Relocation Board, headed by Dillon S. Meyer, in whose judgment many do not have too much confidence. In addition, investigation has been made of these returning Japs by the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, which declares them worthy of American confidence.

Nobody can doubt the efficiency of the FBI. Its achievements with reference to the war effort are beyond adequate praise. But the question arises in most Californians' minds as to how the loyalty of Japanese-American can really be tested. It is a reasonable assumption that they share the traits of their Japanese ancestors and ancestry means a lot to a Japanese, whether he is of a second generation or the first.

Probably the California prejudice against the Japanese may be based on selfishness. Whatever sort of base it is, the questions arising therefrom will be the same, whether they are reasonable or not.

While we Americans, all of us, grant the claim upon our patience American citizens of any race or creed have a right to make, there are some facts it is impossible to ignore. One of them very strikingly is that 6,000 out of the 7,000 American-born Japanese under 17 years of age in the Tule Lake Relocation Center have applied for citizenship renunciation papers.

That means, obviously that they prefer to return to Japan rather than remain in this country.

All that is doubtless highly discouraging to many Americans and it is much too significant to be ignored. The high incidence of disloyalty among Japanese-Americans will not be surprising to many Californians because they have long suspected their Japanese-American neighbors.

It is to be hoped now that the facts recited with reference to the Tule Lake Relocation Center have impressed those Americans who have assumed fellow citizens, whether members of an alien race, are endowed with respect and admiration for the American way of life.

Apparently, those Californians who have been protesting the return of the so-called Japanese-Americans from the war relocation centers had something more than mere suspicion upon which to base their complaints. Leading the opposition in Congress to return of American-born Japanese to California is Congressman Clair Engel, of Northern California, formerly a member of the California Senate and a former district attorney. He has made an exhaustive investigation of the situation and he says this:

'We should not have to fool around with any of these Japs who have acknowledged they are disloyal, or with their families. So long as they remain in this country, they are a source of danger, for their children will become American children by reason of birth. Such citizens who have renounced their own citizenship do not promise to become assets of this country.'

To many Californians the facts recited above will not only be astonishing but shocking. That 6,000 out of 7,000 American-born Japanese in a single war relocation center prefer to be citizens of Japan rather than of this land of the free would seem to be incredible.

Precisely what there is about this democracy of ours that failed to impress these Nipponese who have been among us since birth is a grave indictment of our American system, or its application to these people, or their own racial habits of thought.

We prefer to believe it is the latter. There is no other group in our citizenship, no matter what their extraction or racial origin, in whom a similar situation might be found to exist, we feel sure.'

NEWSPAPER POLL

On May 10, 1945, the Sacramento Union conducted a street poll, which follows:

"In response to Secretary of Interior Ickes' Sunday declaration that Japanese-Americans returning to the West Coast are being terrorized, and to his appeal that residents of the West remember the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, a Union reporter yesterday put the issue to Sacramentans as he met them on the street.

'Keep the loyal ones here; deport the disloyal ones and the non-citizens' summed up the attitude of half a dozen who were interviewed.

Others favored outright deportation of all Japanese, and one man came forward with the idea of placing them all on an island, giving them representation, and saying: 'This is your home.'

Following are replies:

LT. ALLEN PANG, Honolulu, Army flyer with three stars, one while in the infantry at Pearl Harbor—I guess the younger generation are all right but I don't know about those older ones in Honolulu. Some of them were disloyal no matter what they say now. As for letting them come back to the Coast—they can come back under the law—that's all there is to it.

CHAPLAIN JOHN W. BETZOLD, Philadelphia, now at Camp Beale—They ought to come back if they're American citizens. It wasn't American citizens who caused Pearl Harbor. Unless it can be shown in a legal way that they should be deprived of their property, they should be allowed to come back to it. That is the law of our land.

M. E. GOMEZ, 1509 32d Street, theater manager—I think they should all go back to Japan. I don't think very much of them. They played dirty on us once and will again if they get the chance.

SGT. A. JOHANSON, Eureka—I've had no contact with the Japanese myself, but don't believe they should be allowed back on the coast. Some of our men say they have fought Japanese soldiers they went to school with back here. We are just educating their army.

R. B. REINBACK, Hotel Land, Assembly Sergeant-at-Arms, whose son was killed at Bougainville—I think the ones who were loyal should return; the ones who were disloyal should be barred. The loyal American citizens have that constitutional right. I'll tell you what I'd do—give them an island, give them representation and say, "This is your home."

R. P. SMITH, 2975 Marysville Road, North Sacramento, aircraft mechanic—As far as I am concerned, they don't need to come back ever. Those who don't speak English and are not citizens should be sent back to their own country; those who are American citizens in an American way—that's a different situation.

SAILOR X of Sacramento—I was in battles of Lingayen Gulf and Okinawa—Can't give my name because of restrictions.

They shouldn't be returned here. No special reason except the main one—I don't like them.

J. T. BATES, 1515 10th Street, draftsman—Those who are American citizens should be returned after the war, not now. Those who are not should be deported. I don't approve of this terrorism in California. We have law and order to take care of the situation.

FIRST LT. KENNETH KREUGER, Palo Alto, Army Air Force navigator, temporarily stationed at Camp Beale—The Japs would probably be happier if they went back to Japan. The ones who are citizens could settle down in some inland area like Denver.

MRS. KAY KARSTEN, 1017 14th Street, housewife—For our own protection, I think they should be returned to Japan.

MRS. RUTH TENER, 1231 33d Street, adjustment clerk for PGE—I don't think they should be allowed to return. When our soldiers come home, the Japs would be taking jobs our men will need. The Japs aren't American; they are Oriental and they can't assimilate into the American way of life.

MRS. INEZ WOOD, 725 Ninth Street, employed in the Department of Motor Vehicles—The Japs should never return, even the ones who are American citizens. I don't know about the legal aspects of taking their property away from them, but they shouldn't come back.

OPINION OF UNITED STATES SENATOR WARREN G. MAGNUSON

To demonstrate that the foregoing opinion is coast-wide, the following news item taken from the Seattle Post Intelligencer of April 29, 1945, quoting United States Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), follows:

“WASHINGTON, April 28.—A clear-cut National policy on Japanese residing in the United States was demanded tonight by Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.).

Magnuson said he would call on the immigration service to announce immediately after X-Day how it proposes to handle the Japanese problem. Congress can proceed from that point on, he added.

The Washington Senator has definite views on what should be done with each of several distinctive groupings of Japanese and Japanese-Americans.

Would Deport Some

‘One class of Japanese should be shipped off to Japanese territory on the first boat we can spare,’ Magnuson asserted. ‘They are the alien Japanese and the American-born Japanese who have indicated by act of implication their loyalty to Hirohito.

‘Japanese aliens not deported promptly should be held subject to deportation on the first evidence of sympathy toward Japan or of unfriendliness to this country, deportation to be consummated without involved and prolonged bureau procedures.

‘Persons of Japanese ancestry born in America should also be subject to deportation unless they attest their loyalty to the United States by formally renouncing the principle of dual citizenship.’

Magnuson explained the Japanese government considers all persons of Japanese ancestry, wherever they may be born, citizens of that country and subjects of the emperor.

'Events have proved many Japanese, although born in the United States, have considered their real allegiance is to Japan,' he said.

'On the other hand there have been Japanese-Americans, although their number is few, who long before the war went into court and legally renounced Japan's pretensions of their citizenship.

Loyalty Test Urged

" 'It is time for every Japanese-American to stand up and be counted. This country has no place either in war or in peace for anyone of questioned or questionable loyalty.' "

JAPANESE-AMERICAN SOLDIERS

The committee is mindful of the fact that the relocation of Japanese aliens and Japanese-Americans is a many-faceted problem; however, it is the complex nature of the Japanese aliens and Japanese-Americans that make it such. The committee is not unmindful of the bravery and valor of the Japanese-Americans in the army, but citing their sacrifices to bolster up public opinion in reference to disloyal Japanese-Americans only complicates the problem that these soldiers—the pick of the lot—must face in coming out into civilian life. There would be no "Japanese" problem if all of the Nisei and Kebei, or a substantial majority of them, would have taken a leaf out of the book of these soldiers who had the courage to throw aside the tradition of emperor worship.

The heretofore quoted editorial from the San Bernardino, California, Sun, and the following AP story from Phoenix, Arizona, evidences the great percentage of disloyal "Japanese-Americans":

Nisei and Kebei Draft Dodgers

"PHOENIX—(AP)—Judge Dave W. Ling of U. S. District Court upheld authority of Selective Service Boards to order induction of Japanese-Americans from relocation centers in a ruling which affected 98 youths from the Colorado River Camp at Poston, Ariz.

Ling, in a test case, found three of the youths guilty of violating the Selective Service Law by failure to report for induction. It previously had been stipulated that the ruling would apply to the 98.

Defense counsel contended Selective Service did not apply to the Japanese because most of them had been classified as enemy aliens and some had renounced American citizenship and applied for repatriation to Japan.

Of the three individual cases submitted to the court, Yashuto Fujioka and Kingo Tajii, submitted affidavits that they had asked permission to return to Japan and were prohibited from leaving the relocation center without military guard.

Hideichi Takeguma said he did not report for induction because he had been deprived of his rights as a citizen and believed he was not subject to the draft.

Attorneys said the case would be appealed to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, San Francisco."

SECRETARY ICKES

Secretary of Interior Ickes has blown hot and cold in reference to the returning of the Japanese to the West Coast. In one breath he has said that "they are being discouraged in returning until after the war." In another, he has urged them to go to their homes on the West Coast, and the War Relocation Authority has emulated the pattern set by Mr. Ickes.

EXCERPTS FROM DeWITT'S FINAL REPORT

The "DeWitt Report," at page 85, paragraph e, states:

(Keibi More Japanese Than Alien Parents)

"The typical Japanese family, therefore, consisted of Japanese-born parents who were enemy aliens, and their American-born children. Because of the Japanese custom of sending substantial numbers of their children, particularly the older children, to Japan to live with their grandparents or other relatives and to be educated as Japanese, there were in the 'citizen' group an undetermined number of Kibei. Many of these were even more Japanese in customs and loyalty than their alien parents."

Page 7 to page 19 of the "DeWitt Report" sets forth the problem of evacuation of the Japanese, as well as giving a clear and concise story of the Japanese situation which then existed—and will exist again without vigilant attention to the circumstances. The pages of the Report just referred to, read as follows:

Civil Control Evacuation Impossible

"The Commanding General, meantime, prepared and submitted recommendations for the establishment of prohibited zones in Arizona, Oregon and Washington, similar to those he had prepared for California. Upon receipt of these supplemental recommendations, forwarded by the Secretary of War, the Attorney General declined to act until further study. In the case of Washington State, the recommended prohibited zone included virtually all of the territory lying west of the Cascades. A general enemy alien evacuation from this area would have been required. More than 9,500 persons would have been affected. No agency was then prepared to supervise or conduct a mass movement, and the Attorney General was not convinced of the necessity.

As early as January 5, in a memorandum of that date to Mr. Rowe, during the initial conferences at San Francisco, the Commanding General pointed to the need for careful advanced planning to provide against such economic and social dislocations which might ensue from such mass evacuation. The point was also established that the Army had no wish to assume any aspects of civil control if there were any means by which the necessary security measures could be taken through normal civilian channels. In order to trace clearly the developments which ultimately led to Executive Order No. 9066, and the establishment of military control, that memorandum is quoted in full at the end of this chapter.

The Department of Justice had indicated informally that it did not consider itself in a position to direct any enforced migrations. The Commanding General's recommendations for prohibited zones in Washington and Oregon were therefore viewed with particular concern by the Department. Not only did it feel that such action should be predicated on convincing evidence of the military necessity, it regarded the responsibility for collective evacuation as one not within its functions."

Attorney General Refused to Accept Responsibility for Evacuation

The Attorney General, on February 9, 1942, formally advised the Secretary of War, by letter, that he could not accept the recommendation of the Commanding General for the establishment of a zone prohibited to enemy aliens in the States of Washington and Oregon of the extent proposed by him. He stated in part:

'Your recommendation of prohibited areas for Oregon and Washington include the cities of Portland, Seattle and Tacoma and therefore contemplate a mass evacuation of many thousands * * *. No reasons were given for this mass evacuation * * *. I understood that * * * Lieutenant General DeWitt has been requested to supply the War Department with further details and further material before any action is taken on these recommendations. I shall, therefore, await your further advice.'

Problem of Great Magnitude

'* * * The evacuation * * * from this area would, of course, present a problem of very great magnitude. The Department of Justice is not physically equipped to carry out any mass evacuation. It would mean that only the War Department has the equipment and personnel to manage the task.'

Civil Authorities Could Only Deal With Alien Japanese

'The proclamations directing the Department of Justice to apprehend, and where necessary, evacuate alien enemies, do not, of course, include American citizens of the Japanese race. If they have to be evacuated, I believe that this would have to be done as a military necessity in these particular areas. Such action, therefore, should in my opinion, be taken by the War Department and not by the Department of Justice.'

"The Commanding General thereafter submitted a resume of the military considerations which prompted his recommendation for a prohibited zone in Washington and Oregon embracing virtually the westerly half of those States. The Department of Justice, however, concluded that it was not in a position to undertake any mass evacuation, and declined in any event to administer such general civil control measures."

Alien and American-born Japanese Reside on Same Premises

"Meanwhile, the uncertainties of the situation became further complicated. The enforcement of contraband provisions was impeded by the fact that many Japanese aliens resided in premises owned by American-born persons of Japanese ancestry. The Department of Justice had agreed to authorize its special field agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to undertake spot raids without warrant to determine the possession of arms, cameras and other contraband by Japanese, but only in those premises occupied exclusively by enemy aliens. The search of mixed occupancy premises or dwellings had not been authorized except by warrant only."

Spot Search Revealed Munitions and Maps

"In the Monterey area in California a Federal Bureau of Investigation spot raid made about February 12, 1942, found more than 60,000 rounds of ammunition and many rifles, shotguns and maps of all kinds. These raids had not succeeded in arresting the continuance of illicit signaling. Most dwelling places were in the mixed occupancy class and could not be searched promptly upon receipt of reports. It became increasingly apparent that adequate security measures could not be taken unless the Federal Government placed itself in a position to deal with the whole problem."

Night Signaling From Coast Observed

"The Pacific Coast had become exposed to attack by enemy successes in the Pacific. The situation in the Pacific theatre had gravely deteriorated. There were hundreds of reports nightly of signal lights visible from the coast, and of intercepts of unidentified radio transmissions. Signaling was often observed at premises which could not be entered without a warrant because of mixed occupancy. The problem required immediate solution. It called for the application of measures not then in being."

Footnote 1 follows:

"1. It is interesting to note that following the evacuation, interceptions of suspicious or unidentified radio signals and shore-to-ship signal lights were virtually eliminated and attacks on outbound shipping from West Coast ports appreciably reduced.

Situation Dangerous to Safety of Japanese

Further, the situation was fraught with danger to the Japanese population itself. The combination of spot raids revealing hidden caches of contraband, the attacks on coastwise shipping, the interception of illicit radio transmissions, the nightly observation of visual signal lamps from constantly changing locations, and the success of the enemy offensive in the Pacific, had so aroused the public along the West Coast against the Japanese that it was ready to take matters into its own hands. Press and periodical reports of the public attitudes along the West Coast from December 7, 1941, to the initiation of controlled evacuation clearly reflected the intensity of feeling. Numerous incidents of violence involving Japanese and others occurred; many more were reported but were subsequently either unverified or were found to be cumulative.

Attorney General Has No Legal Authority Over American-born Japanese

The acceptance by the Attorney General of the Washington and Oregon recommendations would not have provided the security which the military situation then required. More than two-thirds of the total Japanese population on the West Coast were not subject to alien enemy regulations. The action ultimately taken was based upon authority not then existing. It had become essential to provide means which would remove the potential menace to which the presence of this group under all the circumstances subjected the West Coast. It is pertinent now to examine the situation with which the military authorities were then confronted.

Impossible to Determine Loyal From Disloyal Japanese

Because of the ties of race, the intense feeling of filial piety and the strong bonds of common tradition, culture and customs, this population presented a tightly-knit racial group. It included in excess of 115,000 persons deployed along the Pacific Coast. Whether by design of accident, virtually always their communities were adjacent to very vital shore installations, war plants, etc. While it was believed that some were loyal, it was known that many were not. To complicate the situation no ready means existed for determining the loyal and the disloyal with any degree of safety. It was necessary to face the realities—a positive determination could not have been made.

Japs Located at Strategic Points Not Coincidence

It could not be established, of course, that the location of thousands of Japanese adjacent to strategic points verified the existence of some vast conspiracy to which all of them were parties. Some of them doubtless resided there through mere coincidence. It seemed equally beyond doubt, however, that the presence of others was not mere coincidence. It was difficult to explain the situation in Santa Barbara County, for example, by coincidence alone.

Power Lines, Air Fields Surrounded by Japanese

Throughout the Santa Maria Valley in that County, including the cities of Santa Maria and Guadalupe, every utility, air field, bridge, telephone and power line or other facility of importance was flanked by Japanese. They even surrounded the oil fields in this area. Only a few miles south, however, in the Santa Ynez Valley, lay an area equally as productive agriculturally as the Santa Maria Valley and with lands equally available for purchase and lease, but without any strategic installations whatever. There were no Japanese in the Santa Ynez Valley.

Land Adjacent to Oil Fields Japanese Occupied

Similarly, along the coastal plain of Santa Barbara County from Gaviota south, the entire plain, though narrow, had been subject to intensive cultivation. Yet, the only Japanese in this area were located immediately adjacent to such widely separated points as the El Capitan Oil Field, Elwood Oil Field, Summerland Oil Field, Santa Barbara airport and Santa Barbara lighthouse and harbor entrance. There were no Japanese on the equally attractive lands between these points. In the north end of the county is a stretch of open beach ideally suited for landing purposes, extending for 15 or 20 miles, on which almost the only inhabitants were Japanese.

Such a distribution of the Japanese population appeared to manifest something more than coincidence. In any case, it was certainly evident that the Japanese population of the Pacific Coast was, as a whole, ideally situated with reference to points of strategic importance, to carry into execution a tremendous program of sabotage on a mass scale should any considerable number of them have been inclined to do so.

Numerous Pro-Japanese Organizations in United States

There were other very disturbing indications that the Commanding General could not ignore. He was forced to consider the character of the Japanese colony along the coast. While this is neither the place nor the time to record in detail significant pro-Japanese activities in the United States, it is pertinent to note some of these in passing. Research has established that there were over 124 separate Japanese organizations along the Pacific Coast engaged, in varying degrees, in common pro-Japanese purposes. This number does not include local branches of parent organizations, of which there were more than 310.

Fascistic and Militaristic Organizations Made Up of Japanese

Research and coordination of information had made possible the identification of more than 100 parent fascistic or militaristic organizations in Japan which have had some relation, either direct or indirect, with Japanese organizations or individuals in the United States. Many of the former were parent organizations of subsidiary or branch organizations in the United States and in that capacity directed organizational and functional activities. There was definite information that the great majority of activities followed a line of control from the Japanese government, through key individuals and associations to the Japanese residents in the United States.

Japanese Language Propaganda Urging Contribution to Japanese War Effort

That the Japanese associations, as organizations, aided the military campaigns of the Japanese Government is beyond doubt. The contributions of these associations towards the Japanese war effort had been freely published in Japanese newspapers throughout California.

Footnote 2 reads as follows:

2. Some of the newspaper items are as follows:

“March 13, 1941. Thirty-two bales of tinfoil were shipped to Japan through the Japanese Consulate General and were contributed by Japanese Associations of Fresno County, Kern County, Delano and San Bernardino.”

“July 6, 1941. Central California Japanese Association announces the collection and transmission to the War Ministry of the sum of $3,542.05.”

Japanese Veterans' Association Active

'The Japanese Veterans Association was similarly engaged :
"March 20, 1941. It is announced that the War Veterans Associations in Japan, Germany and Italy, in keeping with the spirit of the Axis Treaty have formed joint and advisory committees to aid and establish the new world order. There are 3½ million veterans and reservists headed by General Imei who have pledged their cooperation to Axis aims."'

Emperor Worship—Propaganda Used

The extent to which Emperor worshiping ceremonies were attended could not have been overlooked. Many articles appearing in issues of Japanese language newspapers gave evidence that these ceremonies had been directed toward the stimulation of 'burning patriotism' and 'all-out support of the Japanese Asiatic Co-Prosperity Program.'

Numerous Emperor worshiping ceremonies had been held. Hundreds of Japanese attended these ceremonies, and it was an objective of the sponsoring organization to encourage one hundred per cent attendance. For example, on February 11, 1940, at 7.00 p.m., the Japanese Association of Sacramento sponsored an Emperor Worshiping ceremony in commemoration of the 2,600th anniversary of the founding of Japan. Three thousand attended.

Annual Ceremonies Devoted to Emperor Worship

Another group of Japanese met on January 1, 1941, at Lindsay, California. They honored the 2,601st Year of the Founding of the Japanese Empire and participated in the annual reverence to the Emperor, and bowed their heads toward Japan in order to indicate that they would be '* * * ready to respond to the call of the mother country with one mind. Japan is fighting to carry out our program of Greater Asiatic co-prosperity. Our fellow Japanese countrymen must be of one spirit and should endeavor to unite our Japanese societies in this country * * *.'

Japanese Military Code Instilled in Japanese Youth

A few examples of the many Japanese associations extant along the Pacific Coast are described in the following passages:

The Hokubei Butoku Kai. The Hokubei Butoku Kai, or Military Virtue Society of North America, was organized in 1931 with headquarters at Alvarado, Alameda County, California, and a branch office in Tokyo. One of the purposes of the organization was to instill the Japanese military code of Bushido among the Japanese throughout North America. This highly nationalistic and militaristic organization was formed primarily to teach Japanese boys 'military virtues' through Kendo (fencing), Judo (Jiu-jitsu), and Sumo (wrestling). The manner in which this society became closely integrated with many other Japanese organizations, both business and social, is well illustrated by the postal address of some of these branches.

Japanese War Effort Furthered

The Heimusha Kai. The Heimusha Kai was organized for the sole purpose of furthering the Japanese war effort. The intelligence services (including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Military Intelligence Service and the Office of Naval Intelligence) had reached the conclusion that this organization was engaged in espionage. Its membership contained highly militaristic males eligible for compulsory military service in Japan. Its prime function was the collection of war funds for the Japanese army and navy. In more than 1,000 translated articles in which Heimusha Kai was mentioned, there was no evidence of any function save the collection of war relief funds.

A prospectus was issued to all Japanese in the United States by the Sponsor Committee for Heimusha Kai in America. That prospectus is quoted as follows:

'The world should realize that our military action in China is based upon the significant fact that we are forced to fight under realistic circumstances. As a matter of historical fact, whenever the Japanese government begins a military campaign, we, Japanese, must be united and everyone of us must do his part.'

American-born Japanese Youth Taught Race Superior to All Others

'As far as our patriotism is concerned, the world knows that we are superior to any other nation. However, as long as we are staying on foreign soil, what can we do for our mother country? All our courageous fighters are fighting at the front today, forgetting their parents, wives and children in their homes! It is beyond our imagination, the manner in which our imperial soldiers are sacrificing their lives at the front line, bomb after bomb, deaths after deaths! Whenever we read and hear this sad news, who can keep from crying in sympathy? Therefore, we, the Japanese in the United States, have been contributing a huge amount of money for war relief funds and numerous comforting bags for our imperial soldiers.'

Japanese in United States Must Cooperate With Japanese Homeland

'Today, we, Japanese in the United States, who are not able to sacrifice our lives for our national cause are now firmly resolved to stand by to settle the present war as early as possible. We are proud to say that our daily happy life in America is dependent upon the protective power of Great Japan. We are facing a critical emergency, and we will take strong action as planned. We do hope and beg you all to cooperate with us for our national cause.'

Mother Country Relief Group Organized

The Heimusha Kai was organized on October 24, 1937, in San Francisco. The meeting took place at the Golden Gate Hall, and there were more than 200 members present. The following resolution was passed:

'We, the members of the Japanese Reserve Army Corps in America, are resolved to do our best in support of the Japanese campaign in China and to set up an Army Relief Department for our Mother Country.'

According to reliable sources there were more than 10,000 members of Heimusha Kai in 1940.

Japanese Language Textbooks Edited by Imperial Government

One extremely important obstacle in the path of Americanization of the second-generation Japanese was the widespread formation, and increasing importance, of the Japanese language schools in the United States. The purposes and functions of these Japanese language schools are well known. They employed only those textbooks which had been edited by the Department of Education of the Japanese Imperial Government.

Japanization of Second Generation American-born Japanese

In order to assist the Japanization of the second generation, the Zaibei Ikuei Kai (Society for Education of the Second Generation in America) was organized in Los Angeles in April, 1940. 'With the grace of the Emperor, the ZAIBEI IKUEI KAI is being organized in commemoration of the 2,600th Anniversary of the Founding of the Japanese Empire to Japanize the second and third generations in this country for the accomplishment of establishing a greater Asia in the future * * * '.

In California alone there were over 248 schools with an aggregate faculty of 454 and a student body of 17,800.

Second Generation American-born Japanese Sent to Japan for Indoctrination

The number of American-born Japanese who had been sent to Japan for education and who were now in the United States could not be overlooked. For more than twenty-five years American-born progeny of alien Japanese had been sent to Japan by their parents for education and indoctrination. There they remained for extended periods, following which they ordinarily returned to the United States. The extent of their influence upon other Nisei Japanese could not be accurately calculated. But it could not be disregarded.

20,000 American-born Japanese in Japan for Training

The Kibei Shimin movement was sponsored by the Japanese Association of America. Its objective for many years had been to encourage the return to America from Japan of American-born Japanese. When the movement started it was ascertained that there were about 20,000 American-born Japanese in Japan. The Japanese Association of America sent representatives to Japan to confer with Prefectural officials on the problems of financing and transportation. The Association also arranged with steamship companies for special rates for groups of one or more so returning, and requested all Japanese associations to secure employment for returning American-born Japanese.

Many Alien and American-born Japanese Return to United States in 1941

During 1941 alone more than 1,573 American-born Japanese entered West Coast ports from Japan. Over 1,147 Issei, or alien Japanese, re-entered the United States from Japan during that year.

Some Percentages on Ages of Japanese Returned to United States

The 557 male Japanese less than twenty-five years of age who entered West Coast ports from Japan during 1941 had an average age of 18.2 years and had spent an average of 5.2 years in Japan. Of these, 239 had spent more than three years there. This latter group had spent an average of 10.2 years in Japan.

Of the 239 males who spent three years or more abroad, 180 were in the age group 15 to 19 (with an assumed average age of 17.5 years) and had spent 10.7 years abroad. In other words, these 180 Kibei lived, on the average, 6.8 years at the beginning of their life in the United States and the next 10.7 years in Japan. Forty of the 239 who had spent three or more years abroad were in the age group 20 to 24, with an assumed average age 22.5. These were returning to the United States after having lived here, on the average, for their first 13 years and having spent the last 9.5 years in Japan, including one or more years when they were of compulsory (Japanese) military age.

It will be noted that 42.3 per cent of those in the 15 to 19 year group lived with a father or mother in Japan, and that 13.2 lived with a grandparent. In other words, more than 50 per cent of this group of Kibei had a parent or grandparent in Japan, and it is reasonable to assume that in most instances these Kibei lived with this nearest relative.

American-born Japanese Lived With Parents and Grandparents While in Japan

Combining this information with that from the preceding table, it is seen that in a group with an average age of 17.5 years who were returning to the United States after having spent an average of 7.4 years abroad continuously (in other words, from the time they were ten years of age) one-half had lived with their parent or grandparent in Japan. Yet, this group consists entirely of American citizens.

- American-born Japanese Take Great Pride in Japanese Cultural Attainments

Of the Kibei in Hawaii, Andrew W. Lind, Professor of Sociology, University of Hawaii, says: 'Finally, there is the rather large Kibei group of the second generation who, although citizens of the United States by virtue of birth within the Territory, are frequently more fanatically Japanese in their disposition than their own parents. Many of these individuals have returned from Japan so recently as to be unable to speak the English language and some are unquestionably disappointed by the lack of appreciation manifested for their Japanese education.' (American Council Paper No. 5, Page 187, American Council, Institute of Pacific Relations, 129 East 52nd Street, New York).

Japanese Unassimilable

It was, perforce, a combination of factors and circumstances with which the Commanding General had to deal. Here was a relatively homogeneous, unassimilated element bearing a close relationship through ties of race, religion, language, custom, and indoctrination to the enemy.

Commanding General's Duties to Defend Coast

The mission of the Commanding General was to defend the West Coast from enemy attack, both from within and without. The Japanese were concentrated along the coastal strip. The nature of this area and its relation to the national war effort had to be carefully considered.

Outline of Military Areas

The areas ultimately evacuated of all persons of Japanese ancestry embraced the coastal area of the Pacific slope. In the States of Washington and Oregon to the north, Military Area No. 1 contains all that portion lying westerly of the eastern bases of the Cascade Mountains. In other words, the coastal plain, the forests, and the mountain barrier. In California the evacuation program encompassed the entire State—that is to say, not only Military Area No. 1 but also Military Area No. 2. Military Area No. 2 in California was evacuated because (1) geographically and strategically the eastern boundary of the State of California approximates the easterly limit of Military Area No. 1 in Washington and Oregon, and because (2) the natural forests and mountain barriers, from which it was determined to exclude all Japanese, lie in Military Area No. 2 in California, although these lie in Military Area No. 1 of Washington and Oregon. A brief reference to the relationship of the coastal States to the National war effort is here pertinent.

That part of the States of Washington, Oregon, and California which lies west of the Cascade and Sierra Nevada Ranges, is dominated by many waterways, forests and vital industrial installations. Throughout the Puget Sound area there are many military and naval establishments as well as shipyards, airplane factories and other industries essential to total war. In the vicinity of Whidby Island, Island County, Washington, at the north end of the island, is the important Deception Pass Bridge. This bridge provides the only means of transit by land from important naval installations, facilities and properties in the vicinity of Whidby Island. This island afforded an ideal rendezvous from which enemy agents might communicate with enemy submarines in the Strait of Juan de Fuca or with other agents on the Olympic Peninsula. From Whidby and Camano Islands, comprising Island County, the passages through Admiralty Inlet, Skagit Bay and Saratoga Passage from Juan de Fuca Strait to the vital areas of the Bremerton Navy Yard and Bainbridge Island can be watched. The important city of Seattle with its airplane plants, airports, waterfront facilities, Army and Navy transport establishments and supply terminals required that an unassimilated group of doubtful loyalty be removed a safe distance from these critical areas. A reference to the spot map (published in Chapter VIII), Figure 6, showing the distribution of Japanese population along the frontier, discloses a high concentration of persons of Japanese ancestry in the Puget Sound area. Seattle is the principal port in the Northwest. It is the port from which troops in Alaska are supplied; its inland water route to Alaska passes the north coast of Washington into the Straits of Georgia on its way to Alaska.

Lumber Industry Endangered

The lumber industry is of vital importance to the war effort. The State of Washington, with Oregon and California close seconds, produces the bulk of sawed lumber in the United States. The large area devoted to this industry afforded saboteurs unlimited freedom of action. The danger from forest fires involved not only the destruction of valuable timber but also threatened cities, towns and other installations in the affected area. The entire coastal strip from Cape Flattery south to Lower California is particularly important from a protective viewpoint. There are numerous naval installations with such facilities constantly under augmentation. The coast line is particularly vulnerable. Distances between inhabited areas are great and enemy activities might be carried on without interference.

Hazard in Petroleum Industry

The petroleum industry of California and its great centers of production for aircraft and shipbuilding, are a vital part of the life blood of a Nation at war. The crippling of any part of this would seriously impede the war effort. Through the ports of Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego, flow the sinews of war—the men, equipment and supplies for carrying the battle against the enemy in the Pacific. A further reference to the spot map, Figure 6, in Chapter VIII, reveals the high concentration of this segment of the population surrounding nearly all these key installations.

Japanese Aliens and Japanese-Americans Tightly-knit Group—Patriotically

In his estimate of the situation, then, the Commanding General found a tightly-knit, unassimilated racial group, substantial numbers of whom were engaged in pro-Japanese activities. He found them concentrated in great numbers along the Pacific Coast, an area of the utmost importance to the National war effort. These considerations were weighed against the progress of the Emperor's Imperial Japanese forces in the Pacific. This chapter would be incomplete without a brief reference to the gravity of the external situation obtaining in the Pacific theater. It is necessary only to state the chronology of war in the Pacific to show this.

Attack on Pearl Harbor

At 8.05 a.m., the seventh of December, the Japanese attacked the United States naval base at Pearl Harbor without warning. Simultaneously they struck against Malaysia, Hong Kong, the Philippines, and Wake and Midway Islands.

Thailand and Malay Attack

On the following day, the Japanese Army invaded Thailand. Two days later the British battleships "H. M. S. Wales" and "H. M. S. Repulse" were sunk off the Malay Peninsula. The enemy's successes continued without interruption. On the 13th of December, Guam was captured and on successive days the Japanese captured Wake Island and occupied Hong Kong, December 24th and 25th, respectively. On January 2d, Manila fell, and on the 27th of February the battle of the Java Sea resulted in a crushing naval defeat to the United Nations. Thirteen United Nations' warships were sunk and one damaged. Japanese losses were limited to two warships sunk and five damaged.

On the ninth of March the Japanese Imperial forces established full control of the Netherlands East Indies; Rangoon and Burma were occupied. Continuing during the course of evacuation, on the ninth of April, Bataan was occupied by the Japanese and on May 6th Corregidor surrendered.

Japanese Carrier Attacks Dutch Harbor

On June 3d, Dutch Harbor, Alaska, was attacked by Japanese carrier-based aircraft and, with the occupation by the Japanese on June 7th of Attu and Kiska Islands, United States territory in continental Northern America had been invaded.

Submarine Attacks on West Coast of United States

As already stated, there were many evidences of the successful communication of information to the enemy, information regarding positive knowledge on his part of our installations. The most striking illustrations of this are found in three of the several incidents of enemy attacks on West Coast points.

On February 23, 1942, a hostile submarine shelled Goleta, near Santa Barbara, California, in an attempt to destroy vital oil installations there. On the preceding day the shore battery in position at this point had been withdrawn to be replaced by another. On the succeeding day, when the shelling occurred, it was the only point along the coast where an enemy submarine could have successfully surfaced and fired on a vital installation without coming within the range of coast defense guns.

In the vicinity of Brookings (Mt. Emily), Oregon, an enemy submarine-based plane dropped incendiary bombs in an effort to start forest fires. At that time it was the only section of the Pacific Coast which could have been approached by enemy aircraft without interception by aircraft warning devices.

Range of United States Coast Guns Known to Japanese

Similarly, a precise knowledge of the range of coast defense guns at Astoria, Oregon, was in the possession of the enemy. A hostile submarine surfaced and shelled shore batteries there from the only position at which a surfaced submarine could have approached the coast line close enough to shell a part of its coast defenses without being within range of the coastal batteries.

Japanese Sub-Commanders Had Knowledge of Naval Off-shore Patrols

In summary, the Commanding General was confronted with the Pearl Harbor experience, which involved a positive enemy knowledge of our patrols, our Naval dispositions, etc., on the morning of December 7th; with the fact that ships leaving West Coast ports were being intercepted regularly by enemy submarines; and with the fact that an enemy element was in a position to do great damage and substantially to aid the enemy nation. Time was of the essence.

The Commanding General, charged as he was with the mission of providing for the defense of the West Coast, had to take into account these and other military considerations. He had no alternative but to conclude that the Japanese constituted a potentially dangerous element from the viewpoint of military security—that military necessity required their immediate evacuation to the interior. The impelling military necessity had become such that any measures other than those pursued along the Pacific Coast might have been “too little and too late.”

CONCLUSION

The propaganda mill of the WRA indulges in the use of the term “Loyal Japanese Americans” for the obvious purpose of raising by trick and device the question of the constitutional rights of citizens. The issue involved turns not on this point but on the loyalty of the Japanese aliens and Japanese-Americans to the Government of the United States and the renunciation of allegiance to the Emperor of Japan.

In view of the foregoing quoted official findings on the “loyalty” of great numbers of Japanese, both alien and American-born, we again criticise Harold L. Ickes and the WRA for the use of deceptive and diversionary tactics in disseminating false and misleading information to the public in regard to this subject.

In conclusion on the Japanese problem, your committee, in view of the foregoing representative opinions and recitation of official facts, reaffirms its position that: It is dangerous to the public safety, and to the safety of the Japanese aliens, and those of American birth, to return them to this vital defense area during the war with Japan.

Respectfully submitted.

Attention: Honorable Joseph A. Beek,
Secretary of the Senate
Honorable Arthur A. Ohnimus,
Chief Clerk of the Assembly

GENTLEMEN: Receipt is acknowledged of a copy of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 52, recently passed by your Honorable Body and filed with the Secretary of State on June 5, 1945, as Chapter 112 of Resolutions.

Under this resolution the Attorney General is requested to take such action, including necessary litigation, as will protect the interests of the people of the State of California in the waters of Donner Lake, and is further requested to advise your Honorable Body during the present session of any legislation necessary to accomplish this purpose.

We have heretofore had occasion to commence an investigation into the factual and legal questions arising out of the storing of water in Donner Lake and the later removal of such water therefrom by certain Nevada interests. Such investigations are far from complete but have indicated the necessity of obtaining a great deal of factual data which has not yet been furnished by the various State agencies concerned.

You may rest assured that such studies will be continued, and in the event it appears that legal proceedings can be successfully undertaken to maintain the lake at a satisfactory level, such will be done.

Our investigation up to this time has not indicated any legislation which would be helpful in the premises. Should the completion of our studies render the enactment of legislation desirable, we will be happy to advise you of our suggestions at a later session of your Honorable Body.

Very respectfully yours,

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Quinn asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following opinion of the United States Supreme Court printed in the Journal.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

No. 205.—OCTOBER TERM, 1944.

In re Clyde Wilson Summers,	} On Writ of Certiorari to the Petitioner.
	Supreme Court of the State of Illinois.

[June 11, 1945.]

Mr. Justice REED delivered the opinion of the Court.

Petitioner sought a writ of certiorari from this Court under Section 237(b) of the Judicial Code to review the action of the Supreme Court of Illinois in denying the petitioner's prayer for admission to the practice of law in that state. It was alleged that the denial was "on the sole ground that he is a conscientious objector to war" or to phrase petitioner's contention slightly differently "because of his conscientious scruples against participation in war." Petitioner challenges here the right of the Supreme Court to exclude him from the bar under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States which secured to him protection against state action in violation of the principles of the First Amendment.<sup>1</sup> Because of the importance of the tendered issue in the domain of civil rights, we granted certiorari.<sup>2</sup> — U. S. —.

"... nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; . . ."

First Amendment:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof;

Cf Board of Education v. Barnette, 319 U. S. 624, 639.

<sup>2</sup> The petition for certiorari was not accompanied by a certified record. Rule 38(1). It alleged an inability to obtain a record from the Clerk of the Supreme Court of Illinois because the documents were not in that official's custody. See note 8, infra. No opposing brief was filed. After the expiration of the time for opposing briefs, rule 38(3), a rule issued "returnable within 30 days, requiring the Supreme Court of Illinois to show cause why the record in this proceeding should not be certified to this Court and also why the petition for writ of certiorari herein should not be granted." Journal, Supreme Court of the United States, October Term, 1944, p. 6. A return was duly made by the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of Illinois which stated the position of the justices on the certification of the supposed and alleged record and their opposition to the granting of the certiorari. On consideration our writ of certiorari issued, directed to the Honorable, the Judges of the Supreme Court of Illinois, commanding that "the record and/or papers and proceedings" be sent to this Court for review. Journal, Supreme Court of the United States, October Term, 1944, p. 93. The papers comprising the proceedings before the Supreme Court of Illinois were certified to us by the Clerk of that court.

Since the proceedings were not treated as judicial by the Supreme Court of Illinois, the record is not in the customary form. It shows accurately, however, the steps by which the issue was developed and the action of the Supreme Court on the prayer for admission to the practice of law in the State of Illinois. From the record it appears that Clyde Wilson Summers has complied with all prerequisites for admission to the bar of Illinois except that he has not obtained the certificate of the Committee on Character and Fitness. Cf. Illinois Revised Statutes 1943, C. 110, § 259.58. No report appears in the record from the Committee. An unofficial letter from the Secretary gives his personal views.<sup>3</sup> A petition was filed in the Supreme Court on August 2, 1943, which alleged that petitioner was informed in January, 1943, that the Committee declined to sign a favorable certificate. The petition set out that the sole reason for the Committee's refusal was that petitioner was a conscientious objector to war, and averred that such reason did not justify his exclusion because of the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. The denial of the petition for admission is informal. It consists of a letter of September 20, 1943, to the Secretary of the Committee which is set out below,<sup>4</sup> a letter of the same date to Mr. Summers and a third letter of March 22, 1944, to Mr. Summers' attorney on petition for rehearing. These latter two letters are set out in note 8.

The answer of the Justices to these allegations does not appear in the record which was transmitted from the Supreme Court of Illinois to this Court but in their return to the rule to show cause why certiorari should not be granted. The answer is two-fold: First, that the proceedings were not a matter of judicial cognizance in Illinois and that no case or controversy exists in this Court under Article III of the Federal Constitution; second, that assuming the sole ground for refusing to petitioner admission to practice was his profession of conscientious objection to military service, such refusal did not violate the Fourteenth Amendment because the requirement for applicants for admission to the bar to take an oath to support the Constitution of Illinois could not be met. In view of his religious affirmations, petitioner could not agree, freely, to serve in the Illinois militia. Therefore petitioner was not barred because of his religion but because he could not in good faith take

"I think the record establishes that you are a conscientious objector, also that your philosophical beliefs go further. You eschew the use of force regardless of circumstances but the law which you profess to embrace and which you teach and would practice is not an abstraction observed through mutual respect. It is real. It is the result of experience of man in an imperfect world, necessary we believe to restrain the strong and protect the weak. It recognizes the right even of the individual to use force under certain circumstances and commands the use of force to obtain its observance."

* * * * *

"I do not argue against your religious beliefs or your philosophy of non-violence. My point is merely that your position seems inconsistent with the obligation of an attorney at law."

<sup>4</sup> "This Court has an elaborate petition filed by Francis Heisler, an attorney of 77 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, on behalf of Clyde Wilson Summers."

"The substance of the petition is that the Board should overrule the action of the Committee on Character and Fitness, in which the Committee refused to give him a certificate because he is a conscientious objector, and for that reason refused to register or participate in the present national emergency."

"I am directed to advise you that the Court is of the opinion that the report of the Committee on Character and Fitness should be sustained."

"Yours very truly,

the prescribed oath, even though he might be willing to do so. We turn to consideration of the Justices' contentions.

Case or Controversy. The return of the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices states that the correspondence and communications of petitioner with the Justices were not spread upon the records of the Supreme Court of Illinois and that under the law of Illinois this petition for admission to the bar does not constitute a case or controversy or a judicial proceeding but is a mere application for appointment as an officer of the court.<sup>5</sup> We of course accept this authoritative commentary upon the law of Illinois as establishing for that state the non-judicial character of an application for admission to the bar.<sup>6</sup> We take it that the law of Illinois treats the action of the Supreme Court on this petition as a ministerial act which is performed by virtue of the judicial power, such as the appointment of a clerk or bailiff or the specification of the requirements of eligibility or the course of study for applicants for admission to the bar, rather than a judicial proceeding.

For the purpose of determining whether the action of the Supreme Court of Illinois in denying Summers' petition for an order for admission to practice law in Illinois is a judgment in a judicial proceeding which involves a case or controversy reviewable in this Court under Article III, Sec. 2, Cl. 1, of the Constitution of the United States,<sup>7</sup> we must for ourselves appraise the circumstances of the refusal. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Wallace, 228 U. S. 249, 259. Cf. Bridges v. California, 314 U. S. 252, 259-60; Nixon v. Condon, 286 U. S. 73, 88; First National Bank v. Hartford, 273 U. S. 548, 552; Truax v. Corrigan, 257 U. S. 312, 324.

A case arises, within the meaning of the Constitution, when any question respecting the Constitution, treaties or laws of the United States has assumed "such a form that the judicial power is capable of acting on it." Osborn v. Bank, 9 Wheat., 738, 819. The Court was then considering the power of the bank to sue in the federal courts. A declaration on rights as they stand must be sought, not on rights which may arise in the future, Prentiss v. Atlantic Coast Line, 211 U. S. 210, 226, and

<sup>6</sup> Illinois considers that the power and jurisdiction of its Supreme Court with respect to the admission of attorneys are inherent in the judiciary under the constitution of the state, which provides, Article III, for the traditional distribution of the powers of government. Smith Hurd Illinois Anno. Statutes, Constitution, p. 394; In re Day, 181 Ill. 73, 82. Attorneys are officers of the court, answerable to it for their conduct. People v. Peoples Stock Yards State Bank, 344 Ill. 462, 470. The act of admission is an exercise of judicial power, id. 470, a judgment. In re Day, at p. 97, even though it is not considered a judicial proceeding. In the exercise of its judicial power over the bar, the Supreme Court of Illinois has adopted rules for admission to practice before the courts of that state which permit the admission by the Supreme Court after satisfactory examination by the Board of Law Examiners which includes a certification by a Committee on Character and Fitness as to the applicant's character and moral fitness. Illinois Revised Statutes 1943, c. 110, § 259.58.

<sup>7</sup> Constitution, Art. III, Sec. 2, cl. 1: "The Judicial Power shall extend to all Cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under their Authority;—to all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls;—to all Cases of admiralty and maritime Jurisdiction;—to Controversies to which the United States shall be a Party;—to Controversies between two or more States;—between a State and Citizens of another State;—between Citizens of different States;—between Citizens of the same State claiming Lands under Grants of different States, and between a State, or the Citizens thereof, and foreign States, Citizens or Subjects."

there must be an actual controversy over an issue, not a desire for an abstract declaration of the law. Muskrat v. United States, 219 U. S. 346, 361; Fairchild v. Hughes, 258 U. S. 126, 129. The form of the proceeding is not significant. It is the nature and effect which is controlling. Nashville, C. & St. L. Ry. v. Wallace, 288 U. S. 249, 259.

The brief for the Justices raises the question as to who are the adversary parties. The petition in the state court was entitled, "Clyde Wilson, Summers, Petitioner, v. Committee on Character and Fitness for Third Appellate District, Respondent." The prayer sought relief against those named as respondents. The record does not show that any process issued or that any appearance was made. Our rule on the petition for certiorari required the Supreme Court of Illinois to show cause why a record should not be certified and the writ of certiorari granted. The return was by the Justices, not by the Court. The Supreme Court of Illinois, however, concluded that the "report of the Committee on Character and Fitness should be sustained." Thus it considered the petition on its merits. While no entry was placed by the Clerk in the file, on a docket, or on a judgment roll, the Court took cognizance of the petition and passed an order which is validated by the signature of the presiding officer.<sup>8</sup> Where relief is thus sought in a state court against the action of a committee, appointed to advise the court, and the court takes cognizance of the complaint without requiring the appearance of the committee or its members, we think the consideration of the petition by the Supreme Court, the body which has authority itself by its own act to give the relief sought, makes the proceeding adversary in the sense of a true case or controversy.

A claim of a present right of admission to the bar of a state and a denial of that right is a controversy. When the claim is made in a state court and a denial of the right is made by judicial order, it is a case

<sup>8</sup> The act of adjudging to which we have referred is contained in a letter addressed to petitioner, which reads as follows:

"Your petition to be admitted to the bar, notwithstanding the unfavorable report of the Committee on Character and Fitness for the Third Appellate Court District, has received the consideration of the Court.

"I am directed to advise you that the Court is of the opinion that the report of the Committee on Character and Fitness should be sustained.

"Yours very truly (Signed) June C. Smith, Chief Justice."

The letter was certified by the Clerk of the Supreme Court of Illinois under its seal as "filed in this office ——— in a certain cause entitled in this Court. Non Record No. 462. In Re Clyde Wilson Summers."

Later another letter was written in regard to the admission which reads as follows:

"March 22, 1944.

"Mr. Francis Heisler, Attorney at Law, 77 West Washington Street,

"Suite 1324, Chicago 2, Illinois.

"In re: Clyde Wilson Summers.

"Dear Sir:

"Your petition on behalf of Clyde Wilson Summers to reconsider the prior action of the Court sustaining the report of the Committee on Character and Fitness for the Third Appellate Court District, has had the consideration of the Court.

"I am directed to advise you that the Court declines to further consider its former action in this matter.

"Yours very truly, June C. Smith, Chief Justice."

By stipulation of petitioner and the Justices, the Clerk prepared a supplemental record in this cause which includes the following: (1) a transcript of the proceedings before the Character Committee; (2) the letter of March 22, 1944; (3) a certificate that the transcript is the original and the letter a document of the Supreme Court of Illinois.

which may be reviewed under Article III of the Constitution when federal questions are raised and proper steps taken to that end, in this Court.<sup>9</sup>

Disqualification Under Illinois Constitution. The Justices justify their refusal to admit petitioner to practice before the courts of Illinois on the ground of petitioner's inability to take in good faith the required oath to support the Constitution of Illinois. His inability to take such an oath, the justices submit, shows that the Committee on Character and Fitness properly refused to certify to his moral character and moral fitness to be an officer of the Court, charged with the administration of justice under the Illinois law. His good citizenship, they think, judged by the standards required for practicing law in Illinois, is not satisfactorily shown<sup>10</sup> A conscientious belief in non-violence to the extent that the believer will not use force to prevent wrong, no matter how aggravated, and so cannot swear in good faith to support the Illinois Constitution, the Justices contend, must disqualify such a believer for admission.

Petitioner appraises the denial of admission from the viewpoint of a religionist. He said in his petition:

"The so-called 'misconduct' for which petitioner could be reproached for is his taking the New Testament too seriously. Instead of merely reading or preaching the Sermon on the Mount, he tries to practice it. The only fault of the petitioner consists in his attempt to act as a good Christian in accordance with his interpretation of the Bible, and according to the dictates of his conscience. We respectfully submit that the profession of law does not shut its gates to persons who have qualified in all other respects, even when they follow in the footsteps of that Great Teacher of mankind who delivered the Sermon on the Mount. We respectfully submit that under our Constitutional guarantees even good Christians who have met all the requirements for the admission to the bar may be admitted to practice law."

Thus a court created to administer the laws of Illinois, as it understands them and charged particularly with the protection of justice in the courts of Illinois through supervision of admissions to the bar found itself faced with the dilemma of excluding an applicant whom it deemed <sup>9</sup> In Bradwell v. The State, 16 Wall. 130, this Court took cognizance of a writ of error to an order of the Supreme Court of Illinois which denied a motion of Mrs. Bradwell for admission to the bar of Illinois. The proceeding was entitled by the Supreme Court of Illinois, "In the matter of the application of Mrs. Myra Bradwell for a license to practice as an attorney-at-law." There was an opinion. A writ of error under the Illinois title was issued to bring up the case. The objection to Mrs. Bradwell's admission was on the ground of her sex. As no question was raised as to the jurisdiction of this Court under Article III of the Constitution, the case is of little, if any, value as a precedent on that point. Arant v. Lane, 245 U. S. 166, 170; United States v. More, 3 Cranch 159, 172.

"Before admission to the Bar, each applicant shall be passed upon by the Committee in his district as to his character and moral fitness. He shall furnish the Committee with an affidavit in such form as the Board of Law Examiners shall prescribe concerning his history and environments, together with the affidavits of at least three reputable persons personally acquainted with him residing in the county in which the applicant resides, each testifying that the applicant is known to the affiant to be of good moral character and general fitness to practice law, setting forth in detail the facts upon which such knowledge is based. Each applicant shall appear before the Committee of his district or some member thereof and shall furnish the Committee such evidence of his moral character and good citizenship as in the opinion of the Committee would justify his admission to the Bar." Ill. Rev. Stat. 1943; c 110, § 259.58.

disqualified for the responsibilities of the profession of law or of admitting the applicant because of its deeply rooted tradition in freedom of belief. The responsibility for choice as to the personnel of its bar rests with Illinois. Only a decision which violated a federal right secured by the Fourteenth Amendment would authorize our intervention. It is said that the action of the Supreme Court of Illinois is contrary to the principles of that portion of the First Amendment which guarantees the free exercise of religion. Of course, under our Constitutional system, men could not be excluded from the practice of law, or indeed from following any other calling, simply because they belong to any of our religious groups, whether Protestant, Catholic, Quaker or Jewish, assuming it conceivable that any state of the Union would draw such a religious line. We cannot say that any such purpose to discriminate motivated the action of the Illinois Supreme Court.

The sincerity of petitioner's beliefs are not questioned. He has been classified as a conscientious objector under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, 54 Stat. 885, as amended. Without detailing petitioner's testimony before the Committee or his subsequent statements in the record, his position may be compendiously stated as one of non-violence. Petitioner will not serve in the armed forces. While he recognizes a difference between the military and police forces, he would not act in the latter to coerce threatened violations. Petitioner would not use force to meet aggressions against himself or his family, no matter how aggravated or whether or not carrying a danger of bodily harm to himself or others. He is a believer in passive resistance. We need to consider only his attitude toward service in the armed forces.

Illinois has constitutional provisions which require service in the militia in time of war of men of petitioner's age group.<sup>11</sup> The return of the Justices alleges that petitioner has not made any showing that he would serve notwithstanding his conscientious objections. This allegation is undenied in the record and unchallenged by brief. We accept the allegation as to unwillingness to serve in the militia as established. While under Section 5(g) of the Selective Training and Service Act, supra, conscientious objectors to participation in war in any form now are permitted to do non-war work of national importance, this is by grace of Congressional recognition of their beliefs. Hamilton v. Regents, 293 U. S. 245, 261-65, and cases cited. The Act may be repealed. No similar exemption during war exists under Illinois law. The Hamilton decision was made in 1934, in time of peace.<sup>12</sup> This decision as to the powers of the state government over military training is applicable to the power of Illinois to require military service from her citizens.

<sup>11</sup> "The militia of the state of Illinois shall consist of all able-bodied male persons resident in the state, between the ages of eighteen and forty five, except such persons as now are, or hereafter may be, exempted by the laws of the United States, or of this state." (Constitution of Illinois, Art. XII, Sec. 1, Ill. Rev. Stat. 1943.)

"No person having conscientious scruples against bearing arms shall be compelled to do militia duty in time of peace; 'Provided, such person shall pay an equivalent for such exemption.'" (Constitution of Illinois, Art. XII, Sec. 6, Ill. Rev. Stat. 1943.)

<sup>12</sup> California imposed instruction in military tactics on male students in the University of California. Some students sought exemption from this training on the ground that such training was inconsistent with their religious beliefs. This Court denied them any such exemption based on the due process clause of the federal Constitution. The opinion states, at pp. 262-63:

"Government, federal and state, each in its own sphere owes a duty to the people within its jurisdiction to preserve itself in adequate strength to maintain peace and order and to assure the just enforcement of law. And every citizen owes the reciprocal duty, according to his capacity, to support and defend government against all enemies. Selective Draft Law Cases, supra, p. 378. Minor v. Happersett, 21 Wall. 162, 166."

The United States does not admit to citizenship the alien who refuses to pledge military service. United States v. Schwimmer, 279 U. S. 644; United States v. Macintosh, 283 U. S. 605. Even the powerful dissents which emphasized the deep cleavage in this Court on the issue of admission to citizenship did not challenge the right of Congress to require military service from every able-bodied man. 279 U. S. at 653; 283 U. S. at 632. It is impossible for us to conclude that the insistence of Illinois that an officer who is charged with the administration of justice must take an oath to support the Constitution of Illinois and Illinois' interpretation of that oath to require a willingness to perform military service violates the principles of religious freedom which the Fourteenth Amendment secures against state action, when a like interpretation of a similar oath as to the Federal Constitution bars an alien from national citizenship.<sup>13</sup>

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

No. 205.—OCTOBER TERM, 1944.

In re Clyde Wilson Summers,	}	On Writ of Certiorari to the Petitioner.		Supreme Court of the State

[June 11, 1945.]

Mr. Justice BLACK, dissenting.

The State of Illinois has denied the petitioner the right to practice his profession and to earn his living as a lawyer. It has denied him a license on the ground that his present religious beliefs disqualify him for membership in the legal profession. The question is, therefore, whether a state which requires a license as a prerequisite to practicing law can deny an applicant a license solely because of his deeply-rooted religious convictions. The fact that petitioner measures up to every other requirement for admission to the Bar set by the State demonstrates beyond doubt that the only reason for his rejection was his religious beliefs.

The state does not deny that petitioner possesses the following qualifications:

He is honest, moral, and intelligent, has had a college and a law school education. He has been a law professor and fully measures up to the high standards of legal knowledge Illinois has set as a prerequisite to admission to practice law in that State. He has never been convicted for, or charged with, a violation of law. That he would serve his clients

"If the attitude of this claimant, as shown by his statements and the inferences properly to be deduced from them, be held immaterial to the question of his fitness for admission to citizenship, where shall the line be drawn? Upon what ground of distinction may we hereafter reject another applicant who shall express his willingness to respect any particular principle of the Constitution or obey any future statute only upon the condition that he shall entertain the opinion that it is morally justified? The applicant's attitude, in effect, is a refusal to take the oath of allegiance except in an altered form. The qualifications upon which he insists, it is true, are made by parol and not by way of written amendment to the oath; but the substance is the same."

faithfully and efficiently if admitted to practice is not denied. His ideals of what a lawyer should be indicate that his activities would not reflect discredit upon the bar, that he would strive to make the legal system a more effective instrument of justice. Because he thinks that "Lawsuits do not bring love and brotherliness—just create antagonisms, he would, as a lawyer, exert himself to adjust controversies out of court, but would vigorously press his client's cause in court if efforts to adjust failed. Explaining to his examiners some of the reasons why he wanted to be a lawyer, he told them: "I think there is a lot of work to be done in the law. . . . I think the law has a place to see to it that every man has a chance to eat and a chance to live equally. I think the law has a place where people can go and get justice done for themselves without paying too much, for the bulk of people that are too poor." No one contends that such a vision of the law in action is either illegal or reprehensible. The petitioner's disqualifying religious beliefs stem chiefly from a study of the New Testament and a literal acceptance of the teachings of Christ as he understands them. Those beliefs are these:

He is opposed to the use of force for either offensive or defensive purposes. The taking of human life under any circumstances he believes to be against the Law of God and contrary to the best interests of man. He would if he could, he told his examiners, obey to the letter these precepts of Christ: "Love your Enemies; Do good to those that hate you; Even though your enemy strike you on your right cheek, turn to him your left cheek also."<sup>1</sup> The record of his evidence before us bears convincing marks of the deep sincerity of his convictions, and counsel for Illinois with commendable candor does not question the genuineness of his professions.

I cannot believe that a state statute would be consistent with our constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion if it specifically denied the right to practice law to all members of one of our great religious groups, Protestant, Catholic, or Jewish. Yet the Quakers have had a long and honorable part in the growth of our nation, and an amicus curiae brief filed in their behalf informs us that under the test applied to this petitioner, not one of them could qualify for the bar in Illinois. And it is obvious that the same disqualification would exist as to every conscientious objector to the use of force, even though the Congress of the United States should continue its practice of absolving them from military service. The conclusion seems to me inescapable that if Illinois can bar this petitioner from the practice of law it can bar every person from every public occupation solely because he believes in non-resistance rather than in force. For a lawyer is no more subject to call for military duty than a plumber, a highway worker, a Secretary of State, or a prison chaplain.

It may be, as many people think, that Christ's Gospel of love and submission is not suited to a world in which men still fight and kill one another. But I am not ready to say that a mere profession of belief in

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth:

"But I say unto you, That ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also . . . .

"But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; . . . ."

that Gospel is a sufficient reason to keep otherwise well qualified men out of the legal profession, or to drive law-abiding lawyers of that belief out of the profession, which would be the next logical development.

Nor am I willing to say that such a belief can be penalized through the circuitous method of prescribing an oath, and then barring an applicant on the ground that his present belief might later prompt him to do or refrain from doing something that might violate that oath. Test oaths, designed to impose civil disabilities upon men for their beliefs rather than for unlawful conduct, were an abomination to the founders of this nation. This feeling was made manifest in Article VI of the Constitution which provides that "no religious test shall ever be required as a Qualification to any Office or public Trust in the United States." Cummings v. The State of Missouri, 4 Wall. 277; Ex parte Garland, 4 Wall. 333.

The state's denial of petitioner's application to practice law resolves itself into a holding that it is lawfully required that all lawyers take an oath to support the state constitution and that petitioner's religious convictions against the use of force make it impossible for him to observe that oath. The petitioner denies this and is willing to take the oath. The particular constitutional provision involved authorizes the legislature to draft Illinois citizens from 18 to 45 years of age for militia service. It can be assumed that the State of Illinois has the constitutional power to draft conscientious objectors for war duty and to punish them for refusal to serve as soldiers,—powers which this Court held the United States possesses in United States v. Schwimmer, 279 U. S. 644, and United States v. McIntosh, 283 U. S. 605. But that is not to say that Illinois could constitutionally use the test oath it did in this case. In the Schwimmer and McIntosh cases aliens were barred from naturalization because their then religious beliefs would bar them from bearing arms to defend the country. Dissents in both cases rested in part on the premise that religious tests are incompatible with our constitutional guarantee of freedom of thought and religion. In the Schwimmer case dissent, Mr. Justice Holmes said that "if there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us but freedom for the thought that we hate. I think that we should adhere to that principle with regard to admission into, as well as to life within this country." pp. 654-655. In the McIntosh case dissent, Mr. Chief Justice Hughes said, "To conclude that the general oath of office is to be interpreted as disregarding the religious scruples of these citizens and as disqualifying them for office because they could not take the oath with such an interpretation would, I believe, be generally regarded as contrary not only to the specific intent of the Congress but as repugnant to the fundamental principle of representative government." p. 632. I agree with the constitutional philosophy underlying the dissents of Mr. Justice Holmes and Mr. Chief Justice Hughes.

The Illinois Constitution itself prohibits the draft of conscientious objectors except in time of war and also excepts from militia duty persons who are "exempted by the laws of the United States." It has not drafted men into the militia since 1864, and if it ever should again, no one can say that it will not, as has the Congress of the United States, exempt men who honestly entertain the views that this petitioner does. Thus the probability that Illinois would ever call the petitioner to serve in a war has little more reality than an imaginary quantity in mathematics.

I cannot agree that a state can lawfully bar from a semi-public position, a well-qualified man of good character solely because he entertains a religious belief which might prompt him at some time in the future to violate a law which has not yet been and may never be enacted. Under our Constitution men are punished for what they do or fail to do and not for what they think and believe. Freedom to think, to believe, and to worship, has too exalted a position in our country to be penalized on such an illusory basis. West Virginia State Board of Education v. Barnette, 319 U. S. 624, 643-646.

I would reverse the decision of the State Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice DOUGLAS, Mr. Justice MURPHY, and Mr. Justice RUTLEDGE concur in this opinion.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolution was offered:

By Senators Tenney, Burns, and Dilworth:

Senate Resolution No. 152

Relative to the creation of a Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American activities in California to investigate the activity of persons and groups known or suspected to be foreign dominated or controlled and to recommend legislation for their regulation

WHEREAS, These are yet times of public danger. Subversive persons and groups are endangering our domestic unity so as to leave us unprepared to resist attack from without and within. Under color of the protection afforded by the Bill of Rights these persons and groups seek to destroy our freedom by force, violence, threats, undermining and sabotage, and to subject us to the domination of foreign powers and ideologies; and

WHEREAS, There is danger that the ordeal through which the Country has suffered to keep the pursuit of its ideals free may be in vain; and

WHEREAS, Persons and groups, motivated by hatred of American ideals, our republican form of government and democratic processes, some bound together by allegiance to foreign powers, are even now seeking to achieve by subversion what we have so valiantly fought to sustain from force; and

WHEREAS, California, as one of the laboratories of this great Nation, may profitably study the problem within its boundaries, and enact pertinent legislation therein, if facts are available therefor; and

WHEREAS, State legislation to meet the problem and to assist law enforcement officers can best be based on a thorough and impartial investigation by a competent and active legislative committee; now, therefore, be it

1. The Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American Activities is hereby created, authorized, appointed and directed to investigate, ascertain, collate, appraise, study and analyze all facts directly or indirectly relating to the foregoing, including any facts causing or constituting interference with the National defense program or the war effort in California or rendering the people of the State, as a part of the Nation, less fit physically, mentally, morally, economically or socially.

2. In addition to other duties imposed upon the committee, the committee shall investigate and study the activities of groups and organizations whose membership include persons who are members of organizations who have as their objectives, or part of their objectives, the overthrow of the governments of the State of California or of the United States by force and violence or other unlawful means; to investigate and study all organizations known or suspected to be dominated or controlled by a foreign power which activities affect the conduct of this State in National defense or in its war effort, the functioning of any State agency, unemployment relief and other forms of public assistance, educational institutions of this State supported in whole or in part by public funds, or any political program, or which may affect the conversion of the State from a wartime economy to a peacetime economy or affect the economic and social problems incidental thereto, including but not limited to the operation, effect, administration, enforcement and needed revision of any and all laws in any way bearing upon or relating to the subject of this resolution, and to report thereon to the Legislature.

3. In addition to the foregoing, the Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American Activities is authorized and directed to ascertain, study and analyze all facts relating to the activities of persons and groups known or suspected to be dominated or controlled by a foreign power, and who owe allegiance thereto because of religious, racial, political, ideological, philosophical, or other ties, including but not limited to the influence upon all such persons and groups of education, economic circumstances, social positions, fraternal and casual associations, living standards, race, religion, political, ancestry and the activities of paid provocation and any other factors which may account for their conduct or condition their action, as well as the operation, effect, administration, enforcement and needed revision of any and all laws in any way bearing upon or relating to the subject of this resolution.

4. The committee consists of three Members of the Senate appointed by the Senate Committee on Rules. Vacancies occurring in the membership of the committee shall be filled by the appointing power.

5. The committee is authorized to act during this session of the Legislature, including any recess, and after final adjournment until final adjournment of the next regular session, with authority to file its final report not later than the last legislative day of the next regular session.

6. The committee and its members shall have and exercise all rights, duties and powers conferred upon investigating committees and their members by the provisions of the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly as they are adopted and amended from time to time, which provisions are incorporated herein and made applicable to this committee and its members.

7. The committee has the following additional powers and duties:

(a) To select a chairman and a vice chairman from its membership, and to employ and fix the compensation of a secretary and such clerical, investigative, expert and technical assistants as it may deem necessary.

(b) To create subcommittees from its membership, assigning to the subcommittee any study, inquiry, investigation or hearing which the committee itself has authority to undertake or hold, and the subcommittee for the purposes of this assignment shall have and exercise all of the powers conferred upon the committee limited by the express terms of the resolution or resolutions of the latter defining the powers and duties of the subcommittee, which powers may be withdrawn or terminated at any time by the committee.

(c) To adopt and from time to time amend such rules governing its procedure (including the fixing of its own quorum and the number of votes necessary to take action on any matter) as may to it appear appropriate.

(d) To contract with such other agencies, public or private, as it deems necessary for the rendition and affording of such services, facilities, studies and reports to the committee as will best assist it to carry out the purposes for which it is created.

(e) To hold public hearings at any place in California at which hearings the people are to have an opportunity to present their views to the committee.

(f) To summon and subpoena witnesses, require the production of papers, books, accounts, reports, documents, and records of every kind and description, to issue subpoenas and to take all necessary means to compel the attendance of witnesses and procure testimony.

(g) To cooperate with and secure the cooperation of county, city, city and county, and other local law enforcement agencies, and also civic and private organizations, in investigating any matter within the scope of this resolution, and to direct the sheriff of any county to serve subpoenas, orders and other process issued by the committee.

(h) To report its findings and recommendations to the Legislature and to the people from time to time and at any time, not later than herein provided.

(i) To do any and all other things necessary or convenient to enable it fully and adequately to exercise its powers, perform its duties, and accomplish the objects and purposes of this resolution.

8. The committee, each of its members, and any representative of the committee thereunto authorized by the committee or by its chairman, is authorized and empowered to administer oaths.

9. Every department, commission, board, agency, officer and employee of the State Government, including the Legislative Counsel, the Attorney General and their subordinates, and of any political subdivision, county, city, or public district of or in this State shall furnish the committee and any subcommittee, upon request, any and all such assistance, and information, records and documents as the committee or subcommittee deems proper for the accomplishment of the purposes for which the committee is created.

10. The sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000), or as much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby made available from the Contingent Funds of the Senate and Assembly for the expenses of the committee and its members and for any charges, expenses or claims it may incur under this resolution, to be paid from said Contingent Funds equally, and disbursed, after certification by the chairman of the committee, upon warrants drawn by the State Controller upon the State Treasurer.

Senate Resolution No. 127—As amended—Relative to a Senate Committee on State and Local Taxation to make inquiry into every phase of taxation, creating the committee and defining its powers and duties.

WHEREAS, The economy of the State of California has during the past four years gone through a revolutionary change, so that industry has assumed an increased importance in relation to agriculture, mining, and commerce; and

WHEREAS, This change has resulted in bringing into the State industries and properties of large value which have not previously been considered in our tax structure, and has created new governmental problems; and

WHEREAS, The increased population incident to this change in our economy has also created new governmental problems and made new demands upon both local and State Government; and

WHEREAS, The war industries, though they have given rise to unprecedented revenues for the State, have created new problems requiring large expenditures of money both by the State and local governments; and the tax returns to local government have not been commensurate with the added costs of the services required; and

WHEREAS, The unprecedented growth of motor transportation and the changeover to the use of diesel fuel in motor transportation during the war period, together with the added population of our State and the concentration in industrial centers, has materially changed the requirements for the support of highways, streets, and bridges; and

WHEREAS, The transition from war conditions to peace conditions will create particularly difficult problems for local and State Governments in California, drastically affected both the demands upon Government and the revenue structure; and

WHEREAS, It appears that there may be large sums in the way of Federal subsidies granted both to the State and local governments, in the postwar period, which will directly affect the revenue structure and will require careful examination to coordinate the disposition of these subsidies equitably into the entire revenue program of both State and local government; and

WHEREAS, From the beginning of the State's history, the ad valorem tax has been and still is the fiscal mainstay of local government and has not been adjusted to meet the new conditions; and

WHEREAS, The administration of taxation by the State and by the local governments has not been modernized, in fact has not been materially changed to bring it into line with present or prospective needs; and

WHEREAS, The relative burden of our several taxes on the different classes of taxpayers and different classes of property has not been fully determined; and

WHEREAS, There are new classes of property and rights that have grown up in the State that are not subject to taxation; and

WHEREAS, The return to peace time conditions will undoubtedly see the falling off in revenue from our present taxes and tax rates, coupled with a demand for increased and additional governmental services and the need for greater revenues to meet the cost of such services; and

WHEREAS, Neither the State nor local governments have available to their legislative bodies information concerning all the varied phases of this problem adequate to legislative consideration and action in the endeavor to find and effect a solution; and

WHEREAS, For many years the burdens of Government have been increasing both for the State and local governments, including many fixed charges not controllable by administrative bodies but brought about in answer to the demand of the people expressed in continuing legislation or in constitutional requirements, it is imperative that an appraisal be made so that revenues may be made adequate to meet the demands of Government, both local and State, and the burdens of taxation may be equitably distributed upon and among the several classes of property and of taxpayers; now, therefore, be it

1. The Senate Committee on State and Local Taxation is hereby created and appointed, and authorized and directed, to ascertain, study, and analyze all facts relating to or in any way bearing upon any of the subjects mentioned in the recitals of this resolution, particularly including but not limited to each phase of each and every tax (as herein defined) imposed in this State by any governmental agency (State, local, or Federal); the incidence and burden of each such tax upon property, business and the taxpayer and the ability of the latter to pay, also the productivity of each such tax in relation to its cost of administration and in relation to the purposes for which imposed, each of which factors of each tax the committee shall consider, weigh, appraise and evaluate with each such factor of every other tax; the present and prospective revenue needs of each agency of Government and the most equitable means of meeting each such need, taking into consideration all of the varied forms of tax now in use or that might be devised and put into use, and all existing sources of revenue and new sources of revenue that might be developed; administrative methods and procedures which now obtain in respect to each such tax and how they might be improved; present and prospective governmental expenditures of each governmental agency and the bearing thereof upon and relation to each and every form of tax now imposed or that might be devised and imposed; and the operation, effect, administration, enforcement, and needed revision of any and all laws in any way bearing upon or relating to the subjects of this resolution; and to report thereon to the Senate, including in the reports its recommendations for appropriate legislation.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Collier asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following suggestions to interim committees printed in the Journal:

Suggestions to Chairmen of Interim Committees

1. Interim committees are granted a fixed and certain life by the resolution creating the committee.
No expenditures can be incurred prior or subsequent to its existence; however, costs of preparing, typing and printing the final report (if incurred after the final day of the committee's life) is a proper charge.
2. All claims must be approved by the chairman of the committee. This includes claims approved by sub-committee chairmen.
3. All claims for per diem expense, travel, compensation, incidental expense, etc., must be signed by the person to whom the Controller's warrant is to be issued. The claimant's signature must be acknowledged by a Legislator or some other person competent to attest such signature.
4. The following items of expense may be submitted WITHOUT VOUCHERS:
  - (a) Per diem expense (dates must be shown).
  - (b) Mileage (dates and points of starting and destination must be shown).
  - (c) Telephone and telegraph charges (no Federal taxes), $1 and under.
  - (d) Railroad and bus fares (no Federal taxes). (See Pullman accommodations in No. 5.)
  - (e) Taxi fares, $1 and under.
5. The following items of expense must be submitted WITH VOUCHERS:
  - (a) Hotel accommodations (where expense is on actual cost basis).
  - (b) Pullman accommodations (where no mileage is claimed).
  - (c) Purchases of supplies, stationery, etc.
  - (d) Postage, expressage, etc.
  - (e) Payments to casual employees.
  - (f) Telegraph and telephone tolls (no Federal taxes) over $1 (show party called).
6. All claims for compensation of employees must show:
  - (a) Actual dates for which compensation is claimed.
  - (b) Rate of compensation.
  - (c) Position occupied by employee.
  - (d) Federal withholding tax exemption certificate (if none is on file with Controller).
7. The resolution authorizes mileage (51¢ per mile) ONLY TO MEMBERS OF COMMITTEE. No employee is entitled to travel expense unless he actually incurs expense therefor and, then, only in the amount expended. Each employee claiming travel expense must submit the following information:
  - (a) Method of travel.
  - (b) Points of departure and destination.
  - (c) Times of departure and arrival (to substantiate hotel and meal expense).
  - (d) Necessity for travel.
  - (e) Dates on which each item of expense was incurred.

(NOTE.—The Budget Act contains the requirements that before the Controller draws his warrant on the Contingent Funds of each House, he must be in receipt of proper vouchers.)
8. Per diem expense is ONLY AUTHORIZED FOR MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE. No employee is entitled to per diem expense except on a full 24-hour basis and past practice has been to allow an amount comparable to State employees.
9. Fees for committee reporters is now provided by Chapter 31, Statutes 1945, amending Section 274, Code of Civil Procedure. Statements should be rendered based on the number of words transcribed; folios are not authorized in the above act.
10. Interim committees are usually created to "ascertain, study and analyze all facts" concerning the subject for which the committee was created and to "report its recommendations" to the Legislature.
The submission of a final report by a committee to the Legislature is its last act; the committee has completed the labor for which it was created. No further expense can be incurred.
The resolution grants no authority to the committee to purchase additional copies of its final report.
The committee may purchase additional copies of a partial or preliminary report for distribution to individuals and organizations for the dissemination of information and to aid its membership in gathering additional data to complete the labor for which it was created, viz.: the submission of a final report to the Legislature. (Such a statement should be made when presenting a claim for such a purchase.)

WHEREAS, Much State legislation is pending and contemplated for consideration for the purpose of making the maximum possible beneficial use of the waters of the State; and

WHEREAS, There is much Federal legislation now pending and in contemplation for enactment which would provide for various Federal activities in connection with the solution of our water development and conservation problems, and there is much confusion as to just how California and the Federal Government may best cooperate in solving these problems, and a comprehensive plan should be carefully worked out for such cooperation between them; and

WHEREAS, It is a question also how rapidly the water resources of the State should be developed to meet the increasing economic demands of the State and to keep pace therewith, including the decision as to which watersheds should be developed first and in what order, or if all should be developed concurrently; and

WHEREAS, There is the as yet unsolved problem of carrying on this development without foreclosing the future development of the mountain areas in which these waters originate and have their source; and

WHEREAS, There is doubt and uncertainty concerning the means best adapted to avoid injury to fish life and other wild life, in fostering the maximum beneficial use of water; and

WHEREAS, The recreational needs of the State must also be taken into consideration; now, therefore, be it

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Swing asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to have the following communication and resolution from the State Board of Equalization, printed in the Journal:

STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION, STATE OF CALIFORNIA

*Honorable Ralph E. Swing, State Senator
State Capitol, Sacramento, California*

DEAR SENATOR SWING: We have been informed that the Senate and Assembly have passed Senate Bill No. 800.

During the past few days some debate has been occasioned by one of the provisions of this bill, Section 38(g). As you know, this section is merely a restatement of the law now found in Section 38(e) of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act.

In reenacting this provision of law, the Legislature has renewed its expression of confidence in the fairness and integrity of the State Board of Equalization.

In view of the interest shown in Section 38(g) of Senate Bill No. 800, this board has adopted a resolution of policy with respect to its administration of this section of the present law, or the restatement in Senate Bill No. 800, which is attached hereto. The resolution states that the board will, in the public interest, consider or adopt only such rules as will promote free commerce for all beer manufacturers, whether located within or without the State, and will give fair and equal opportunity to all. We believe that the public purposes served by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act will be better served by uniformity of administration, regulation and business practice.

We respectfully request that the attached resolution be read and printed in the Senate Journal as a statement of the board's intention to carry out the public purposes of this legislative enactment.

Very truly yours,

R. E. COLLINS, Chairman

RESOLUTION

Introduced by: William G. Bonelli, James H. Quinn, George R. Reilley, R. E. Collins.

WHEREAS, Senate Bill 800 contains a provision which has been the subject of recent controversy, relative to rule making powers of the State Board of Equalization to foster and encourage the orderly wholesale marketing of beer, and known as Section 38g, and

WHEREAS, Section 38g is a restatement of the law which has been contained in Section 38e of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act since 1937, and has been interpreted by the then Attorneys General U. S. Webb and Earl Warren, and applied by the State Board of Equalization on two occasions only, and

WHEREAS, The purpose of the provision is to enable the State Board of Equalization to give equality of opportunity to all beer manufacturers to do business in this state, pursuant to the beneficent restrictions of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act adopted in the public interest, and

WHEREAS, In eight years of administration the only now effective rule adopted under this provision is one which merely requires out of state brewers and other beer distributors to promise to obey the provisions of the California Alcoholic Beverage Control Act in their transactions in California and to report their sales in California for tax purposes, in accordance with the requirements imposed on California brewers and distributors, and

WHEREAS, Under the provisions of the 21st Amendment to the United States Constitution each state retains power to control traffic in alcoholic beverages within its boundaries, and equal regulation is desirable with respect to licensed manufacturers located within and without each state's jurisdiction, in connection with transactions in alcoholic beverages in each such state, and

WHEREAS, Section 38g of Senate Bill 800 furnishes the means of securing such equal and uniform administration, regulation, and marketing opportunity; Now Therefore Be It

Resolved, that the State Board of Equalization does hereby declare its policy as evidenced by eight years of administration, to consider and adopt under the provisions of Section 38e of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, or the provisions of Section 38g of Senate Bill 800, if enacted, only such rules as will not constitute trade barriers, but will permit the full and free flow of commerce in beer in this state, with fair and equal opportunity to all beer manufacturers, whether located within or without this State, in accordance with the legal principles expounded by the Attorney General of this State, and with the desire to promote free commerce between the several states.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was received and read: and on motion of Senator Hulse, ordered printed in the Journal:

DEPARTMENT OF WATER AND POWER, THE CITY OF LOS ANGELES

June 7, 1945

Honorable Ben Hulse, The State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR SENATOR HULSE: Responsive to interest shown by you it seems some further interpretation, as it appeals to me may be of interest, of the report of the Colorado River Board of California respecting the proceedings on the Mexican Water Treaty, addressed to Governor Earl Warren on May 3, 1945, a copy of which was transmitted to the President of the Senate and printed in the Senate Journal of May 11. The Members of the Senate and Assembly have shown a keen and vitally helpful interest in California's efforts to protect the property and rights of its institutions and people.

The efforts on the part of the institutions of California, Nevada, the water users of the Colorado River Basin as a whole, and six of the more important national organizations, totalling more than 10,000,000 members, in opposition to the provisions of the proposed water Treaty with Mexico were successful to the extent of securing eleven reservations on the part of the United States Senate as a condition to the ratification of the Treaty; and the provision of an addition to the resolution of ratification to the effect that the reservations "will be mentioned in the ratification of this Treaty as conveying the true meaning of the Treaty, and will in effect form a part of the Treaty."

The Treaty, as generally understood, gave Mexico 1,500,000 acre feet of firm first-right water but in fact might have resulted, as indicated in the Report, in Mexico getting more than 3,000,000 acre feet of water and it is our conclusion that Mexico undoubtedly would have gotten at least something like 2,250,000 acre feet of water per year.

The reservations affecting jurisdictions, particularly reservations (b), (g), and (i), will give California interests and others of the Basin a fighting opportunity through the Congress and the courts to protect their interests in lieu of being at the mercy of the arbitrary powers of the Boundary Commission and State Department as otherwise set up in the Treaty. This, coupled with the limitations placed on the amount of water, is of immense value to the institutions of California and together these should result in reducing the unjust and needless sacrifices otherwise imposed on our institutions to less than one-half what they otherwise would have been.

Of course the Treaty, with the reservations, means a great curtailment and loss in the Colorado River Basin, primarily curtailment for want of domestic water for expansion of urban and industrial areas as well as water for lands dedicated to veterans' preference. Seven hundred fifty thousand acre feet yearly of guaranteed water would support more than 2,000,000 additional United States citizens in thrift and happiness in this Basin and upward of $3,000,000,000 of productivity, two-thirds locally and one-third purchased from other sections of the country, corresponding to a loss to the Federal Treasury in taxes of approximately $60,000,000 yearly at the schedules of 1940. The benefits to the United States in advantages to Texas under the Treaty in productivity and taxes will not exceed possibly one-twentieth of the loss in the Pacific Southwest.

During the three years, starting with 1942, that the Treaty was under negotiation there were conversations between the State Department and the Interior Department; and, contrary to the plans and rights of the Boulder power contractors, these Departments caused additional water releases from Boulder during the irrigation season in Mexico, and at one time caused water to pass through the All-American Canal to Mexico, and thus enabled Mexico to greatly increase, in fact to practically double, the use of water during those three years over and above what otherwise it would have been possible for Mexico to put to use. This was done without any stipulation with Mexico that such increased use should not be the basis of claim by Mexico in Treaty negotiations as requested by our institutions; but on the contrary the State Department, in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, pleaded Mexico's case by urging the fact of this greater use by Mexico, contrary to precedent in treaty making, as justification for granting to Mexico 1,500,000 acre feet of guaranteed water in perpetuity, an amount double what Mexico ever did use or could use economically from the unregulated river.

The general attitude of the State Department is such as to make it clearly necessary for California to follow the administration of the Treaty by the Boundary Commission and the United States Commissioner and to thus protect its rights by maintaining its position, as best we can, before the Congress and the courts; also through the Congress and the courts to maintain our water and power rights and interests, as best we can, within the Colorado River Basin in the United States during the period of their final determination as between the several states.

Respectfully submitted.

MOTION TO PRINT REPORT IN JOURNAL

Senator Dorsey moved that the following supplemental report of the Senate Interim Committee on State Training Schools for Boys and Girls be printed in the Journal.

Motion carried.

SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT OF THE SENATE INTERIM COMMITTEE ON STATE TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS TO THE STATE SENATE, CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE, FIFTY-SIXTH SESSION,
SACRAMENTO, 1945

Your Interim Committee, appointed under Senate Resolution No. 22, Fifty-fifth (Fourth Extraordinary) Session, to investigate and study the feasibility and desirability of acquiring sites for the establishment of State Training Schools for Boys and Girls, makes the following additional report:

Following its report heretofore filed with the Senate the members of the above mentioned committee, as authors thereof, introduced in the Senate, on January 23, 1945, Senate Bill No. 347, containing the policy of establishing three schools recommended by the committee in the aforesaid report. The members also introduced Senate Bills Nos. 346 and 348, containing the items of appropriation.

Upon the passage in this Senate of the said policy bill, Senate Bill No. 347, the bill was referred in the Assembly to the Committee on Governmental Efficiency and Economy. The members of that committee desired that the appropriation be placed in the bill by amendment before the committee. The amendment inserting the appropriation was adopted by the committee and thereupon the committee gave the bill a favorable recommendation and it was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means of the Assembly. The bill was allowed to remain in the committee, being neither tabled or passed out by the committee.

The chairman of your interim committee was requested by the members thereof to introduce a resolution asking that the interim committee be continued until the next regular session of the Legislature, to further study the subject. The latter resolution has been adopted by the Senate. The committee will make a further study and investigation of the subject mentioned in the original resolution.

Since the filing of the first report your committee has received information that leads the members of the committee to believe that the Federal Government will cooperate with the State of California, should the opportunity present itself, in the acquisition by the State of surplus war properties, including abandoned Army and/or Navy camps, as sites for the schools proposed by this committee in its first report. This will greatly reduce the cost to the State of establishing the proposed schools.

It is the belief of the committee that the three schools recommended in its former report and proposed in said Senate Bill No. 347 can be acquired and established, fully equipped for school purposes, for the amount mentioned in said Senate Bill, as amended in the Assembly, to wit: $800,000, if the Legislature finally decides to establish the schools and the money is appropriated and available when such properties are placed on the surplus property sale list by the Federal Government.

The prior right of the State to purchase war surplus properties, as provided in the War Surplus Property Act of 1944 was the direct result of the activities of this committee, as set forth in its former report. The benefit to the State from such activity of the committee will be found in the report to the California Legislature, Fifty-sixth Session, 1945, by the Joint Committee on Purchase of Federal Property, appointed under Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 19, adopted January 27, 1945, which report is dated and filed with the Legislature June 7, 1945.

As to the maintenance and operation of the schools, the various items of abatement into the fund from the sources mentioned in the former report of this committee and in the said Senate bill will reduce the additional expense to the State to less than one-half of the total cost of the maintenance and operation of said schools.

It is the opinion of this committee that the establishment, maintenance and operation of these proposed schools, as suggested in its first report, and as proposed in said bill, would prove economical to the State and counties, and would be extremely beneficial in decreasing juvenile delinquency.

Since the filing of the first report, additional testimony has been accepted, including communications from various interested persons. Mr. C. J. Anderson, Chairman, Child Welfare Commission of the American Legion, in a communication to its Legislative Commission under date of February 8, 1945, and which communication has been filed with this committee, states in part:

"There can be no argument with this proposition as it is sound, constructive and in stride with the thinking of all people who have concerned themselves with the study of juvenile problems. This is the type of legislation that American Legion can whole-heartedly go along with as it is providing youth, who have been unfortunate enough to have perhaps made a mistake, an opportunity to rehabilitate themselves without the stigma of Detention Home, Reform School or whatever other form of incarceration happens to be in vogue now. I feel that the American Legion should get solidly behind the proponents of this bill and give them whatever assistance they might require.

"We have taken as our slogan in the Child Welfare Division of the American Legion, 'A Square Deal For Every Child'. Let's see that they get it. Establishment of these schools will be another step forward to the achievement of that goal."

Also a communication from William E. Barden, State Director of Service and Rehabilitation, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, Department of California, which communication has been filed with this committee, wherein he states in part:

"We do not reassemble until after the session may well have been over, we have gone on record, and this is said with no contradiction: All of our members who have had pointed out the feature that this places children under the jurisdiction of the Probate Court and not the Juvenile Court when the State takes over on a parens patriae relationship, and when no delinquency or criminology is involved and thus avoiding any stigma of a wardship of the Juvenile Court. Personally, we think this a most desirable piece of legislation.

"The writer was for some time the Deputy District Attorney assigned to the Juvenile Court, and from the tragedies that were seen to happen, by incident rather than by design, it is felt that this is a long step in a humane approach to the treatment of a very tragedy-pregnant situation."

Also a communication from Mr. W. L. Kuser, Superintendent of The San Francisco Protestant Orphanage, in which he states in part:

"We continue to spend billions of dollars to build prisons to lock up criminals and give little thought to investing a fraction of the amount in constructing a few California Academies to stop the everlasting flow of men and women into our penal institutions.

"It is a crime against our youth to plan legislative programs for more prisons without setting off against that item one to help youngsters avoid drifting into the ways of crime. * * *

"I am of the firm belief that if people generally knew of this Bill and its provisions and what it would mean in preventing delinquency, there would be no question as to its being generally approved by the public."

Also a communication from H. W. Underhill, President of Lark Ellen Home for Boys in West Los Angeles, California, which reads as follows:

"Please express to the Committee my unqualified endorsement of Senate Bill No. 347, California Academy Bill. No stone should be left unturned to provide every facility possible for the proper training of the youth of California. I feel sure that the vast majority of the electorate would favor this measure."

We find that appropriations are requested in this session of the Legislature for money with which to construct an additional correctional institution and several million dollars to maintain and operate correctional schools in this State, but the State is not expending any money which will have the effect of diminishing juvenile delinquency.

It is the consensus of this committee that the State should assist in decreasing the juvenile delinquency situation in this State by providing the training facilities for the children mentioned in Sections 22 and 23 of Senate Bill 347, for the purposes provided in Sections 14, 15 and 16 of the bill, instead of allowing the child to remain in environments and conditions that produce delinquency and then attempt to reform it by having the child committed to a so-called reform school, and that this result can be and will be accomplished by establishing, maintaining and operating the schools recommended by this committee in its former report and re-affirmed in this report.

The committee again expresses its appreciation for the magnanimous assistance rendered the committee by the various judges of juvenile departments of the Superior Court, juvenile probation officers, sheriffs, police officers, public and private school officials and private citizens in its study and investigation of this subject.

Respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF THE SENATE FACT-FINDING COMMITTEE ON STATE HIGHWAY REVENUES TO THE HONORABLE FREDERICK F.
HOUSER, PRESIDENT, AND TO THE MEMBERS OF THE SENATE

Senate Resolution No. 18, adopted June 13, 1944, reads as follows:

Senate Resolution No. 18
Relative to appointment of a Senate Fact-Finding Committee on State Highway Revenues

WHEREAS, State highway revenues have for a number of years been inadequate to finance construction and reconstruction of State highways so as to keep pace with their deterioration and obsolescence; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature, at the Fifty-fifth Regular Session, by Chapter 564 of the Statutes of 1943, appropriated the sum of twelve million dollars for the preparation of plans and the acquisition of rights of way for postwar construction and reconstruction of State highways, and directed and instructed the Department of Public Works to report to the Fifty-sixth Session of the Legislature as to expenditures made of moneys so appropriated and estimating the construction cost of each project for which plans have been prepared or rights of way secured; and

WHEREAS, It is advisable that the Legislature be informed as to the adequacy of existing State highway revenues to provide for such postwar construction and reconstruction of State highways and as to necessity for additional revenues to meet postwar needs; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That there be and is hereby created a Committee of the Senate to study and ascertain facts and to determine the sufficiency and adequacy of State highway revenues for State highway construction and reconstruction; and be it further

Resolved, That it shall be the duty of said committee, if it finds that additional revenues are needed, to study and recommend to the Legislature means and sources of additional State highway revenue; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee shall consist of five Members of the Senate, which committee shall be appointed by the Rules Committee of the Senate; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee, in exercising its powers and performing the functions vested in it by this resolution, shall have all the powers conferred upon Legislative Committees by Sections 9400 to 9412 of the Government Code, and by the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly as adopted at the Fifty-fifth Regular Session of the Legislature and all powers necessary or convenient to accomplish the objects and purposes of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee shall prepare and submit to the Fifty-sixth Session of the Legislature a report of its findings and recommendations; and be it further

Resolved, That the members of the committee shall serve without compensation but shall be allowed mileage at the rate of five and one-half cents ($0.05½) per mile each way incurred in connection with their services upon the committee and other actual and necessary expenses for living accommodations and meals, incurred in connection with their services upon the committee, or in lieu of such expenses for accommodations and meals an allowance of twelve dollars ($12) per day; and be it further

Resolved, That the sum of seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby made available from the Contingent Funds of the Senate for the expenses or claims it may incur under this resolution, to be paid, after certification by the chairman of the committee, upon warrants drawn by the State Controller upon the State Treasurer.

Pursuant to this resolution a Senate Fact-Finding Committee on State Highway Revenues, was appointed by the Committee on Rules, on June 13, 1944. It consisted of Senators Thomas McCormack, George J. Hatfield, Randolph Collier, James J. McBride, and Jack B. Tenney. Immediately upon adjournment of the Senate on June 13, 1944, the Committee met in Room 205, State Capitol, Sacramento, for the purpose of organization. Senator McCormack was elected Chairman and Senator Hatfield was elected Vice Chairman. Wanda Durkee was appointed to serve as secretary.

The committee thus constituted has undertaken the studies contemplated by the resolution and herewith presents its report.

The committee considers it was given two specific assignments which may be summarized as follows:

- (1) To establish the relevant facts and from such study and analysis to determine the sufficiency of highway revenues for construction and reconstruction on the State Highway System, and
- (2) If it is found that additional revenues are needed, to recommend to the Legislature sources of additional State highway funds.

The committee in making its investigation requested the assistance and advice of interested individuals and groups. The response has been most generous. For this, members of the committee wish to express their sincere thanks. The volume of research and data made available enabled the committee to reach conclusions which, we believe, are sound and fully supported by the record before us.

Adequacy of Present State Highway Revenues for Construction and Reconstruction

In initiating its study, the committee invited Mr. C. H. Purcell, Director of Public Works and for many years State Highway Engineer, to state his views respecting State highway finances. The following is quoted from his remarks:

"I wish to state very definitely that the general situation with regard to revenues for State Highways has given me much concern for a long time. It has been apparent for some years that there were insufficient funds available to the Division of Highways to maintain the State Highway System in condition for proper use, and to guard against the loss of investment and at the same time properly provide for obsolescence and adequate development of the system to meet its continuing and increasing needs."

And, after reviewing the history of revenues received by the Division of Highways since the gasoline tax first became effective, the increases in road mileage taken into the State system, together with increases in traffic volume, speed, and weight of vehicles, and the consequent demand for more adequate highway facilities, Mr. Purcell further stated:

"Thus, during the last 10 or 12 years prior to the war, the cost of traffic service over this extended system had increased very materially per vehicle unit; and while there had been an increase in total gasoline tax and registration fees, there had been a gradual losing of ground insofar as overall improvement of the entire highway system was concerned."

These statements of Mr. Purcell confirmed what appears to be the consensus of the Senate as expressed in the preamble to its resolution creating the committee. The committee, however, desired to develop and assemble all available factual data with respect to the adequacy or inadequacy of present highway revenues. Accordingly, Mr. George T. McCoy, State Highway Engineer, was requested to prepare answers to the following specific questions:

1. Of what economic importance to California is motor transport?
2. What are the critical deficiencies of the State Highway System at this time, and why are they critical?
3. Is the construction and improvement of the State Highway System keeping pace with the obsolescence and deterioration?
4. What is the registration of motor vehicles in California as compared with other States?
5. What is the revenue from fuel taxes and registration fees in California per registered motor vehicle compared with other States?
6. What is the estimated amount available for State highway construction and improvement in the next biennium?
7. What will it cost to correct such deficiencies as exist? Within what period of time should the improvement be made?
8. How much of the cost can be met from present revenue?
9. What were the expenditures of the Division of Highways over the last three years before the war?
10. What are the present administration costs and costs during normal times?
11. What are the average costs per mile of two-lane highways in the north and south county groups?
12. What is the primary and secondary mileage in the two sections of the State? Reflect this mileage in terms of registered automobiles by counties.
13. What is the percentage of area of each county to total area of State?
14. Does north or south have most mountainous primary highways and mileages?
15. Submit some average year's proposal for the budget by the Department of Public Works to the Highway Commission and the action taken by the commission.
16. What is the number of miles of declared freeways?

The report of the Division of Highways in answer to this request contains facts and statistics which merit the fullest consideration of the Senate. Copies have been furnished to the President and to each Member of both houses of the Legislature. We wish it considered an integral part of this report. Volume I of the Division of Highway's report is attached hereto designated Appendix A. (Volume II consisting of maps is not included as a part of this report.)

A state-wide committee known as the California Major Highway Development Committee has for the past year been conducting an independent study of postwar highway needs. This committee of 15 is made up of representatives from each of the following organizations:

- The California State Chamber of Commerce
- The League of California Cities
- The State Supervisors' Association
- The Automobile Club of Southern California
- The California State Automobile Association

As previously indicated, members of this group stated their conclusions before the Senate Committee and their recommendations are included in the "Statement Relative to the Recommendations of the California Major Highway Development Committee," issued January 11, 1945. A copy is attached hereto designated Appendix B.

Supplementing this statement, testimony to the effect that present revenues are inadequate was given personally by Mr. H. A. Mitchell, Director, State Chamber of Commerce, and Mr. E. S. Moore, California State Automobile Association, who are respectively chairman and member of the finance committee of the organization.

Further statements with respect to the inadequacy of present highway revenues were made by the following individuals who appeared before the committee:

Mr. David G. Shearer, Executive Vice President, Trucking Industry Incorporated
Mr. Harold C. Morton, Secretary, Independent Petroleum and Consumers Association

Mr. Rex Nicholson, Managing Director, Builders of the West, Incorporated
Honorable Samuel Heisinger, Member of the State Assembly

Mr. Morton was the only person appearing before the committee at any time whose testimony could be construed as raising any question as to the inadequacy of present highway revenues. He opposed any proposal to increase the tax on gasoline, not because he did not fully subscribe to the need for improved and expanded highway facilities but because, in his opinion, an increase in motor vehicle registration and travel in the future will provide required revenues. He presented no data in support of this assertion.

On this same point, Mr. Moore, of the State Automobile Association, had this to say:

"You have had testimony before this Committee which has demonstrated that the highway system of California, the State Highway System, has fallen behind. It has fallen behind in the revenues available to build and maintain that system to the standards needed to accommodate existing traffic. If that is true, bear in mind it has been falling behind during a period when we have had increases in motor vehicle registrations from year to year with the exception of the first and second depression years 1932 and 1933, when there was some slight decrease.

If it were true that future increases in motor vehicle registrations would take care of the deficiencies, then obviously we wouldn't be in the predicament we are presumably in today, falling behind during a period of years when we have had a constant and general increase in motor vehicle registrations."

Mr. Nicholson, representing the Builders of the West, an organization of about 200 companies and individuals in the construction industry or affiliated with it, asserted "our present highways have been deteriorating very rapidly and badly for lack of upkeep during the war — that we are in definite need of a tremendous highway construction program to be started immediately following the war — and that there is an enormous amount of repair and maintenance that is overdue and needs to be supplied as quickly as possible."

Assemblyman Heisinger stated:

"It has been proven over and over that California is operating its roads at less than cost because we are not keeping them up; they are falling off day by day and have been for many years, not only in the war but for many years.

It has been clear to me that California should have had the increase in tax a long time ago to maintain its highway system. Had we done so, we wouldn't have the situation we have today."

Extent of Inadequacy

In view of the general agreement for the need of additional revenues, the committee attempted to ascertain the extent of the inadequacy. It asked the Division of Highways to answer these questions:

What are the critical deficiencies of the State Highway System at this time, and why are they critical?

What will it cost to correct such deficiencies as exist?

The answers are given in the report of the Division of Highways. (Appendix A)

There are certain aspects concerning these particular answers to which the committee wishes to call attention. We limited the question to "critical" deficiencies and asked that an explanation be given as to the characteristics which make a highway deficiency "critical". "Critical Projects" were defined by the State Highway Engineer as being those individual parts of the State Highway System which, because of some marked deficiency, are in urgent need of improvement or replacement. And it was emphasized that this list was to be restricted to those projects which, because of actual deficiencies, warrant immediate consideration. While fully recognizing that there are many projects on the highway that are altogether worthy of consideration for improvement, only those which could meet certain exacting qualifications of a substantial nature were to be included as being "critical projects".

To qualify, the report of the Division of Highways points out, one or a combination of the following conditions of insufficiency must be present to a marked degree:

1. Critical bridges. These include all bridges now posted for less than present legal loads and those in which deterioration has progressed to such a degree that posting or replacement will be necessary in the near future.
2. Abnormal maintenance cost arising primarily from structural weakness of base or pavement.

3. Inadequate traffic capacity. Sections of the system where traffic volume is in excess of that which the present highway will properly accommodate.
4. Specific points of hazard or obstruction. Locations with abnormal rate of accident recurrence or where obstructions such as slides, floods, roadway subsidence continue at frequent intervals to seriously delay and hinder traffic.

Freeways. In addition to the four groups of critical deficiencies enumerated, the general absence of modern highway facilities of the freeway type necessary to adequately solve the serious traffic problem in large metropolitan areas was also to be considered as a major deficiency.

Predicated upon these specific yard sticks, a comprehensive survey of the entire State highway system was made by the Division of Highways and the type and location of these various "critical deficiencies" is graphically presented on base and overlay maps presented to the committee and Legislature with the report of the Division of Highways. Reference to the maps reveals how extensive these deficiencies are, both in total amount and in their far-reaching effect upon practically every section of the State.

At the same time projects were qualified as "critical", estimates of costs of reconstruction were made. These in grand total were found to be approximately $630,000,000, made up substantially as follows, listing the major groupings:

Critical bridges	$ 17,000,000
Structural weakness base or pavement	59,000,000
Inadequate traffic capacity	170,000,000
Specific points of hazard or obstruction	99,000,000
Freeways in metropolitan areas	285,000,000

The California Major Highway Development Committee, while confining its presentation to inadequacy in traffic capacity, indicates more or less definitely the mileage which it considers inadequate in this respect. Based upon its studies, the aggregate is approximately 3,300 miles, 600 miles of which are inside the seven metropolitan districts of the State, and the remainder composed of two main north-south arteries and five east-west laterals, all as shown on the map included in Appendix B.

The Major Highway Development Committee estimated the cost of its program as between $700,000,000 and $870,000,000, including freeways within metropolitan areas. This estimate of the extent of inadequacy is not greatly at variance with the figure of $630,000,000 arrived at by the Division of Highways. The Division of Highways report contemplates the improvements needed within the next ten-year period, while the California Major Highway Development Committee proposes a program extending over a somewhat longer period.

Conclusions

In view of the information developed by this investigation, the Senate Fact-Finding Committee on State Highway Revenues has reached the following conclusions:

1. The facts definitely establish that present State highway revenues are not now adequate for State highway construction and reconstruction.
2. That additional highway revenues should be provided during the next ten years.
3. While it is apparent that the development of a Limited Access Highway or Freeway System, especially in the congested urban areas of the State, is essential to the proper development of our highway system and the metropolitan districts of Northern and Southern California, it is also apparent that the development of the feeder or farm-to-market roads in the County and State road systems is also essential to the growth and development of our rural area and the development of one should not suffer at the expense of the other.

Recommendations

The committee recommends:

1. That present revenues be increased and be made available exclusively for State highway construction.
2. That a further and more comprehensive study should be made of the entire problem presented by the conclusions of this committee.

ON STATE HIGHWAY REVENUE

DIVISION OF HIGHWAYS

To the Honorable, THE SENATE COMMITTEE
ON STATE HIGHWAY REVENUES:

At the meeting of your Honorable Committee, in the Senate Committee Room of the State Capitol, on October 4, 1944, answers to certain questions were requested of this department. This statement is submitted in compliance with such request of your committee.

The specific answers to the questions put by the committee will be found in the Summary, page 30. The portion of this statement preceding the Summary is intended to set forth the background and details upon which the conclusions expressed in the answers to your questions are based.

Scope and Importance

The present State Highway System consists of 13,891 miles of roads divided as between Primary and Secondary routes and between rural and city mileage, as follows:

	Miles in cities	Miles outside cities	Total miles
Primary Routes -----	459	4,038	4,497
Secondary Routes -----	598	8,796	9,394
Totals -----	1,057	12,834	13,891

This mileage of highways covers the entire State, reaching into all of the 58 counties, and constitutes the basic facility for the larger portion of all rural motor transport as well as providing the main arteries which serve a very substantial percentage of all urban traffic. The thoroughly comprehensive manner in which this system provides for the major features of the State's economy is strikingly shown by the base and overlay maps in Volume II of this statement, relating the State highways to:

1. Population
2. Agricultural Areas
3. Recreational Areas

No compilation of figures which might have been offered could so adequately describe the scope of the highway system and the fullness of coverage which it provides for every important element in the welfare and economy of the State of California.

Granted that Transportation is important and so acknowledged to be by everyone, a brief restatement of the basic nature of this importance is not inappropriate in a study of this character.

Transportation is a fundamental thing. It is, in fact, a thing so basic to our whole scheme of living that by the degree of its development we can closely measure the progress of civilization itself. All forms of transportation by whatever medium—water, rail, air, pipe line—make important contributions; but of all methods employed, Road Transport has always been and continues to be man's primary means of movement and intercommunication. For short trips the Road has no competition. Even where for longer movements some other medium may be found advantageous for some intermediate portion, the Road is again called upon at one or both ends to finally complete the job. To this important extent the Road has always been and still remains indispensable.

Since the advent of the individually owned and operated motor vehicle, and as the result of greatly widened scope and flexibility, road transport has increased in volume and importance at such a rapid pace that when curtailment became necessary as a war measure there was general amazement at discovering how universally dependent we are upon motor transport. The facts, however, were inescapable and forced prompt admission that any drastic cut in this type of transportation would mean certain breakdown of our entire economy.

Motor transport has grown up. Only in terms of billions can we now measure the sum total of its vehicle mileage, passenger mileage, and ton mileage. The motor vehicle has come to be the most universally cherished single physical possession of the American people. This is easily understandable, for in many ways it is the very embodiment of freedom, a self-contained agency which gives to the individual a heretofore un hoped for range of choice as to time and space in all his activities, both for the business and the leisure of living. Most important to consider is the fact that the possibilities which motor transport holds for increased usefulness to the individual and the community have only been touched. The public is fully aware that this is true. In consequence, they quickly resent any proposal which has the appearance of restricting or retarding the extension of its usefulness. There is little danger that the progress of motor transport toward attaining its maximum usefulness will be seriously delayed by any positive action aimed at its curtailment. For the people may be depended upon to easily recognize and to promptly deal with such attempts. The real threat to the achievement of the fullest benefit which motor transport can bring is not open opposition but the failure of highway users in general to fully appreciate the inevitable progressive deterioration and obsolescence of physical facilities which attach to any expanding enterprise, either public or private, unless adequate provision is made in advance to meet the certain and increasing demands.

Your own awareness of these things, manifest in your present request for specific information, is gratifying to the Division of Highways as administrators charged with the serious responsibility of proper upkeep and operation of the State Highway System.

Whatever may be said of the importance of Road Transport in general, applies with added force to California. Development of a country does not bring roads—roads bring development. And California to an unusual degree is indebted to roads for her development. For this State with its immense distances, its extremes in topography, climate, and its many other extraordinary physical phenomena would never have evolved into the present great commonwealth except for roads. No more can it continue to exist without them; and still more certainly, the future development of its vast potential natural riches is dependent in almost direct ratio upon the extent to which satisfactory road transport facilities are made available.

With us in California, "road transport facilities" is almost synonymous with "State highway facilities," since although the mileage forming the State Highway System comprises but one-eighth of all rural roads in the State, it accounts for practically three of every four miles traveled outside of our cities. This commanding place which the State highways occupy in motor transport was clearly brought out in the data developed by the "California Highway Transportation Survey of 1934," an all-inclusive study conducted by the Division of Highways, which embraced all of the road and street systems of the State. In general, its comparative findings are currently valid, since only very minor changes in the road mileages of the various systems have occurred since that date. The correctness of these findings has been further established through the intervening years by constant check and comparison of gasoline consumption records with actual State-wide traffic counts on all State highways and supplementary surveys of other rural roads which have been conducted by the Planning Survey. This 1934 study has thus come to be widely accepted as a source of basic transportation data, and as such we shall at times make further reference to it.

Traffic

For the year 1941, prior to the war-emergency restrictions on transportation, traffic on the rural portion of the State Highway System alone totaled approximately 8,925,000,000 vehicle miles as computed from actual traffic counts. This was 33 per cent of all the motor vehicle traffic in the State, both inside and outside of cities, as arrived at through reports of total net gasoline consumption, a ratio practically identical with that established in the 1934 survey above referred to when traffic was actually counted on all road and street systems. Thus, there appears ample warrant to assume that the urban mileage of State highways also continued to serve its normal proportion of the city traffic. This would bring to 12,750,000,000 the total vehicle miles traveled during the year 1941 on the combined rural and urban mileage of State highways, a figure wholly incomprehensible in itself but which at once fixes beyond argument the paramount place of the State Highway System in motor transportation.

The true significance of billions of vehicle miles of traffic on our highways is impossible for any of us to grasp unless translated and broken down into specific, tangible items of daily interest and concern. Motor vehicle traffic, if any analysis at all is contemplated, is most commonly first separated into the two classes: Passenger and Freight.

Passenger Vehicle Traffic

It is truly astonishing, the widespread, almost universal misconception which was held prior to and even long after we were fully engaged in all-out war effort, that the passenger automobile was simply a pleasure car and that we could and should in time of war dispense with such an item of luxury. This misconception reached to the very highest circles in both industry and Government, and only through the sharp impact of the partial elimination of this mode of travel which immediately threatened the efficient operation of all our essential undertakings did we come to realize that the private passenger automobile is, beyond argument, no longer a luxury, nor yet simply a useful contrivance, but occupies its own secure position as an acknowledged necessity. This is attested to by the general agreement among those who have been compelled to give this subject the most careful study that our National pool of passenger cars in service must not be allowed to drop below 20,000,000 if we are to avoid serious disruption of the war program. After the closest scrutiny of every detail of use, it was determined that approximately 65 per cent of all normal passenger car traffic met even the very drastic requirements set up for wartime essentiality.

With this large percentage of passenger traffic thus established as basic to mere continued existence, no further proof is needed of the outstanding importance of adequate provision for the fullest use of this type of transportation for normal periods of peace and extended development. The place which the State highways hold in serving this traffic may be gauged by the fact that during 1941 on the rural portion of the system alone, passenger cars traveled over 7,400,000,000 miles. As we know, the greater part of this travel was made for the ordinary everyday needs of modern living, but we also know that a very large percentage of it occurred because so much of the State's recreational area, as may be noted on the base map in Volume II, is served by the highway and, due to topographic features, is readily accessible only by this means of transport. The unlimited store of recreational values which these regions contain is yearly attracting a fast increasing flow of travel. The immense profit in social wealth and welfare which they offer is almost wholly dependent upon how quickly and conveniently they may be reached. This is primarily a matter of adequate highway facilities, not just in the immediate vicinity of the great playgrounds themselves, but all the way, beginning at the large urban centers where the great bulk of the State's population is found.

Freight Vehicle Traffic

As previously commented upon, the road, always an important element in the movement of goods, has with the introduction of the motor vehicle assumed an increasingly larger role in this respect. Seemingly this mode of transport admits of no limits with respect to its capability of handling any commodity movement. Materials of all sizes and character are transported by motor vehicle over any distance, short or long, and at any legally permitted speed. Its vitally essential nature is not even questioned. On the contrary, every effort has been exerted throughout the present National emergency to the end that motor freight transport might function at its highest possible capacity. In California at the present time, 22 per cent of all vehicles on our highways are freight vehicles.

The service which this road transport performs is no less vital to our peacetime pursuits than that which it is now giving in the time of war emergency. A measure of the magnitude of this service may be had by reference to the major items of production which somewhere at some time move by road. In many instances the entire movement is by road, and in many other instances the same product before it completes the cycle from initial origin to final consumption has made several journeys by road transport.

Agricultural Products

The importance of agriculture to California is so outstanding and so thoroughly understood and accepted that a mere statement of this fact is wholly sufficient for the purposes of this statement. What is not so widely appreciated is the immense volume of California's agricultural products and how vitally dependent this agricultural empire is on road transport.

A compilation prepared by the State Department of Agriculture, in which the various units of bushels, bags, crates, etc., were reduced to equivalent tons, shows that for 1942 the three main groups of farm products amounted to approximately 19,000,000 tons, as follows:

Field Crops .....	10,671,000 tons
Fruit and Nut Crops.....	5,121,000 tons
Vegetables .....	3,206,000 tons
Total.....	18,998,000

Essentially all of this moved over the road for varying distances from a few miles to hundreds of miles. And it is well established that rarely is there a farm-to-market trip that does not use a State highway for a portion of the journey. The very high proportion of California's agricultural production which is perishable and critically seasonal still further accentuates the necessity for swift and certain transportation. Any uncertainty or breakdown in this may easily mean extreme losses.

Livestock and livestock products as shown by this same compilation above referred to, amounted to 3,567,000 tons. There are few, if any, products of the State which are so exclusively dependent upon road transport as are livestock and its products. Almost without exception these movements are by motor transport, whether the distance moved be long or short. Again, it may be pointed out that all of these commodities, and particularly market milk and other dairy products, call for speed and certainty in their movement.

There is need also to emphasize that the movement of farm products by highway is by no means something which concerns the farmer only. For the city dweller is fully as much concerned. Even in 1933, as was shown in the 1934 Transportation Survey, 83 per cent of the total tonnage received at the Los Angeles market came by truck, monthly receipts varying from 58,000 to 93,000 tons. During the same year at the San Francisco market 286,000 tons, or two-thirds of their total receipts, came by truck.

The constant and increasing use of trucks to supply these markets is a matter of common knowledge. Records of the movements of fruits and vegetables show that in 1941 trucks were carrying over 85 per cent of these commodities into the Los Angeles market and more than 69 per cent into San Francisco.

Mineral Products

No more than with respect to agriculture is it the purpose of this statement to attempt to establish the importance of the mineral production of California. It is, however, pertinent to draw attention to the volume of these products and note how heavily they depend upon the highways for their exploitation and distribution.

During the normal prewar year of 1941, total mineral production is reported by the State Mineralogist to have been approximately 79,000,000 tons. This, of course, included a very long list of individual items, but the large bulk of this tonnage is accounted for by the three products:

	Tons
Petroleum -----	38,000,000 (approx.)
Cement -----	3,665,000 (approx.)
Stone (includes sand, gravel, crushed rock, etc.) -----	34,626,000 (approx.)

With rare exceptions, these millions of tons of cement and stone products all have resort to motor transport over the road before their final use. In the case of petroleum products, which represent the largest single tonnage volume, their great dependence on the highways for distribution is not so generally appreciated. However, accurate records of large producers and marketers of petroleum show that in ton-miles of total movement fully 50 per cent is by motor transport.

Forest Products

Here again, with respect to another of the State's greatest products, we find how large a role the highway must play in the operation. There may be an inclination to think that truck movement of lumber is a comparatively minor part of the whole. The following table prepared by the Forest Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture quickly refutes any such thought.

Lumber Hauled by Truck in California by Regions

U. S. Forest Service California	Volume (thousand board feet)	Per cent of regional cut	Average distance one-way haul miles
Pine Region -----	845,000	47%	35
Redwood Region -----	146,000	30%	200
	<hr/> 991,000	<hr/> 43%	<hr/> 59

This movement by motor transport of approximately one billion board feet of lumber for an average haul of 59 miles is simply another imposing instance of the scope and importance of the State's highways.

This huge volume of freight traffic which our highways are called upon to handle is of constant and increasing concern to this department. We have noted that 22 per cent of all vehicles on the highway at the present time are freight vehicles. The short table of comparison below is of special interest. All are aware of the swift growth of motor traffic, and few will be surprised to find that over-all registration had increased 50 per cent between 1930 and 1941. But note that during this same period "trucks" increased 122 per cent; "trailers" increased 279 per cent; and the combination of "trucks plus trailers," which are the "freight vehicles," increased 174 per cent. No more convincing recognition could be given of the value which users place on highway transport.

Total Registration -----	2,136,630	3,198,669	50%
Passenger Cars -----	1,941,969	2,740,101	41%
Trucks -----	99,387	221,146	122%
Trailers -----	48,532	184,096	279%
Trucks plus trailers -----	147,919	405,242	174%

We wish also to emphasize that not only has there been this great increase in the number of freight vehicles using the highways but there has also been a marked increase in the average load which these vehicles carry, as shown by the following table:

TABLE 1
COMPARISON OF AVERAGE WEIGHT OF TRUCKS, 1944 VS 1936

Vehicle classifications	Year weighed		Per cent increase in average weight over the period

Photographs are included in Volume II of this statement which show typical examples of today's freight movements on the highway. These are not presented as examples of "overloads" but of the ordinary regular traffic to be seen daily throughout the State. Naturally, some "overloads" occur, but there is ample legal provision to care for such situations. The critical problem is not with these but with the rapid increase in freight vehicles, which, while fully within legal weight limits, do nevertheless have a very much higher average axle load than formerly. The increase in repetition of these heavy axle loads and the growing extension of such traffic into the more out-of-the-way sections presents a situation which can not be ignored.

Revenues

The revenues received by the Division of Highways to be used for State highway purposes are derived from the following sources:

- Gasoline Tax
- Motor Vehicle Registration Fees
- Use Fuel Tax (Diesel)
- Caravan Fees
- Federal Aid

Data covering amounts received from each of these sources for the last five fiscal years were included in our report of August 24, 1944, to the committee, prepared at the request of your chairman, Senator McCormack, in his letter of July 15th. However, in order that this information may be available for ready reference, certain of those tabulations are also being made a part of this study (Tables 2, 3, and 4):

These foregoing tables are in the main self-explanatory and consequently require little comment. Revenue from the Gasoline Tax shows a marked decline from 1941, due primarily to the wartime restrictions imposed upon the use of private passenger cars. While to date the number of motor vehicles registered has shown only a slight drop, this situation can not reasonably be expected to continue for long. A remarkable job has already been accomplished in the keeping in service of such a high percentage of the cars we possessed when their further manufacture was abruptly halted by the war. However, all surveys agree that an increasing number of the older vehicles are daily going out of commission, a condition which will not be overcome until replacements are available at a rate sufficient not only to take care of losses as they occur but also to make up the already accumulating deficit. When this will be is problematical, but at all events, even under the most favorable circumstances, the complete return to normal requirements is not a prospect of the immediate future.

It will be noted that the amount of Federal Aid (Table 4, above) received for State highway purposes has been greatly reduced during the past two years. Such Federal funds as have been received have been mainly in the nature of reimbursements for expenditures made during previous years from apportionments made prior to the war. The last allocation of Federal Aid, except for military purposes such as access roads and flight strips, was made by the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1940, and programs of projects under these funds were canceled by the Federal Government shortly before Pearl Harbor.

The question of future Federal Aid for highways is now under consideration in Congress, and while it would appear that this aid to the States will be continued, it is at this time merely a matter of speculation both as to their amount and the time when such funds might become available.

In considering the revenues accruing to the State highways in California, the following chart showing comparative rank of all States with respect to vehicle registration and the amount of revenue per vehicle from registration fees and fuel taxes is particularly pertinent (Chart 1, below). It will be noted at first glance that California ranks first in the total number of motor vehicles registered and forty-fifth in the average per-vehicle receipts from fees and fuel taxes. This chart also shows the cents per gallon of gasoline assessed in each State.

Equally pertinent in any review of highway revenues is Table 5, on page 18, which lists the Highway User Taxes (exclusive of Federal Taxes) assessed in California and shows the distribution of these moneys as between highway and nonhighway work. The figures given are for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943, the latest for which details are available. Revenues from these sources for other fiscal years are shown on Tables 2, 3, and 4 (pages 14 and 15).

Expenditures

The expenditures made by the Division of Highways during the period of the last seven fiscal years, beginning July 1, 1937, and ending June 30, 1944, are shown in Table 6 on page 19. These expenditures are shown separately for "Expenditures for State Highway Purposes" and "Expenditures for Other Purposes." Under the first heading the expenditures are broken down so as to present separately the major items of:

- Expenditures on Rural State Highways
- Expenditures in Cities
- Maintenance
- Administration

While these headings approach self-explanation as nearly as can be achieved without undertaking voluminous detailed description, it is pointed out that the expenditures on rural State highways and in cities include, particularly during the last three fiscal years, moneys expended on the State Highway System for military purposes from Federal Access Road Funds appropriated by the National Defense Highway Act of 1941 for improvement of roads essential to war plants, such as shipyards, aircraft plants, and military reservations.

Under "Miscellaneous Expenditures" are shown the amounts expended for several purposes that are not properly included in the four main items. "Expenditures for Other Purposes" are likewise broken down so as to show the general nature of the expenditures that are made off the State Highway System. The amount shown under "Feeder Roads" for the last three fiscal years includes moneys expended on other than State highways for military purposes from Federal Access Funds.

During the last three fiscal years there was expended a total of $23,540,000 from Federal Access Funds for roads to military establishments, including all projects, both city and county and State highways and local roads.

Special Functions

There are a number of special responsibilities devolving upon the Division of Highways, which although properly functions of the department are nevertheless somewhat out of the ordinary and so deserve brief separate mention. Among these are:

- San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge
- Convict Labor on State Highways
- Federal Railroad Grade Crossing Program

San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge

Under provisions of the act authorizing the construction of the Bay Bridge, all costs arising from the operation and maintenance of the bridge and its approaches must be paid from the State Highway Fund, since under the Bond Resolution all bridge tolls and other bridge revenues are obligated to be used for bond interest and principal payments, use and occupancy insurance premiums, and the fiscal agent's expenses.

The annual costs of maintenance and operation during the last five fiscal years are as follows:

Fiscal Year	Maintenance and Operation Expenditures
Ending June 30, 1940.....	$608,605.83
June 30, 1941.....	628,606.21
June 30, 1942.....	643,507.66
June 30, 1943.....	654,884.09
June 30, 1944.....	684,109.61

Each of the annual totals includes an item of approximately $112,000, being the premium on physical damage insurance. The totals for each of the last two years also include an additional premium of $54,000 for war damage insurance.

As the result of the shortages of labor and materials caused by the war, it has been impossible to maintain a painting crew sufficiently large to keep the work up to schedule. Consequently, in order to prevent permanent damage to the structure, it will be necessary to undertake a considerably accelerated painting program as soon as men and materials are available. It is estimated that, including the accelerated painting program but excluding the physical damage insurance, the annual maintenance expenditures will be in the vicinity of $820,000 for the next several years. If sufficient men and materials are available, the enlarged painting program will probably be necessary for a period of about three years.

Convict Labor

Convict labor was first employed to construct State highways in August, 1915, under authorization of an act passed by the Legislature May 20, 1915. Under this act the Prison Road Camps were administered under the dual control of the Highway Commission and the Prison Board. No provision was made to pay convicts a wage for their work. The dual authority which existed under this act and the resultant lack of control of convicts led to the enactment of the present law June 9, 1923. Under this act a wage and time credit was provided for the road camp convict and authority of the two departments clearly established.

The original daily wage was set at $2.10, which has since been increased, first to $2.24, later to $2.50, and on October 1, 1943, the present rate of $3 per day was established. From this deductions are made for food, camp maintenance, and other items. The net credit to each convict's account is not permitted to exceed an average of $0.75 per day for each day worked.

Since July 1, 1925, when wages were first paid to the convict laborers, a total of $20,252,000 had been expended for convict labor projects up to the end of the last fiscal year, June 30, 1944. Of this total, $4,670,000 represented convict wages.

At the present time only two road camps are operating, both with curtailed convict quotas: one at Burnt Ranch in Trinity County on Route 20 with a quota of 50 convicts; and one at Moosa Canyon in San Diego County on Route 77, where the quota is 75.

In addition to these two camps, buildings of a third at Cedar Springs on the Angeles Crest Highway in Los Angeles County are held in readiness for resumption of work after the war. Work at this camp was suspended in September, 1942, due to the fact that it was not considered necessary to the war effort.

Based on normal convict quotas totaling 415 and normal construction operations, the three camps will require an approximate annual expenditure of $725,000.

Expenditures for Convict Road Work are included in the totals shown under "Construction Rural State Highways" in the table previously introduced (Table 6).

Railroad Grade Separations

Prior to the inauguration in 1935 of a Federal policy of allocating funds for grade separation of railroads and highways, projects of this type on the State Highway System were financed jointly by the State and the railroad concerned. The proportion of cost to be borne by each party was set by the California Railroad Commission. Approximately 95 separations now on the State Highway System were so financed. In addition approximately 100 of the separation structures now in use had been built by either cities, counties, or the railroads themselves, before the road was taken into the highway system.

Under the Federal Grade Crossing Program 58 separations have been constructed, as listed in the following table:

RAILROAD GRADE SEPARATIONS

on

STATE HIGHWAY SYSTEM

Constructed under Federal Grade Separation Program
1936-1944

Class of separation	Cost of separation
		Total	Avg. per separation
Separations on new routes or revisions of existing routes remotely affecting existing grade crossings	7 Rural	$609,535	$87,076
	3 Urban	1,043,107	347,702
Existing separations reconstructed or improved	5 Rural	340,133	68,027
	1 Urban	46,782	46,782
Separations eliminating existing grade crossings or removing a major portion of the traffic from them	31 Rural	4,036,035	130,194
	11 Urban	2,325,250	211,386
All Classes Combined	43 Rural	4,985,703	115,947
	15 Urban	3,415,139	227,676
	58 Total	$8,400,842	$144,842

The costs for these separations under the Federal program have been met in the main by Federal funds specifically provided for that purpose, the State being called upon to bear the costs for any necessary right of way and those incidental improvements to the highway which are not properly chargeable to the separation of grades.

Expenditures made for separations in either rural or urban areas are included in the totals given in the over-all Expenditure table under the respective headings: "Construction Rural State Highways" and "Expenditures in Cities" (Table 6, page 19).

As of August, 1944, there were still 965 locations where railroads cross the State Highway System at grade, 696 of which were crossings of main or branch lines and 269 were spur track crossings. Of the main and branch line crossings, 305 were in urban territory and 391 in the rural areas. The spur track crossings were divided 142 urban and 127 rural.

In considering the further elimination of grade crossings, it must be kept in mind that the "easier" of the worthy projects, because of practical reasons, have been completed. The inclusion of these—some costing as little as $18,000—alone accounts for the fact that the average cost to date is not a great deal higher than the $145,000 shown. Of the grade crossings which remain, those most fully justified on the basis of traffic needs involve more difficult problems of location and property damage, and their average cost will consequently be very much higher. An example is the Burbank separation on Route 4, the cost of which was $384,000.

The future policy of the Federal Government regarding the setting aside of funds to be used exclusively for the elimination of railroad grade crossings is a matter of speculation. An indication that this program will be continued at least to a limited extent is contained in the present legislation now under consideration by Congress. Should Senate Bill No. 2105 now before Congress become the law, California would participate to the extent of slightly more than $6,000,000 during a three-year period. In the absence of funds definitely earmarked for them, grade crossing separation proposals naturally will have to justify themselves on an equal basis with all other State highway needs.

Critical Deficiencies

The situation with regard to expenditures for State highway purposes over the last several years was briefly discussed by the Director of the Department of Public Works at the meeting of your committee on October 4, 1944. A portion of the statement made at that time is quoted:

"The first income from gasoline tax in California became available in the 1923-1924 fiscal year, and the last of the bond issue money was expended the following year. Beginning with those years, the income per mile of road and per registered car began to rise, and with the increased income from gasoline tax, beginning in 1927, the annual income for highways reached approximately $10 per registered vehicle, or, in terms of miles of road in the State Highway System at that time, slightly in excess of $3,000 per mile. This level of income was maintained for a short period of time. In 1933 the Legislature allocated one-quarter cent of gasoline tax to State highways within incorporated cities, and in 1935 another quarter cent was allocated to major city streets. At this same time (1933) the State Highway System was increased by some 6,000 miles. This extending of the system over which the funds were to be expended, both on rural roads and city streets, quite naturally reduced the funds available per mile of road, and likewise per registered vehicle using those roads.

"During the intervening years, because of the increase in traffic volumes and speeds, and the increase in truck traffic—both in quantity and size of vehicles—it has been necessary to provide wider traffic lanes generally throughout the system, multiple lanes over a considerable mileage, longer radius curves, and to a considerable degree lesser grades. It has also been necessary to provide in many instances grade separations, extensive channelization schemes, traffic signals, and other necessary improved facilities.

"Thus, during the last ten or twelve years prior to the war, the cost of traffic service over this extended system had increased very materially per vehicle unit; and while there had been an increase in total gasoline tax and registration fees, there had been a gradual losing of ground in so far as over-all improvement of the entire highway system was concerned."

The accompanying sheet of typical cross-sections (Chart 2, below) of rural highways constructed during various periods since the establishment of the Division of Highways has been prepared in an endeavor to show in a graphic manner the increasing burden of expenditure entailed in providing facilities which even approximate the demands of developing traffic. The inevitable process of obsolescence is easily noted.

TYPICAL CROSS SECTIONS

In undertaking the preparation of a statement on the critical deficiencies of the State Highway System at the present time, it was first necessary to delimit the scope of the term "deficiency" as used here; and, likewise, to assure a reasonable measure of uniformity in selection, some agreed upon understanding was needed in qualifying such "deficiencies" as being "critical."

Accordingly, the several District Engineers were instructed to prepare a report in detail showing the individual parts of the State Highway System in their respective districts which "because of some marked deficiency are in urgent need of improvement or replacement." These were to be termed "critical projects" and it was emphasized that this list was to be restricted to those projects which because of actual deficiencies warrant immediate consideration. Thus, the scope was limited to deficiencies in the physical facilities of the existing system, and in order to further clarify the meaning to be attached to the qualification "critical" the following additional instructions were included:

It is particularly desired that you distinguish as between critical projects and worthy projects. It is clearly recognized that there are many projects on the highway system that are worthy of consideration, but all such projects are not critical in the sense that this term is to be used in this report.

The determination of projects to be included in this report is to be based upon the following:

1. Maintenance cost, particularly the cost of maintaining the traveled way and shoulders.

A critical project under this heading is considered to be a project showing a structural weakness of base or pavement and maintenance cost to be abnormally high, well above the average for the District, and it is reasonable to believe that an expenditure for improvement will result in an average or less maintenance expense.

2. Average Daily Traffic.

A critical project under this heading is considered to be a project where congestion results because of insufficient traffic lanes to accommodate either the average traffic flow or a regular peak traffic load occurring not less than thirty times a year.

3. Traffic Accidents.

A critical project under this heading is considered to be a project showing an abnormally high accident rate, considering the average accident rate for your District and the State as a whole.

4. Obstruction to Traffic.

A critical project under this heading is considered to be a project where traffic is frequently obstructed by recurring slides, floods, or other obstruction and it is reasonable to believe that the condition can be corrected or at least materially improved by a major expenditure.

Critical Bridges

There are many things which may act to restrict or to prevent the use of a road, but of these none is more obvious or positive in its effect than an inadequate bridge. There are many of these on the State Highway System. Just where they are and how widely they affect the entire system can be immediately observed by reference to the base and overlay maps which were prepared for this purpose and form a part of Volume II of this statement. It will be found possible by the use of these maps to relate this critical bridge situation to either the State's population, its agricultural area, or the recreational area which also includes within its boundaries other vast potential natural resources of the State.

The "Critical Bridges" covered in this statement are those structures which because of weakness or deterioration will require replacement within an eight- or ten-year period. Roughly, they fall into three main categories:

First are those posted bridges which are both too weak in original design to carry legal loads and at the same time are now in poor physical condition. These naturally are of primary concern.

Second are bridges which at present are sufficiently strong to carry legal loads but in which deterioration has progressed to such a degree that the bridge must either be posted or replaced in the near future.

The third class is made up of those bridges which while in fair physical condition at the present time are of too weak design to accommodate legal loads and will within a few years require replacement either in whole or in part.

Volume II contains photographs showing a number of typical examples of each of these types and of the modern bridges which must replace them.

Structural Weakness, Base or Pavement

Roadbeds which are structurally inadequate for the type of traffic they are called upon to carry are doubly critical. Such weaknesses tend to restrict or to altogether preclude travel at normal speed and the movement of legal loads. When this occurs the highway has failed in the fundamental purpose for which it was created. A second critical condition unavoidably results, for in the constant endeavor to keep all restrictions on traffic to a minimum, excessive maintenance expenditures year after year can not be escaped. Relief from this can be had only through major action for the permanent cure of these weak roadbeds.

The portions of the system where sections of critically weak roadbed and consequent high maintenance cost occur are not confined to any one region but, like the critical bridges, are to be found throughout the system, as may be readily observed by again referring to the set of overlay maps in Volume II.

Inadequate Traffic Capacity

That we have more traffic than we can properly handle, with still further increases sure to come, ordinarily would be good cause for satisfaction. However, there is one sobering feature which detracts materially from any such sense of gratification. And that is the knowledge and realization that we have not only not kept pace with traffic increase but have been steadily falling behind in the matter of providing the additional lanes which this increased volume requires. This naturally is a matter of very grave concern to the Division of Highways, for, as we have already commented, it is not even sufficient that road transport facilities merely keep pace with existing traffic. If our State's development is to go forward unhindered, transportation facilities must be provided in advance to accommodate the increasing traffic which the very existence of adequate roads helps to create.

Those sections of the system where traffic volume is in excess of that which the present highway will properly accommodate have been indicated on one of the overlay maps in Volume II. This list has been confined to those portions of the present two-lane or three-lane mileage where additional lanes must be added. Selection has not been based upon any arbitrary, inflexible formula, since many variable elements may combine to affect the practical working capacity of a road. None, however, were even considered for inclusion which did not meet a minimum qualification of carrying an average daily volume of 5,000 cars or frequent peaks of 600 or more per hour. As is logically to be expected, you will note that they are closely related to the more heavily populated areas.

Specific Points of Hazard or Obstruction

In this category we have included those particular locations where records indicate an abnormal rate of accident recurrence, or where obstructions such as slides, floods, roadway subsidence, continue at frequent intervals to seriously delay and hinder traffic. In the selection of projects to be included in this group, special stress was placed upon the requirement that there be every reasonable assurance the improvement proposed would result in material and permanent benefit to traffic. These sections are shown on one of the overlay maps in Volume II.

Freeways

The urban traffic problem, particularly in the larger population centers, presents a combination of critical deficiencies that result from inadequate traffic capacity, traffic hazards and specific obstructions in such quantity and with such frequency that to deal adequately with the immense volume of motor vehicle traffic in these areas calls for more than simply correcting "deficiencies in the physical facilities of the existing State Highway System." There is general agreement that an integrated system of freeways designed to serve the entire area is basic in any program for the solution of this pressing and difficult traffic problem. In Volume II will be found maps of typical urban areas:

Los Angeles Metropolitan Area

San Francisco Metropolitan Area

East Bay Metropolitan Area which have been prepared to show the suggested initial portions of proposed freeway systems for the respective areas.

The over-all summary of critical deficiencies as shown by reports from the District Engineers, after a careful review by the State Highway Engineer and department heads, is submitted herewith in Table 7, page 29, under the following headings:

Summary and Conclusion

A restatement of the questions asked by the committee provides a most satisfactory outline for the following summary :

Ample evidence has been presented to confirm what is already universally accepted, that motor transport is a thing vitally essential to the entire economy of California. Every phase of this economy, urban and rural, is now in some way so directly dependent upon motor transport that anything adversely affecting it has a certain and almost immediate effect upon every citizen of the State. In like manner, the improvement of motor transport facilities invariably results in benefit just as certain and far reaching. Motor transport is of such economic importance to California that to permit its destruction would bring disaster, while to improve it is an inescapable prerequisite for the proper development and expansion of California's vast economic resources.

Factual data are introduced (see preceding discussion) which show conclusively that the State Highway System occupies a position of such importance in the functioning of motor transport that whatever materially affects the State highways will produce major repercussions throughout the whole field of motor transport.

In addition to the data that have been presented on the importance of motor transport to California, it is pertinent to point out that under normal conditions before the war there were some 430,000 people employed directly and indirectly in the various activities in connection with motor transport.

Question 2. What are the critical deficiencies of the State Highway System at this time, and why are they critical?

This question has been covered in detail in the text of the statement (pages 23 to 29) under specific headings dealing with each of the several main types of deficiencies, and the general location is shown on the base and overlay maps in Volume II.

Question 3. Is the construction and improvement of the State Highway System keeping pace with the obsolescence and deterioration?

The answer to this is obvious in the very recital of the imposing list of long accumulating deficiencies which now confront the Division of Highways. This list is summarized in Table 7 on page 29.

Question 4. What is the registration of motor vehicles in California as compared with other States?

California ranks first among all States in this respect, as has been graphically shown in Chart 1 on page 16.

Question 5. What is the revenue from fuel taxes and registration fees in California per registered motor vehicle as compared with other States?

This comparison of revenues is also shown graphically in Chart 1 on page 16, where it will be noted that California ranks 45th among the 48 States.

Question 6. What is the estimated amount available for State highway construction and improvement in the next biennium?

In our report of August 24, 1944, to the committee it was estimated that approximately $19,000,000 would be available as of June 30, 1945, for postwar construction.

In addition, it has been estimated that approximately $15,500,000 will accumulate during the next biennium (July 1, 1945, to June 30, 1947) for construction purposes. A copy of the "Recommended Distribution of Ninety-seventh-Ninety-eighth Fiscal Years State Highway Fund" is shown on pages 48 to 50, inclusive. This amount, $15,500,000, appears as Item 6 on page 49 under detail of allocation.

*Question 7. What will it cost to correct such deficiencies as exist?
And within what period of time should the improvement be made?*

Table 7, on page 29, enumerating these deficiencies, includes an estimated cost of $630,000,000 for their correction.

A 10-year period is suggested as the maximum time period within which these improvements should be made. Your attention is drawn to the fact that this survey treats only of deficiencies which actually exist at this time, and it naturally follows that their correction should be accomplished at the earliest possible date. It is particularly urgent that structural weaknesses wherever they exist, whether in bridges or in base and pavement, be cared for without delay. For they not only constitute a present hindrance to the normal flow of traffic but also hold the constant threat of actual disruption of traffic altogether. Deterioration of this kind proceeds at a continually increasing rate and the necessary expenditures to prevent total breakdown increase correspondingly. Thus it follows that if the fullest value is to be derived from income, these presently expensive deficiencies must be eliminated promptly. Deficiencies arising from conditions other than structural weakness are no less important, although not so immediately obvious. If it were possible to exactly evaluate the economic losses entailed by reason of the particular inadequacies we have listed which restrict the full and free use of motor transport, they would be found to far exceed any estimated cost for their correction. In view of this, certainly no program which would extend the completion of these improvements beyond 10 years could be considered satisfactory.

The revenues which will become available for the correction of deficiencies in the 10-year period after the war are estimated to not exceed $240,000,000.

This question of the probable future revenue which may be expected from present sources of income is one which under normal conditions has always been difficult, and now becomes doubly so during this period of national and international uncertainty and confusion.

In undertaking to estimate what this future revenue may be, and in order to at least provide a base of known facts from which to project into the future, we have prepared the revenue curve shown on Chart 3, page 33, which represents actual revenues received by the Division of Highways from 1936 to June 30, 1944, the end of the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year.

It will be at once noted that income dropped very rapidly from approximately $44,700,000 in the Ninety-third Fiscal Year (July 1, 1941, to June 30, 1942) to $33,500,00 in the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year (July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944) which has just ended. We wish to point out that this drop in revenue came as the result of intention and not by chance. Those in authority and in possession of all available and pertinent information decided that motor vehicle traffic during the war emergency period should be restricted to that which was essential. Any nonessential traffic clearly could not be countenanced under the urgency of all-out war effort. It was equally vital to this all-out war effort that all essential motor vehicle traffic should be maintained. The Federal Government, therefore, established all regulations considered by them as necessary to accomplish both of these purposes, first to restrict motor vehicle traffic to the minimum essential and, second, to make certain at the same time that traffic would not drop below this minimum. It was their determination from previous studies that it was essential to maintain passenger car use at a level of approximately 65 per cent of the prewar normal. The normal use of trucks was found to be almost wholly of essential character and, consequently, while some changes in use were ordered, the normal over-all mileage of truck vehicles was not to be reduced.

TREND IN REVENUE FROM FUEL TAXES AND MOTOR VEHICLE REGISTRATION FEES

The income for the Ninety-fifth Fiscal Year (July 1, 1943, to June 30, 1944) directly reflects the result of these governmental regulations, and receipts for the first two quarters of the present fiscal year have held at approximately this same level. Our records of traffic on the highways show passenger car use is being maintained at a rate approximately 65 per cent of the 1941 level; and truck traffic, while showing some variation in individual months both above and below these same months in the prewar period, has on the whole averaged very close to 100 per cent of normal use.

In view of the fact that the present level of rationing has now been practically stabilized for some time, and insofar as we are aware no radical changes are contemplated in the immediate future, it would appear that the program originally decided upon to hold passenger car traffic at 65 per cent and truck traffic at 100 per cent of the prewar normal has proved to be satisfactory in actual practice. This being true, we know of no warrant to justify a conclusion that there will be any material change in this arbitrarily fixed volume of traffic unless and until the conditions which are directly responsible for it have also changed. One of these would of course be an utter inability of this Nation to provide the physical elements of cars, tires, and fuel needed to maintain this essential amount of traffic. This we do not admit as being within the realm of reasonable assumption. The other condition which could result in change of the present schedule of rationing would be a marked improvement in the military situation. Any attempt on our part to set even a tentative date for such a change could in the nature of things be little more than one of speculation, either optimistic or pessimistic, depending too greatly upon mere personal considerations.

Reasoning in this manner, it follows that the present rate of income will continue with little change for some indefinite period, how short or how long we can do no more than guess. That the military situation will eventually be resolved to our complete satisfaction is certain and undoubted, for this premise forms the only possible basis for the present study of future income. When it becomes possible to resume normal peacetime activities there are certain assumptions as to the trend in highway income which we feel can be made with reasonable assurance as to their reliability.

Since the very sharp drop in income from that of the Ninety-third Fiscal Year came about through arbitrary restriction of traffic to a fixed percentage of that which existed when motorists were limited only by their own personal decision, it seems logical to expect that when governmental restrictions are lifted approximately the same sharp rise toward prewar volume will occur. However, this sharp rise in all probability will not, and in fact can not, continue for a very long period. For regardless of the complete lifting of restrictions on use of motor vehicles, the number of vehicles available for use will definitely limit the total volume of traffic. The removal of this limitation can only come as new car construction is resumed, and only as fast as the volume of new construction can replace not only those vehicles which have disappeared entirely during the years when no new cars have been built but also replace cars which in increasing numbers will continue to be junked during the time new construction is catching up with the present deficit.

For the purpose of illustrating the trend which it seems reasonable to expect will occur, we have shown in broken line on the chart that the present level of income will, as we have previously stated, in all probability continue with little change for some indefinite period. On this projected line of income we have erected the trend of income which may be expected to occur beginning with the lifting of all arbitrary restrictions. Very frankly, we do not predict when that time will come. The point shown on the chart has been used simply because at that time—the beginning of the Ninety-seventh Fiscal Year (July 1, 1945, to June 30, 1946)—there will be a known sum—$19,000,000—available for postwar construction.

If we are correct in assuming that when all restrictions are lifted traffic will increase at approximately the same rate at which it decreased when restrictions were imposed, income at the end of the first year thereafter should have risen to approximately the rate experienced during the Ninety-second Fiscal Year, of $39,000,000 per annum. Thereafter the increase will undoubtedly be at a lessened rate more nearly parallel to that which prevailed prior to 1941. In that event it would require at least three more years before income again would equal that of our highest fiscal year, the Ninety-third, when receipts were $44,700,000. To essay any projection further into the future would seem futile at this time. It does, nevertheless, appear reasonable to say that there is ample basis in the known facts as presented for the conclusion that the average annual income from present sources to the Division of Highways during the 10-year period following the lifting of wartime restrictions will not exceed that of the Ninety-third Fiscal Year. Income at this rate would provide in the neighborhood of $22,000,000 per year which could be allocated toward the correction of the deficiencies dealt with in this report.

The postwar highway program now being planned was based on the total amount of expected income over a four-year period beginning at the end of the war, the income rate being based on the 1941 or prewar level, including normal Federal Aid of from four to six million dollars a year. It is apparent from Chart 3 (page 33) that the postwar income during the first four years from present sources will not meet the prewar level.

Should the highway bill now pending before Congress be enacted into law, the portion of the funds made available to California under the terms of the bill would little more than make up the difference between estimated income for the first four postwar years and the amount which conditions now indicate will be available.

Question 9. What were the expenditures of the Division of Highways over the last three years before the war?

The total expenditures for each year, 1938 to 1944, are given in detail in Table 6 on page 19.

The costs for "Administration" are shown separately under this heading in Table 6 on page 19 of this statement, entitled "Expenditures for Fiscal Years Ending June 30, 1938-1944."

Question 11. What are the average costs per mile of two-lane highways in the North and South county groups?

The cost of 42 contracts totaling 158.7 miles in the north county group during the last five years was $57,800 per mile. This work was located in both valley and mountainous territory. The work consisted of:

- (a) Grading, surfacing, and armor coat.
- (b) Grading and surfacing with asphalt treated materials.
- (c) Grading and asphalt concrete pavement.
- (d) Grading and Portland cement concrete pavement.

The cost of 26 contracts totaling 87.9 miles in the south county group for the same period of time, including the same type of construction, and including work in both valley and mountainous territory, was $60,700 per mile.

The entire investment in construction spread over the entire primary system as of 1939 shows an investment per mile of $64,000 in the north county group and $57,000 in the south county group. On the same basis, the investment per mile in the secondary system was $22,000 north, and $20,000 south. The wide difference in average investment per mile between primary and secondary systems is largely due to the fact that no improvement of a considerable portion of the secondary mileage has yet been possible.

In 1930 the Division of Highways compiled a report entitled "Report on the Orderly Addition of New Roads to the State Highway System." It was estimated at that time that the average construction cost per mile required to bring the Primary system up to standard suitable for traffic of 1940 was $65,000 for the north county group and $50,000 for the south county group.

The cost of construction varies considerably in either the north or the south, depending on the location and the problems peculiar to the individual project; and, too, many projects are constructed in whole or in part, which makes it difficult to pick out what may be considered typical construction.

From the figures given above it seems reasonable to state that the average cost of construction of a two-lane highway in the north county group has been in the neighborhood of $60,000 per mile, while in the south county group it would appear to have been somewhat less, probably in the neighborhood of $55,000 a mile.

Question 12. What is the Primary and Secondary mileage in the two sections of the State? Reflect this mileage in terms of registered automobiles by counties.

This information is contained in Tables 8 and 9 on pages 37 and 38.

Two tables have been prepared, the first of which, Table 10 on page 39, shows comparison between the north and south county groups with respect to area, motor vehicle registrations, and registrations per square mile. Table 11, on page 40, shows this same information for each of the State's counties. This table also shows the approximate persons per motor vehicle as of 1940.

Question 14. Does north or south have most mountainous Primary highways and mileages?

Table 12, on pages 41-45, indicates the primary and secondary mileage of north and south classified by topography under the three headings of "Easy," "Rolling," and "Rugged." A map, on page 46, is also included, showing by legend the location of these various mileages.

CALIFORNIA

- LEGEND
- EASY
  - ROLLING
  - RUGGED

NOTE
This classification is based primarily on the topography of the route in general, but in the highway itself. Thus a section of a highway may be rugged in a general mountainous region but smooth in a section of the highway itself.

Question 15. Submit some average year's proposal for the budget by the Department of Public Works to the Highway Commission and the action taken by the Commission.

In considering this request it was found impractical to submit actual working data because, due to many revisions, the volume of documents involved would reach such proportions that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to reach a conclusion by a study of them.

We therefore submit the results of a study of the budget for the Ninety-third and Ninety-fourth Fiscal Years (July 1, 1941, to June 30, 1943), it being the last complete two-year period available.

The procedure used in making this budget is the same that has been followed for many years.

Early in 1940 each of the eleven districts submitted to the State Highway Engineer a list of what they considered their most important projects, listed in order of their importance, the number of projects in each list being made purposely large so as to allow some flexibility in bringing the total cost to what could be reasonably financed.

After thorough study and consideration by the several department heads in Sacramento, the District Engineer of each district was then called to Sacramento for conference with the State Highway Engineer and his department heads. The district lists were arranged as to priority and reduced to approximately the amount of the estimated revenues available for construction.

The next step was the submission of these preliminary recommendations to the California Highway Commission for their review and adoption of a budget. In this last step it became necessary to adjust the total allocation amount with the amount of revenues available. The meetings of the Commission and the engineers extended over several months before the final budget was approved.

The only change involving any considerable amount, made by the Commission, was the transfer from the engineer's budget of an item of $386,700 set up for convict work in Trinity County to a project for convict work in Lake County.

As an aid toward clarifying the normal procedure and practice followed in presenting the biennial budget for the consideration of the Highway Commission, we are attaching a copy of the recommendations of the Division of Highways for the budget covering the Ninety-seventh and Ninety-eighth Fiscal Years.

APPENDIX "B"

POSTWAR STATE HIGHWAY PROGRAM FOR CALIFORNIA—A STATE-MENT RELATIVE TO THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE CALIFORNIA MAJOR HIGHWAY DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE, ISSUED JANUARY 11, 1945

For the past year a study of postwar highway needs for California has been conducted by a State-wide committee known as the California Major Highway Development Committee, consisting of three representatives each from the following organizations:

The California State Chamber of Commerce
The State Supervisors' Association
The Automobile Club of Southern California
The California State Automobile Association

Following recent completion of this study, the committee made certain findings and recommendations which were referred to its principals for consideration and action. Boards of directors or other governing bodies of the five organizations participating in the work of the committee have now voted their endorsements or approval in principle of the program proposed by the committee, making possible issuance of this joint public statement at this time.

The recommendations of the California Major Highway Development Committee, in the main, are as follows:

1. That a system of limited access urban-rural highways be established in California.
2. That there be created a special fund to be known as the Limited Access Highway Fund for exclusive expenditure upon the Limited Access System and that there be added a special tax of 1¢ per gallon to present motor vehicle fuel taxes for deposit in the special Limited Access Highway Fund. That in addition to this revenue the State Department of Public Works be instructed to devote portions of Federal aid funds and regular State Highway Funds to the Limited Access System.
3. That expenditures from the Limited Access Highway Fund to be made in each county of the State in the ratio that its motor vehicle registration bears to the total motor vehicle registration of the State.
4. That the responsibility for the acquisition, construction, maintenance, and administration of the Limited Access System be vested in the State Department of Public Works.

This new system of modern highways would embrace some 2,700 miles of inter-State routes, consisting of two main north-south routes and five eastward laterals.

In addition to the Limited Access Highways, some 600 miles of metropolitan free-ways have been approved for the seven metropolitan districts of California, allocated as follows:

Fresno	17.55 miles
Los Angeles	282.54 miles
Sacramento	42.99 miles
San Diego	52.41 miles
San Francisco-Oakland	156.51 miles
San Jose	24.99 miles
Stockton	23.01 miles

These metropolitan districts are those defined by the Federal Government in the United States Census Report of 1940.

It is estimated that the proposed system will carry approximately 75 to 80 per cent of the total volume of traffic on all rural highways in California and a substantial amount of the total volume of city street traffic. Thus, the engineering safeguards against accidents which will be built into this system will provide added safety to the majority of the motorists of California and will give increased protection to all drivers who today must travel on highways which have a high accident frequency.

Those who have devoted the past year to the study of this subject agree that this program is sufficiently needed to justify the proposed increase in the Motor Vehicle Fuel Tax of 1¢ per gallon. If the program is desired, it must be financed, and the method proposed seems to be the fairest and soundest of all the various methods and plans studied.

California, now the third State in the Nation in point of population will undoubtedly continue to grow and the number of motor vehicles in this State will increase proportionately. Information submitted to the committee indicates that by 1955 we may reasonably expect five million motor vehicles to be registered in California. Consequently, unless steps are taken now to provide adequate traffic facilities to handle this increased volume of traffic, we will be faced with a complete breakdown of highway transportation facilities in California. If we are to meet California's future traffic requirements, we must anticipate and prepare now for the development of a system of highways which will adequately handle this heavy concentration of traffic and which will serve both rural and metropolitan areas of the State.

This will require a new policy of alignment and design for major streets and highways in California, particularly in centers of population. In order that the great bulk of traffic using this relatively small mileage may move easily, safely and efficiently, it becomes necessary to plan for the construction of a modern system of urban-rural freeways and limited access highways. These highways may be described as the heavy traffic express arteries of the future. Their advantages assure constantly increasing use and, consequently, steadily increasing values to all highway users. Such highways, free of lateral interference and conflicting cross traffic, will provide the maximum in speedy, safe, and efficient highway travel. This is the modern highway design for those major streets and highways embraced within the system recommended by the committee.

Everyone who has had opportunity to study present and future traffic trends and highway demands in California has recognized the very great need for this type of highway development in this State. It is generally agreed that it is bound to come, sooner or later. If it is intelligently planned and arrangements made for its financing now, it will certainly cost less than if it is delayed until some future time when the very chaotic condition of traffic forces this type of improvement upon the people of this State.

Another factor which played an important part in the committee's considerations was the necessity of building additional safety engineering features into our highway system. Traffic accidents have long been recognized as among the most serious social problems in America. By building into a highway system adequate engineering safeguards, much can be done to eliminate the possibility of conflicts in traffic and consequent accident hazards.

This proposed program marks the development of a new highway era in California. A program which promises to restore this State to its rightful place among the leaders of the Nation in the development of a modern highway system. It promises also to provide a network of modern and urban highway facilities which will do much to solve the motoring problems of this State for many years to come.

In 1912, the year in which the building of the State Highway System was begun there were less than 75,000 vehicles in California. By the close of 1943, the number of automobiles and trucks had increased to 2,944,572. During that year total motor vehicle travel was in excess of 25 billion vehicle miles, and 75 per cent of this total street and highway traffic occurred on not to exceed 10 per cent of the streets and highways of the State, thus concentrating the major part of all traffic on certain main arterials and within well defined metropolitan districts. This has resulted in creating acute problems of traffic congestion and a general disrupting of land values and land use.

California, perhaps more than any other State in the Nation, is confronted with the problem of developing adequate street and highway facilities to meet the impact of future motor vehicle transportation needs.

Even before the war overtook us there had already developed a grave deficiency in our highway and street facilities as a result of the overall traffic these streets and highways were carrying, the character of the traffic, and the growing importance of highway transportation in our social and economic life.

Testimony by Mr. C. H. Purcell, Director of the Department of Public Works and Chairman of the California State Highway Commission, presented in Sacramento before the Senate Interim Committee on State Highway Revenues on October 4, 1944, showed that the California State Highway System has been steadily falling behind the demands of traffic for the past ten years. Moreover, that the war has made a bad situation considerably worse. Since Pearl Harbor, there has been a virtual moratorium on highway building. At the same time the enormous impact of war traffic has been causing substantial deterioration in highways and streets that were deficient before the advent of war.

In addition to the need for making up for pre-war defects and catching up on suspended construction and reduced maintenance, we are faced with the gigantic problem of creating a modern highway system that will serve the highway transportation of the future which, it is generally agreed, will greatly exceed in vehicle miles anything we have known heretofore. This building for the future must be done with due regard to efficiency and safety.

Thus with many of our main highways already obsolescent and with major streets within business districts of most cities already overcrowded with vehicular traffic, this situation will become increasingly serious when wartime motor vehicle restrictions are removed.

To determine in the public interest what, if anything, should be done in the post-war years toward correcting this condition, representatives of five organizations in California on March 16, 1944, undertook a study of the problem under the name of the California Major Highway Development Committee, which is composed of the following representatives:

Chairman: Harry A. Mitchell, Director, State Chamber of Commerce

Secretary: John M. Luther, State Chamber of Commerce

SACRAMENTO, CALIF., June 16, 1945

*Honorable Fletcher Bowron, Mayor
City of Los Angeles
Los Angeles, Calif.*

DEAR MR. MAYOR: There has just been called to my attention a copy of your radio broadcast over Radio Station KFT on Thursday, May 24, 1945, at 10.15 p.m.

Several of the statements that you made are contrary to fact. The implications necessarily to be derived therefrom are so unfair to the majority of Members of both houses of the Legislature who are sincerely and conscientiously discharging their duties in Sacramento, that, did I not know of your record as an impartial judge, I would believe that your remarks were intended as a demagogic appeal to sectional selfishness. Because of your record as a judicial officer, I have decided that your statements were due to misinformation. For that reason I write to call your attention to the facts as disclosed by the record. You referred to three matters before the State Legislature that you consider of paramount importance to welfare of the people of Los Angeles and to the future of that city. One of these matters was the planning and financing of a system of freeways and limited access highways within your great urban area. Another one of these matters was the formation of a plan to deal with urban redevelopment and removal of "blighted areas" in urban centers.

I was one of the five members of the Interim Committee created by Senate Resolution No. 18 of the fourth Extra Session of 1944 adopted June 13, 1944, on State highway revenues. After several months of diligent work upon the problems covered by this resolution, the committee found and recommended as follows:

"Conclusions

In view of the information developed by this investigation, the Senate Fact-Finding Committee on State Highway Revenues has reached the following conclusions:

1. The facts definitely establish that present State highway revenues are not now adequate for State highway construction and reconstruction.
2. That additional highway revenues should be provided during the next ten years.
3. While it is apparent that the development of a Limited Access Highway or Freeway System, especially in the congested urban areas of the State is essential to the proper development of our highway system and the metropolitan districts of northern and southern California, it is also apparent that the development of the feeder or farm-to-market roads in the county and State road systems is also essential to the growth and development of our rural area and the development of one should not suffer at the expense of the other.

Recommendations

The committee recommends:

1. That present revenues be increased to be made available exclusively for State highway construction.
2. That a further and more comprehensive study should be made of the entire problem presented by the conclusions of this committee."

I call your particular attention to the fact that the two authors of this resolution were rural Senators. I also call your particular attention to the fact that four of the five Senators who composed this committee were from rural counties. Certainly this record discloses that the Senators from the small rural districts had not opposed Los Angeles at what it was trying to do. On the contrary, it discloses that months before there was any suggestion of a plan to solve the financing of the freeway problem of your city, Senators from small rural districts had a sympathetic appreciation of your problem. They initiated the study that will ultimately produce the solution. In the work of the committee every one of the four Senators thereon from small rural districts recognized and affirmed by their findings that it is essential to develop a Limited Highway System in the urban areas. But they also recognized that the small rural districts likewise had a problem in the development of a feeder or farm-to-market roads in the county and State roads system. They recognize that the welfare of the urban centers is of concern to rural California. The people who live in these centers are the consumers of the food and fiber we produce. As they prosper we prosper. But likewise we recognize that the welfare of rural California should be of concern to the people of the urban centers. The people who live in the small rural districts consume the manufactured products you produce. We buy from your wholesalers, we do business with your banks, financial institutions and insurance companies. As we prosper you prosper. So we recognize that development of our feeder and farm-to-market roads must not be at the expense of the development of Freeways. Nor should the development of your Freeways be at the expense of the development of our roads. There is no room for selfish sectionalism in the solution of these problems.

With these facts in mind I was the author of the Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 27 of the present session which has been passed by both houses. This resolution provides for the appointment of a joint committee from the two houses to continue the study of the planning and financing of an integrated road system in California including a Freeway or Limited Access Highway System in your great urban area and throughout the State. This resolution further provides for the appointment of an Advisory Council of the representatives of the major state-wide public and private agencies interested. I would be pleased to receive any suggestions from you as to membership upon this council of representatives of your city.

It is intended that a diligent and continuous study be started as soon as the legislative members of the committee have concluded their work at Sacramento and have an opportunity to adjust their affairs at their respective homes. It is desired to press this investigation and study with all possible expedition looking to the formulation of legislation to be proposed, if possible, at a special session of the Legislature within the next year. I have every reason to believe that the Governor will give us his complete cooperation.

In regard to the legislation pending in this session in relation to urban redevelopment and removal of "blighted areas," I desire to call your attention to the fact that Assembly Bill No. 1531 sponsored by the League of Municipalities and the City of Los Angeles is now on the third reading file of the Senate and is there with a favorable recommendation of the Senate Committee on Governmental Efficiency given by a unanimous vote of that committee. All eleven of the members of this committee are representatives of rural districts. Furthermore, I desire to point out that I was chairman of a subcommittee of three of these members that studied these bills and prepared what we considered to be necessary amendments for the protection of the taxpayers of the communities using the legislation. The representatives of the League of Municipalities and of the City of Los Angeles approved these amendments and openly stated in committee hearings that they believed the amendments greatly strengthened the legislation. None of these facts disclose any opposition on the part of the rural Senators to the desires of Los Angeles unless as legislators we are expected to bow to the wishes of the City Administration of Los Angeles without asking a question or making a constructive criticism. Frankly, Mr. Mayor, in view of our efforts to constructively aid you in the solution of your problems, I do not believe that your radio address could be classified as good public relations work. Rather it smacks of the same arrogance and dictatorial unfairness as was disclosed by the hearings of the Senate Committee on Local Governmental Agencies in February of this year in the treatment of the people of Inyo County by your Bureau of Light and Power.

You also referred to the failure of the proposal to earmark State money for local public works. You refer to Senate Bill No. 625 which was introduced in the Senate by three Senators from small rural districts and provided for the earmarking of $100,000,000.00 for local public works. This bill was passed by the Senate over the outspoken and sharp opposition of the Governor by a vote of 26 Senators, most of whom come from small rural districts. The difficulties that the bill encountered was in the Assembly where 32 of the 80 Assemblymen come from Los Angeles County. What possible criticism could you make of the Senators from the small rural districts on this matter?

In view of this record I do not believe that you are justified in the conclusion that the rural Senators have consistently opposed Los Angeles. Nor do I believe that your broadcast will aid in securing your desires.

In the near future the Joint Committee on Highway Planning and Financing will be in Los Angeles. At that time I hope to meet you and to discuss your problems with you.

Sincerely yours,

RANDOLPH COLLIER, Second Senatorial District

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Senator Shelley asked for and was granted unanimous consent to have the following report of the Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance printed in the Journal.

FINAL REPORT OF THE SENATE INTERIM COMMITTEE ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

To the California Senate:

Your Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance takes this occasion to present a final statement with respect to its activities. During the course of its investigation, the following reports have been submitted:

June 15, 1944—Preliminary Report of the Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance (31 pages)

April 1, 1945—Report of the Senate Interim Committee on Unemployment Insurance to the Fifty-Sixth California Legislature (159 pages)

The report of April 1, 1945, which was printed in the Senate Journal of May 7, 1945, contained certain recommended changes in the Unemployment Insurance System of this State. In support of these recommendations considerable factual data was presented to show the urgency and necessity of the legislative changes. All pertinent facts surrounding the employment and unemployment conditions in this State as well as relevant data concerning the Unemployment Insurance System in California and in other States was compiled in digest form.

As its final statement to this Session of the Legislature, your committee wishes to point out that the trend of employment conditions in manufacturing in California during the most recent months is continuing to decline and applications for unemployment insurance benefits are increasing. The future employment conditions in this State, as pointed out in the two reports previously submitted, do not appear favorable unless a large number of new job opportunities are created and made available to the workers of California.

The members of the committee regret that the Interim Committee was not continued during the next biennium. Not only should employment conditions be carefully followed and scrutinized but the administration of the Unemployment Insurance Act, which has now accumulated a fund of over seven hundred million dollars, merits legislative inquiry and investigation. The evidence before the committee clearly reveals that the commission and its activities and practices in the application and interpretation of the Unemployment Insurance Act requires close observation, particularly in the light of the increase in benefit payments and the reduction in tax rates.

It is the sincere hope of every member of your committee that the study made and the reports compiled and submitted may serve to intelligently confront the tremendous employment and unemployment insurance problems which lie ahead and assist future Legislatures in their approach to these problems.

The entire committee desires to extend its thanks to all of those who cooperated with it in its work and to the members of the Legislature who so patiently considered its report and passed upon its recommendations.

Respectfully submitted.

JOHN F. SHELLEY, Chairman
H. E. DILLINGER
HAROLD J. POWERS
